

Brass Bands of the British Isles

a historical directory

Gavin Holman

1st edition, March 2018

Introduction

Of the many brass bands that have flourished in Britain and Ireland over the last 200 years very few have documented records covering their history. This directory is an attempt to collect together information about such bands and make it available to all. Over 19,600 bands are recorded here, with some 10,600 additional cross references for alternative or previous names.

This volume supersedes the earlier “British Brass Bands – a Historical Directory” (2016). A separate work is in preparation covering brass bands beyond the British Isles.

Where "active" dates are given these indicate documented appearances - the bands may well have existed beyond those dates quoted. Bands which folded for more than 1 year (apart from during WW1 or WW2) with a successor band being later formed are regarded as "extinct".

“Still active” indicates that there is evidence for continuous activity for that band in the previous years up to that date.

Minor name variations, e.g. X Brass Band, X Silver Band, X Silver Prize Band, are generally not referenced, unless it is clear that they were separate entities. Various bands have changed their names several times over the years, making tracking them down more difficult.

Where there is more than one instance of a specific brass band’s name, this is indicated by a number suffix – e.g. (1), (2) to indicate the order of appearance of the bands. Marlow Brass Band currently holds the record with (5).

If the location is not inherent or obvious from the band's name, then the particular village or town is indicated, otherwise only the relevant county.

The counties referred to are those of the historical counties of Great Britain (for further details see www.county-wise.org.uk), and those of Ireland.

Place names are those used for the towns and villages today. Where there are historical variants, these are cross-referenced, as are also any alternative names, or common misspellings.

Documentation about bands in the early years is very sketchy, reliant largely on reports in the newspapers and magazines of the day. Often bands would have been referred to in ambiguous terms, and it is not entirely clear which specific band it is. For example, a village may have had a temperance band, known as X Temperance Brass Band, but often referred to as X Brass Band. There may have also been an X Brass Band contemporary with the X Temperance Brass Band. In this case both names are recorded as being distinct entities, until further information is available. I estimate perhaps 2% to 5% of the bands recorded here have some ambiguity in this respect.

Bands in the 1830s to 1850s were often referred to solely by their leader's name - "Mr X's Band" - which making the band's identification and location difficult - where these have been verified the band has been included.

Individuals associated with bands are recorded where known. In some cases there is ambiguity about names – usually with regard to spelling – and the alternate versions are given. The named roles of bandmaster, conductor and leader were somewhat fluid in many bands. For smaller/earlier bands they were one and the same. As bands became more structured, with rules, committees and constitutions, it was not unusual to have all three as distinct roles. The leader was usually the principal cornet player and, certainly in early bands, conducted and led the band from his playing position. The bandmaster traditionally organised the band, maintained discipline and occasionally led and/or conducted the band. Conductors, or musical directors as they tend to be known as today, provide the musical leadership of the band, choosing the music, training and rehearsing the players, and guiding the performances through their baton skills. Some bands employed professional conductors for short periods of time, to coach them in preparation for a contest and to lead them during the contest performance.

Sadly, although bandmasters and conductors are often mentioned in reports and documents, it is rare to find details of other members of the bands. Where known, such lists of members are recorded here. Christian/given names are rare, as are the instruments each played. Sometimes the report of winners of instrumental prizes at contests yields such details. Where there is ambiguity about a person's name – due mainly to conflicting spellings – both alternatives are given. e.g. Crichel Band's conductor was reported as G. Harris, T. Harris and J. Harris in successive years – it was probably the same person.

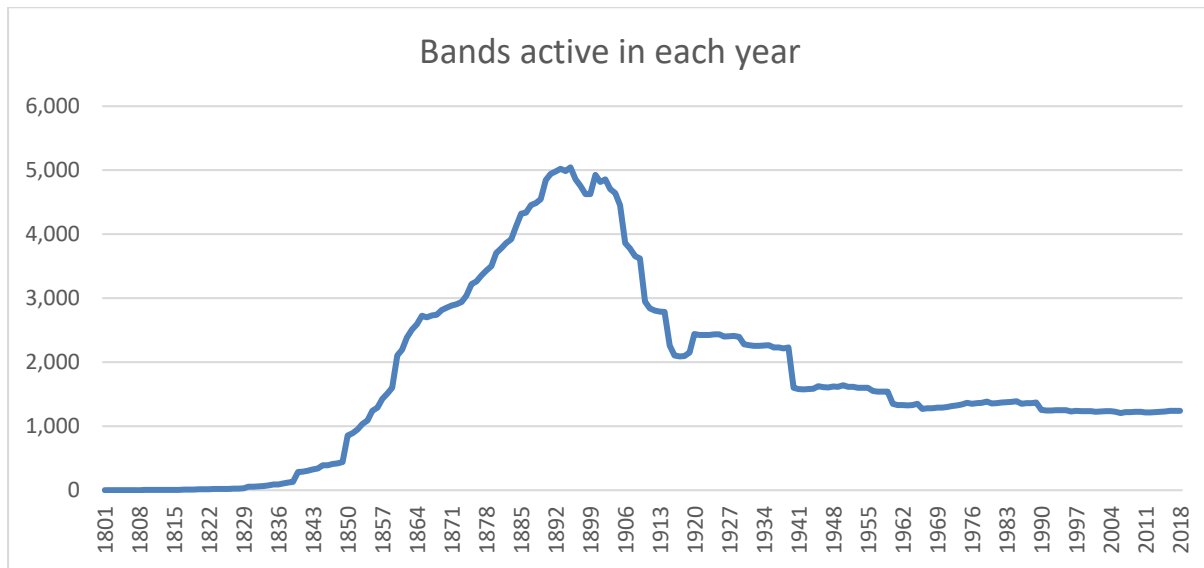

In addition to the bandmasters and conductors named herein, many more can be found in the Brass Band Results database – <https://brassbandresults.co.uk> – for specific bands.

More detailed information about a few hundred specific bands does exist elsewhere, in books and journals and in online resources, particularly current bands' own websites and the IBEW (www.ibew.co.uk) which contains much of the information herein, together with further information on individual bands. Published histories and dedicated information sources, where known, are indicated in the entries for the bands.

A detailed breakdown of the distribution of bands across the last 200 years is given in my paper: How Many Brass Bands? – An analysis of the distribution of bands in Britain and Ireland over the last 200 years. This shows that the peak of numbers of brass bands occurred in 1895 (with 5,045) and across the 1890s decade (with 7,321)

	1800 – 2018	Current
Total bands	19,634	1,234

Some broad categories of brass bands

- Brass v. Silver bands – there is no difference between them as far as the instruments are concerned, merely the colour of the finish, and whether the brass metal has been electro-plated with silver. This was an expensive process when it first became available for instruments, and “silver bands” were very proud of their new instruments, which indicated that the band was financially strong, and also possibly had been successful in contests, winning cash prizes! The first known silver band was Stephenson's Operatic Silver Band in 1872. Tyler's Family Band was a "silver band" during the 1870s, Corbett's Family Silver Band was active around 1880, the Universe Works Silver Band in 1881, and Rushden Temperance Silver Band in January 1884.
- Town bands – or village bands – most bands are associated with a particular location and consisted of musicians from a range of occupations in the place. Often established through public subscription (some bands even had this appellation), or occasionally by the munificence of some local landowner or benefactor, they quickly became a key part of the community and its life, providing music for celebrations, fetes, shows and galas and, of course, funerals. School teachers and vicars were often the initial driving force to establish bands.
- Works bands – since the earliest days many industrial and commercial companies and organisations have sponsored or supported brass bands. Perhaps the most familiar are the colliery bands which flourished at the height of the mining industries. Others that featured significantly, particularly in the late 19th and early 20th centuries, were iron works & foundries, wool and cotton mills, gas works, railway works, and shipyards.

- Religious bands – aside from the Salvation Army, many other Christian organisations saw the benefit of establishing brass bands, partly to assist with spreading their messages, and also to provide a musical focus to workers and parishioners alike. Perhaps the most evident were those related to Methodist and Wesleyan chapels. Church of England, Catholic, Gospel, Baptist and Church Army bands were also common. Adult Sunday Schools, Bible Classes, the “Pleasant Sunday Afternoon” movement and young men’s organisations (e.g. the Y.M.C.A) also spawned brass bands.
- Temperance bands – the temperance movement in the 19th century was partly driven by various religious groups (e.g. Methodists) but non-religious/fraternal organisations also arose. Many of these turned to brass bands to help spread their message of teetotalism. Some of the more common ones were the I.O.G.T. (International Order of Good Templars), the Church of England/Ireland Temperance Society, the Rechabites, the Band of Hope, the Blue Ribbon Army, and various “Total Abstinence”, “Teetotal” and “Suppression of Drunkenness” societies.
- Friendly society bands – during the 19th century various friendly and fraternal organisations arose, often as savings and mutual benefit societies, but also to foster links with both workers and professional men. The most famous of these is the Freemasons, but there were very few brass bands associated with masonic lodges. More numerous were the Oddfellows’, Ancient Shepherds’, Free Gardeners’, R.A.O.B. (Royal Antediluvian Order of Buffaloes), and Foresters’ brass bands.
- Family bands – these were most common in the USA, and usually consisted of the parents with some or all of their children playing a variety of instruments. Only those that had largely or wholly brass instrumentation are recorded here. In many cases they were semi-professional and travelled the country performing in theatres or at special occasions.
- Professional bands – brass and mixed instrumentation bands were common in most theatres and places of recreation. Some places had resident bands, others employed various passing or transient “acts” to provide the musical entertainment or accompaniment to their productions. Travelling circuses, menageries and shows also had their resident bands accompanying them. A few of the more notable professional brass bands have been recorded in this directory.
- Institutional bands – many industrial schools, workhouses, reformatories, orphanages, children’s homes, prisons and asylums, particularly in the late 19th and early 20th centuries, established brass bands. These served three main functions – to give discipline for the inmates/children (almost exclusively boys as far as the bands were concerned), raise funds for the institution through their concerts, and provide a means of employment (often in army bands) when they left the school.

- Volunteer brass bands and army brass bands. There were large numbers of rifle and artillery volunteers, reserve and similar brigades active throughout the country in the latter part of the 19th and early 20th centuries. Bands were often created to assist with the parades and in some cases local/village bands were “co-opted” or enrolled for a time to serve with the detachments. Units that clearly had brass bands have been recorded in the directory but, equally, a large number were drum and fife, flute, or woodwind bands and those have been ignored. In many cases the original unit numbering of volunteer battalions changed, particularly following 1880, when a general consolidation of the volunteer regiments took place. There was no formal government support for the volunteer bands, which had to be funded and supported by the local corps and their officers.
- Political bands – similar to those associated with churches, various political movements saw the benefit of having brass bands to help promote their causes. These were particularly evident in processions and parades and were much more common in Ireland than in Britain. At times there were labour, conservative (e.g. Primrose League), nationalist, loyalist, and liberal brass bands.
- Trade bands – these were bands associated with a particular trade (rather than a specific company). Included with these are those belonging to trade unions, together with those established by and from the workers in a trade – e.g. carpenters, bricklayers, seamen etc. More common in the two metropolises of London and, particularly, Dublin.
- Ladies’ brass bands – until recent years these were largely unknown in the British Isles. There was a good tradition of female bands in the USA and also in Germany (often known as Damen Blas-Orkester), and female musicians were not uncommon in the USA town and cornet bands. It was not until the 1960s that women made any significant inroads into the male-dominated brass bands of Britain, and even today there are relatively few female conductors, composers or arrangers for brass bands.

Exclusions from this directory

- Salvation Army brass bands - generally not included in this directory. There have been a large number in the UK over the years, and have spread across the world. Their history is comprehensively covered by Ronald W. Holz’s book “Brass Bands of the Salvation Army”. The website “Salvation Army Banding” - <http://www.sabanding.com> – contains a wealth of information about historical Salvation Army brass bands.
- Brass and Reed / Military bands – instrumentation of early bands – particularly in the first half of the 19th century – varied considerably. It is probable that many early bands designated as “X Brass Band” had some woodwind instruments included. However, later bands with “brass and reed” or “military” designations (excluding volunteer bands) have largely been ignored in this directory, but a few have been included where there is reason to do so.

- Youth and junior brass bands - not included unless there is evidence that they were quite distinct from the relevant adult/senior band or were completely stand alone. Many brass bands have had junior or training bands which have been successful in their own right, and these have been noted, where appropriate.
- “Scratch” bands – those that were brought together for a single event – e.g. the Whit Friday march contests – are not included, unless there is a particular historical relevance or interest
- “Ghost” bands – various villages, towns and organisations, on seeing the success of a neighbour’s brass band, would propose the formation of their own band. In many cases this was successful, but other times, despite initial enthusiasm, various meetings, even substantial fund-raising and, in one case, instruments being purchased, a band never came to fruition. Similarly there were cases where attempts were made to reform bands after their demise, which then failed for one reason or another (usually financial or lack of local support).

Instrumentation

The instrumentation within brass bands has evolved over the years. Woodwind instruments which formed part of the early bands were gradually weeded out until the “all brass” ensemble became standard, eventually fixing, at least for contesting purposes, on 25 brass instrumentalists plus percussion. Although this is now the standard for brass bands, bands have always made the best of the players and instruments available, and have ranged in size from quartets to ensembles of over 40 players. Woodwind instruments became less common as the new saxhorns were introduced and rapidly became popular in the middle of the 19th century.

The standard brass band today consists of

E♭ soprano cornet	1 st baritone horn
Solo B♭ cornet (4)	2 nd baritone horn
Repiano B♭ cornet	Euphonium (2)
2 nd B♭ cornet (2)	1 st trombone
3 rd B♭ cornet (2)	2 nd trombone
Flugel horn	Bass trombone
Solo tenor horn	E♭ bass tuba (2)
1 st tenor horn	B♭ bass tuba (2)
2 nd tenor horn	Percussionist(s)

Acknowledgements

The information about the brass bands here has been collected over the last 20 years, using published resources, libraries, archives, newspapers, magazines, internet databases, bandsmen past and current, and their relatives, and other band historians. There have been hundreds of correspondents from across the world who have provided information and images of vintage brass bands. These are too many to acknowledge individually, but my thanks go to all who have contributed in any way with information. A few who have been particularly helpful include: John Brush, sadly no longer with us, who researched the brass bands of Cornwall; David Cawdell for East Anglian bands; Brian Cleaver for Craven/Skipton bands; Chris Helme for Calderdale bands; and Matthew Walker for Greater Manchester bands.

Founded in 1957 by a former conductor of the Stoneywood Band, Alexander Buchan. Some of the original members transferred from Stoneywood, finding it more convenient to attend practices in Aberdeen. Throughout the 1960's and 70's the City band was much in demand for concert appearances and had some notable successes in concerts. On two occasions the band took first place in the Scottish Championships, thus qualifying to play in the British finals in London. By the 90's however membership had declined to the point that the band had many more instruments than musicians, and the band merged with UDI Brass in 1997, to form UDI Aberdeen City Band and also Aberdeen Community Band,

Accrington Old Brass Band - Lancashire

Formed in 1842, funded by public subscription. There were a total of 24 instruments, including such long forgotten items as Ophicleids and Serpents. Around 1854, largely as a result the technological development of valve instruments, the brass band came to the fore. Conductor in the 1850s and 1860s was Radcliffe Barnes. In 1859 and 1860, political upheavals in Europe led to the War Office raising volunteer military corps of over 130,000 men. Accrington Old Band got swept up in this and became the 7th Volunteer Rifle Corps (Lancs.) and later known as the 3rd Lancashire Volunteer Regiment. Reverted to Accrington Brass Band in the 1870s. Conductor Charles Woodcock in 1878-1893 (when he moved to take on Bonnybridge Brass Band). In the late 1880s the name Accrington Primrose League Band was adopted, a patriotic gesture at the time. (The Primrose League was a Conservative Party group with very patriotic beliefs and took its identity from what was believed to be Prime Minister Disraeli's favourite flower.) Conductor Edmund Lee and secretary James Bamber in 1904 . In September 1914, under their original name, the Accrington Old Band was reported by the Accrington Observer as leading the parade of the newly formed Accrington Pals Battalion. "They played lively tunes as they marched past the Mayor who stood in front of Accrington Town Hall." After WW1 the band reverted to a mixed brass/reed formation, in which it continues as the East Lancashire Concert Band. Ainsworth Brass Band (2) - Lancashire

Formed in November 1891 by William Norman Rayson. He had started earlier local bands at Brightmet Bleachworks, his place of work, and in the village of Ainsworth but both were short lived. In 1891 he again gathered together some local musicians and Ainsworth Brass Band was formed. In the mid 1890's the band was engaged to play at Bolton ice rink at the bottom of Chorley Old Road. The bandsmen would walk to Bolton and then at the end of the evening walk back at one or two o'clock in the morning, back to Ainsworth village. Often they would pause on their way home through the fields and enjoy an informal concert. Their best soloists would play and sing and the whole band would thoroughly enjoy themselves. On one November 5th the band found a deserted bonfire still burning. They gathered round and played 'Hail smiling Morn', the band serenaded the neighbourhood for a while before marching off to a lively quick march! They changed their name to Ainsworth Public Subscription Band in 1946 after having been disbanded during the war. In the 1950's the band took sponsorship from a local firm and changed its name to the Irwell Forge Band. They were sponsored by Airtours the travel company in 1986. Following difficult trading conditions the sponsorship deal ended in 1989. Due to its Bury roots, and the fact that Bury Silver Band were not playing at that time, the band was renamed as Bury Brass Band. They played on under that name until 1997 when the band eventually folded due to lack of a fixed affordable rehearsal space and being down to twelve members. Conductors have included C. H. Partington (1933-38), Harry Hodgson (1938-48) and Frank Kay (c. 1950)

Airdrie Union Brass Band - Lanarkshire

The Airdrie Union Band was founded in 1819 and survived to celebrate its centenary as the Airdrie Old Union Band. Originally it was a mixed brass and reed instrument band. Around 1860 - to the disgust of some members - it converted to being a full brass band. Among its many concerts it played at functions and marches of many of the town's friendly societies, trade societies and Masonic lodges. Shortly after the Band's formation it was reputed to have been involved in the political parades and demonstrations around Airdrie which were part of the nationwide movement of Radical agitation in late 1819 and early 1820. The formation of the Band may even have been connected with this movement. (The Articles of the Band give the false impression that it was founded in November 1820). Associated with the 29th Lanarkshire Rifle Volunteers Band in the 1870s, and, after 1880, the 7th Lanarkshire Rifle Volunteers - B Company. In 1871 William Donaldson, who had been conductor for fifty-two years, died. The band then became dormant, but was resuscitated in 1872, conductor Charles E. Murdoch; began to compete 1879; conductor Thomas Neilson in 1883, Robert Shaw in 1884. To 1888 had attended fourteen contests, and won prizes value £80. Records of the band, from 1836-1910, are held by the North Lanarkshire Council Archives. These include a Roll Book, 1836-c 1905; typed transcript of the Articles of the Airdrie Union Band with annotations, c 1910; Handwritten notes (by James Knox?) concerning Airdrie Union Band, 1875; Records concerning the purchase of new instruments for the Airdrie Old Union Silver Band including correspondence, a band list, extracts from accounts and receipts, 1907-1909. The band was still active into the 1980s when it became Monklands Concert Brass. The Monklands Concert Brass Youth Band held a 30 year reunion in 2011 - but it is not clear when the band(s) actually folded.

Alford Excelsior Band - Lincolnshire

Founded in 1879, with 10 players, made its debut performance in February 1880, uniform of dark blue with crimson facings. It divided into two separate bands in 1900. Conductor J.S. Phillips in 1879-1905. The outbreak of World War I and the loss of many players to the armed forces caused the suspension of the brass bands in Alford, and it was not until the 1920s that a band reformed. This was initially in the guise of the British Legion Band, but which then changed to become the Alford Town Band, the first to bear the town's proud name. Sadly, the outbreak of World War II saw the demise of this band. A successor band was formed in the 1960s. The band in 1912 consisted of Ben Atkin (tenor horn), Joe Stevenson (trombone), Jesse Waller (euphonium), George Rawlings (tenor horn), 'Ready Money' Dixon (Eb Bass), Harry Peak (euphonium), Bandmaster Stafford (cornet), Mr Phillips (cornet), 'Tich' Lewis (cornet) and Mr Thorndyke (drum).

The band advertised, offering engagements in 1910 and 1918 - the President was John Leigh, Beech Lawn, Altrincham, and the Hon Secretary was James Archer, 16 Moss View, Lloyd Street, Altrincham. The Altrincham Borough Brass Band Ltd. company was incorporated in 1891 and dissolved before 1916. A newspaper report from October 1898 states: "An extraordinary affair took place at Altrincham on Saturday afternoon arising out of the rivalry of two local brass bands. Some months ago the old Altrincham Borough Band divided, and seceding members styled themselves the Altrincham Brass Band. Since its formation the band has been in open rivalry with the original organization, and the dispute came to a climax when the new band anticipated its rival and obtained the use of Bowdon Athletic Ground, which had been used for several years by the Borough. The sports were held on Saturday afternoon, and the promoters had engaged the band of the Linotype Company to play through the streets. As this band was marching along Railway Street, the members of the Old Borough Band stationed themselves in the square, and while they tried to drown the music of the approaching band they were cheered by hundreds of spectators. When the bands came together, spectators and musicians engaged freely in a series of fights. The arrival of the police put an end to the row. Several bandsmen were severely mauled." John Coombes, Samuel Hamilton and James Turton were members of the band charged with assault in the affray.

Associated with the Northumberland Fusiliers during WW1. A member at one time was Edward Thirtle, who started his playing career in the North Seaton Band and went on later to be bandmaster of the Broomhill and Chevington Collieries Band. A selection of his family and band photographs have been lodged with the Woodhorn Colliery museum in Ashington, Northumberland. Bandmaster of Radcliffe Colliery Band at one time was William Oswald Pearson, who worked at Hauxley Colliery. Conductor Ralph Hardy in 1903. Charles Johnson was conductor from 1909 to 1914, when a newspaper reported: "Mr. Chas. Johnson, of Long Row, Radcliffe, for the past five years has been bandmaster of that excellent local combination, the Amble and Radcliffe Prize Band, which is now stationed in Alnwick, as the Band of the 7th Battalion Northumberland Fusiliers. In the streets of Alnwick, their splendid music is heard four times a day, leading the Terriers out on parade and finishing up in the Market Place invariably with 'The British Grenadiers'. It is interesting to know that their silver instruments cost between £400 and £500. They have won several contests. Two years ago they attended Crystal Palace in the national prize competitions, and came out 12th amongst 27 bands from all parts of the United Kingdom. Mr Johnson is a native of North Seaton, but has spent 10 years at Shilbottle, 11 years at Newton-on-the-moor Colliery as manager and has been about nine years at Amble. He was bandmaster at Shilbottle and organist at the Parish Church (both old and new), being an organ pupil of the late C.E. Moore's. He was also organist at Newton and occupied a similar post at Eglington for about a year in the time of the late Ven. Archdeacon Martin. He has adjudicated at several contests, vocal and instrumental, his first experience in this capacity being at the first miners' picnic at Tynemouth, when 19 bands competed. Mr Johnson has four sons under the colours at the present day- two in France and two in Alnwick- an example of family patriotism on which the admirers of his fine hand will heartily congratulate him."

Angmering Brass Band - Sussex

Active in 1888. It probably disbanded in the 1920s after a hiatus due to WW1. Conductor in 1907 was Mr Peacock. "There was a Silver Band with 18 to 20 players. They had their club room behind The Lamb and met once or twice a week for practice. I always remember the big drum and there were two smaller ones, cymbals, flutes, trombones and cornets. The band marched to Ham Manor to play for Sir Henry and Lady Aubrey-Fletcher on a Saturday evening. When it was dark, a large square lantern was carried on a pole around which the instrumentalists grouped. The band attained a very high standard but was disbanded at the beginning of the 1914 war when many of the men were called up for active service." In 1919 it was reported: "Another old Angmering institution has popped up again, smiling, after its war hibernation. We refer to the Angmering Silver Band. The members have got some new blood and now want some new instruments and music. What is more, they look like getting what they want, for the appeal that has been issued is being generously supported. Anything that adds to gaiety of village life has our strong support, and we wish the Band every success. There was a penchant for parades for any reason that could be devised, with Angmering Silver Band in the vanguard. A marriage or other rite of passage, of a local notable, was always a good reason for celebration. With newspapers centred at Littlehampton and Worthing, Angmering was in a kind of no-man's land between. It is good fortune that any reports were made, and the earliest parades may perhaps not have been covered. August was the month for these events, in all local parishes, and brass and silver bands from Rustington and Angmering were not averse to taking part in each other's procession. In 1904, it was reported, some 150 members of three societies took part, with the two bands included, the regular meeting place being by the Fox Inn. From there, Patching and Clapham were visited, before the long trek down Water Lane to the village green. However, there is evidence that the return was via Hammerpot, so as to take in the upper part of Angmering, and maybe a pub or two." Also in 1919: "Peace Celebrations: The proceedings began at 2.30 with an assembly on the village green for the judging of fancy costumes and decorated vehicles. A procession was marshalled by Mr. Shepherdson, and headed by the Angmering Silver Band and a number of demobilised men, it marched to a meadow at the back of the Rectory, lent by Mr. S. S. Pyle. "

Armley and Wortley Brass Band (2) - Yorkshire (West Riding)

Formed in June 1894 by T.A. Kitchen (previously secretary of the Leeds Engineers' Band), it hoped to purchase the instruments of the Leeds Forge Band from Samson Fox. Conductor B.D. Jackson in 1896. Active through to the 1970s. The band were based in the south western part of Leeds very near to Armley Jail. When the Leeds Forge Band folded in 1892 it took over their uniforms, instruments and music (offered by Samson Fox, owner of Leeds Forge and sponsor of the band). J.S. Glover became conductor in 1900, succeeded by H. Mallinson in 1901. Secretary H. Bentley and treasurer B.S. Meek in 1899. Secretary Charles H. Drake and treasurer Walter Hinchcliffe in 1902. It was very successful during the 1930s. It was revived for a brief spell in the late 1960s early 1970s. The rehearsal room was at the Holy Family club. Rehearsals Sunday mornings. Cecil Dowling had been connected with the band for many years and it was his fervent wish to see it revived - he had played top cornet with them in the glory days. He was a keen supporter of the Harrogate and District band Association and helped organise contests at Yeadon Town Hall. The old band uniforms were stored under the stage and they had choker collars, there may have been pill box hats as well. During this revival the band never got beyond a handful of players so no jobs were undertaken. It was a sign of the times that a few of the old stagers smoked a lot and the G trom player used the end of his case as an ashtray! You never see G trombones these days. Those long slides with a handle! I once heard one described as "come back or I'll fetch thi". (Thanks to Bob Thomas for these memories)

Flourished between 1857 and the 1890s. Conductor Mr Blackman in 1864-1875, E. Blackman in 1893-1897. Regularly playing in the market place and in the castle grounds during the summer, and touring several times in France; the Blackman family which ran it were involved in other aspects of Arundel's musical life over three generations: the church choir from the later 19th century, a dance band, and a concert party which performed over a wide hinterland in the 20th century. It appears to have developed from a fife and drum band in the 1860s and through a brass band chiefly of youths, with Mr. E. Blackman as conductor, to its great credit in the 1870s, had progressed so successfully that it won the championship at the first amateur Brass Band Competition in Sussex held at the now almost forgotten Swiss Gardens, Shoreham. Rossini's Overture, "Semiramide," as the test piece on that occasion required great executive skill such as but few amateur bands of the period could show. Subsequently about the same time on its merits it was engaged to perform at Boulogne and Paris. This band, of about 20 Saxhorn players, under the bandmasters Blackman, father soprano, and son solo cornet - in his day the finest soloist in the County - enjoyed a very high well-earned reputation through the years as the band of the 2nd administrative Battalion of the Royal Sussex Rifle Volunteer Regiment. Though a brass band, it was never "brassy." Its tone was refined anti very pleasing and its executive ability excellent. It regularly performed in the Town Square and one can hardly imagine a more delightful setting for its charming performances of some of the classical overtures and operatic selections together with National melodies interspersed with lighter music given under Mr. Blackman's baton for many years in the beautiful Arundel Castle grounds on fine summer evenings. The band ceased its connection with the Regiment in 1892 and did not long survive the early death of its talented bandmaster.

Ash Brass Band - near Sandwich, Kent

Founded in October 1887, securing the services of Mr Abbott, bandmaster of the East Kent Rifle Volunteers. Still active in 1892. Some members bought their own instruments, others by means of a very willing public subscription. For a time the air was made hideous by sounds on every side of a most discordant nature, and the wives and neighbours of the young men of the band found it prudent to go out to tea at a little distance when the members of the band took to practising. However they soon attained a good standard. In July 1888 the band assumed a "neat and quiet uniform", with the proud county motto "Invicta". Conductor W.T. Cunningham in 1891

Ashdown Forest Temperance Band - Sussex

The Band was formed in 1902 and consisted mainly of musicians from Nutley and Fairwarp with a practice hut midway between the two villages. They provided a great deal of local entertainment until in 1911 when they split, 'by amicable decision', into two separate bands and the bandsmen formed up outside the band-hut and the two halves marched off playing in opposite directions, dividing into the Nutley Brass Band led by Charlie Wickham, and the Fairwarp Brass Band led by Ernie Best. The musicians were not very temperate at all. They liked a 'drop of sherbert', sherbert being a generic term for all alcoholic drinks; 'going off to have a glass of sherbert' sounded less indulgent than having a glass of beer, although it fooled no-one. "One time the band was going to a fete at Fairwarp and the easiest way to get from Nutley to Fairwarp was through the Forest. Well, on the way through the Forest, one of these cornet players, 'e wanted to relieve himself, so he laid his cornet down, and then when they got to the fete, he started blowing his cornet and he couldn't get no sound out of it, you see. So he pulled the turning slide out of it, and when he'd laid it down, a little adder had crawled in that bell of the cornet and got down into that tuning slide. Yeh! It wouldn't have got into his mouth because it couldn't get up through the valves where you press them down, but when he sees that adder come out!" Another report from the early part of the century notes: "A procession headed by Mr H W Attenborough as Mephistopheles, riding a horse, followed by the Ashdown Temperance Prize Band, went to the vicarage and to Strood, then to the Sheffield Arms where there was a halt for refreshments. With a fresh supply of torches and coloured lights, and joined by many more people, the procession arrived at Sheffield House where his Lordship, who was indisposed, watched from his bedroom. The evening ended with effigies of Guy Fawkes and the New Woman, a suffragette, being consumed by the flames of the bonfire at Splaynes Green." Joseph Ridley (b 1842) was a very good self-taught carpenter. When the Ashdown Forest Temperance Band was formed, he built them a tin practice hut in one of his fields, an orchard at Horney Common, at a rent of one shilling a week. Frank Tyler Ridley was a founder member (with his brother Spencer) and secretary of the Ashdown Forest Temperance Band in 1904 and later, after the split with the Fairwarp members of that Band he was secretary of the Nutley Band.

Bainbridge Brass Band (2) - Yorkshire (North Riding)

Formed prior to 1900, active through to WW1. Guy Metcalfe was a member in the early years, as were also a number of his relatives - nearly half the band being Metcalfes. Jack (Jammy) Metcalfe (b. 1900) played horn in the band in 1911. In 1911 the band played all afternoon at Middleham castle for the Coronation celebrations of King George V, and then had to play for a dance in the evening at the castle. After the dance they travelled by waggonette to Leyburn Railway station arriving at 4.30 am. They had to wait over an hour for the train back to Askrigg. To make the walk to Bainbridge seem easier they decided to march back playing their instruments. They arrived in Bainbridge at 6.00am and proceeded through the village still playing their instruments waking everyone up who was within earshot of the band. After a good breakfast the band played for the rest of the day at Bainbridge for their Coronation celebrations

Banbury Britannia Works Band - Oxfordshire

Founded in September 1857, with 36 members of the works, instruments supplied by Pask & Co. The works had established the "Mutual Instruction and Recreation Society" which oversaw and arranged education, literary, sporting and musical events for the workers and townsfolk. Still active in the 1930s. Associated with the 3rd Oxfordshire Rifle Volunteers in the early 1860s, before a separate volunteer band was formed. Industrialist and philanthropist Bernhard Samuelson owned the Britannia Works, a foundry for the manufacture of agricultural machinery. This attracted a labour force to the town and created a need for the education of the children of Samuelson's employees, which was served by Banbury's Britannia Road School. Space within the school was sometimes used by the Britannia Band as for instance on the occasion of the relief of Mafeking in 1900. The first ever school treat was held on August 12, 1862 when 260 children and about 70 staff and friends had tea on the lawn of Samuelson's residence, Bodicote Grange. The children sang and the Britannia Works Band played 'a number of airs'. Six years later we are told that tea, cake and fruit were plentiful but that a heavy shower of rain at 5 o'clock dampened the grass but not the children's spirits. Competed in the British Open in 1893.

Band of the Worksop Rifle Volunteers - Nottinghamshire

1871 was a busy year for the Band of the Worksop Rifle Volunteers. In the 20th May edition of the "Worksop, Retford and Gainsborough Times", it was reported that the 2nd detachment of the 7th Hussars arrived in Worksop, en route from York to Aldershot. They arrived in Worksop on the Saturday and stayed until Sunday. At 10.00am they paraded in front of the Corn Exchange and marched off to the Abbey Church. The Band of the Worksop Rifle Volunteers kindly lent their services. On June 3rd of the same year, the Whit Monday processions were headed by three Benefit Societies. The Golden Ball Club was headed by the Band of the Worksof Rifle Volunteers, and on reaching Wheat Sheaf, the Wheat Sheaf Club fell in and was headed by the Harthill Band. Subsequently both Clubs joined the Abbey Sick and Friendly Society, the whole forming an interesting procession, and were marched to the Abbey Church where a very appropriate service was preached by the Reverend E.Hawley.

Banstead Cottage Home Boys Band - Surrey

Active in 1895 through into the early 1900s. The Cottage Homes were erected in 1878-80 to a design by A and C Harston, for the Kensington and Chelsea School District, in Fir Tree Road, Nork, Banstead, and were described as giving the impression of "a well-designed model village, delightfully placed amid country surroundings of woodland and downs." The buildings occupied a narrow strip of land alongside a railway line, although the elevated position of the site was said to provide views of Windsor Castle. An account of the buildings from 1898 states: "The entrance gates and porter's lodge are 50 yards from the middle of a fine main drive (about 600 yards in length), on either side of which are ranged the 23 detached homes or cottages for the children. In the centre of this drive lie the administrative and school buildings, consisting of the residence of the superintendent and matron, a house for the school staff, the stores or "village shop," the bakery, laundry, and swimming bath; three schools, two on the north side for boys and girls (a new girls' school has just been added with a covered playground for boys and girls beneath it), and the other on the south side for infants, and the detached chapel. Immediately at the right of the entrance, are two probationary homes, one for girls and one for boys, together capable of holding 40 children, while further to the right, on either side of the drive, are the nine cottages for boys, with accommodation for 40 in each. To the extreme right, a fine bandroom, which is to form part of a future drillroom and gymnasium, has been lately erected at the cost of some £800. On the left of the entrance and central buildings, the 14 girls' and infants' cottages are ranged, with 26 beds in each ; again to the left of these, come the infirmary with 30 beds, and the infectious block with 18 beds; and beyond these blocks lie the present boys' playfield and a large kitchen garden....". Barnard Castle Subscription Band (1) - Durham

The foundation stone of a stone arched bridge was laid at Whorlton, in June 1829, amidst considerable celebrations, with the usual "vast concourse of people" in attendance, as well as the Barnard Castle Subscription Band. After the formal laying of the foundation stone, the ladies who were present: 'retired, and took of a cold collation; and the gentlemen were entertained by the Rev J. Potts; and an excellent dinner and tea was provided for the parishioners' The Barnard Castle subscription band attended on the occasion. On July 7, 1831, "this elegant structure" in Whorlton was opened. The local people were so confident in its safety that a long procession stomped across it. The Barnard Castle Subscription Band led the way, followed by John Green. Then on horseback came the Whorlton bridge committee, led by the Venerable Archdeacon Headlam, followed by 27 carriages. Sundry other carriages and pedestrians brought up the rear. This band folded prior to a new subscription band being formed in 1860.

Barnard Castle Subscription Band (2) - Durham

Founded in 1860. About the turn of the century and during the Boer War most of the band joined the Local Volunteers and the name was changed to Barnard Castle Band Volunteer's Band. This caused quite a hue and cry in the local press at the time. After the war the band again changed it's name to Barnard Castle Silver Band and acquired a set of uniforms consisting of white flannel trousers, coloured striped blazers and straw hats. In the early 1930's the band, by this time wearing traditional peaked caps, red military style jackets and black trousers, won many prizes at local contests and gained fourth prize at the National Championships held at Crystal Palace in London. In 1960 the band celebrated its one hundredth birthday with a dinner when members were presented with medals bearing their names. Prominent musicians were the Wright family with Maurice as conductor, his two sons Raymond and Norman, his son-in-law Paddy Hunt, his brothers Tees, James, Trevor and Alan and his nephews Alfie and Trevor Walton. Sadly in 1967 the band lost many players and with only six players the band went out of commission. A successor band was formed in 1973

Barnet Foresters' Brass Band - Hertfordshire

Formed on 31st January 1889, secretary W.J. Firman, by the "Pride of Barnet" Foresters Court and was also known as the High Foresters' Brass Band. Corporal T. Yeomans of the 7th Kings Royal Rifles Corps was appointed as its first Musical Director at the first Committee Meeting in February 1889. In June 1889 it was planned to strengthen the band by combining with the Barnet Oddfellows (Wrotham Lodge) and use the combined memberships and funds to ensure the band was a success, and the band was known for a while as Barnet Foresters and Oddfellows Amalgamated Brass Band, becoming Barnet Town Band in the early 1890s. Members in 1897 included: Messrs Anthistle, Byford, Buey, Barrance, Chaloner, Cabley, Frost, Foster, Garner, Hodson, Harvey, Kirby, J. Lay, W. Lay, T. Prince, Purcell, A. Rutson, G. Robins, G. Staines, Stratton, and A. Wise. George Byford became conductor on 6th March 1895 at a salary of 3s per week and he held this position until 1907. During his conductorship, the Band attended numerous contests and won many prizes. The band's first engagement was at The Green Man on March 18th 1889. The original 15 instruments, which were purchased new at a cost of £42, the bulk of the cost being covered by a loan from Mr Emm. These instruments were replaced in April 1898 by Dr Osborne Boyes who presented a new set of brass instruments to the band at a dinner held at the Star Public House. In the same year, the Band entered the Fulham Brass Band Contest and gained first prize, thus setting a precedent as, over the years, the Band has won over 150 prizes. About this time, the band was instrumental in the setting up of the London and Home Counties Amateur Band Association, thus becoming a founder member. By 1899, the band was renamed as the Barnet

Town Band on a receipt for the printing of 20 circulars by Barnet's Steam printer, E. S. Wheatley. Mr Byford was succeeded in 1908 by Mr T. A. Cheek as Musical Director. Mr Cheek started as an instrumentalist in the band and his subsequent record as Director of Music was outstanding. During the year 1907, the Band took second prize at Bromley, first prize at Dartford and, perhaps most significant of all, the first prize at the Association Contest at Crystal Palace. By 1921, the band was known as The Barnet Town Silver Prize Band, as described in the receipt for the loan of a band cornet by Alfred Richards. In 1979, Mr Kevin Morgan, the Band's Musical Director, formerly a cornet player with the Band of the Scots Guards, changed the Band's name to the Barnet Band - its present-day name. It converted to concert band line-up, with woodwind instruments, in the mid-1980s

Barnoldswick Brass Band (3) - Yorkshire (West Riding)

Formed in late 1896. Secretary Thomas Bowker in 1901. Bandmaster Frederick Atkinson in 1902. The most successful period in the band's history was from the early 1900's to the early 1930's during which time the band was a regular prizewinner at contests and competed most years at the Crystal Palace Championships, though never in the Championship Section. Dwindling membership during the 1950's and 60's (and the success of the Rolls Royce band) led to the band folding in 1965. A successor band was formed in 1971. The great cornet player Edwin Firth, made his principal cornet contesting debut with Barnoldswick Band at Crystal Palace in 1906. In the 1920s the conductor was Joe Smith.

Barrowby Brass Band - Lincolnshire

Active from the 1860s through to 1935. Secretary William Musson in 1882. Conductor Mr Bennett in 1883, William Musson in 1885-1895. Secretary George Bullock in 1905. The earliest record of the band performing is on New Year's Day 1865. In 1885 it held its first annual celebratory dinner at the White Swan, perhaps because its then bandmaster, William Musson, was also the landlord. In 1897 it had performed 21 engagements with an additional four sacred concerts. In that year it also led the celebration of Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee at Belton. By 1905 the band had acquired a uniform, appropriately of Lincoln Green. By early 1909 however the band seems to have got into trouble and became, for a while, defunct. This did not last long for it was advertising for engagements by March of the same year. Within the village the Band played regularly in the grounds of The Rectory, The Grange, and The White House for a variety of village fetes and fund raisers. Secretary R. Peel in 1912. In 1913 it staged a Grand Promenade Concert at The Grange to raise funds for new instruments. It was 24-strong at this time, a large number for a moderate sized village. In September 1914 it participated in a Great Patriotic Meeting in the village. It reformed after WW1, with a number of its members being "Old Comrades".

Barrowfield Spinning Company Instrumental Band - Lanarkshire

Active in 1856

Barrowford Brass Band - Lancashire

Active in the 1850s and through to WW1. One member, Drummer Harold Rushton, 19, was killed in France in 1916. An earlier Barrowford Reed Band existed in the 1840s. In its early years, there was also a drum and flute band in Barrowford - one Christmas, they were both out playing when they came in contact with each other, between the "Gaumless" and Berry's shed, which resulted in a contest of strength. The two bands formed in order in the middle of the road. The players of each band played with all their might, and the drummers beat their drums with all the strength they could muster. The drummer of the little band turned his drum sticks and beat the drum with the heavy ends, and just about the finish he struck the end in. The flute band came out victorious, having made the biggest noise.

Barrow-on-Soar Brass Band - Leicestershire

The band was formed in 1847 with 9 members, under the leadership of William Hatton. They practiced on North Street. Conductor Sam Darby in 1898-1899. In 1910 they entered competitions for a period of two years only and won contests at Melton Mowbray and Derby for presentations and marching. When the First World War broke out 14 members of the band joined up but the remainder managed to carry on until they could properly rejoin. In 1919 Major Martin, who lived at the Hunting Lodge in the village and was a keen supporter of the band, gave a piece of land in Mill Lane to the village for use as a recreation ground. He also erected a bandstand on this open space and the band played there every Feast Sunday. In 1876 Samuel Darby became Bandmaster from the age of 17 for a period of 50 years, and on his retirement in 1926 was presented with a purse of money subscribed by the residents and his fellow bandsmen. Owing to the Second World War the band ceased playing and finally amalgamated with the adjoining village band of Sileby. Sam Darby was not only the Bandmaster but also a Cornet player, Piano teacher and organist at Barrow Catholic Church for over 50 years. He could, in fact, play all the instruments in the band but had a little bit of difficulty when it came to playing the trombone. These achievements were quite remarkable as he was virtually self-taught having left school at an early age. His son Jack Darby, who played drums in the band, was also a very good pianist. The Band played in neighbouring villages, and at Christmas they visited houses playing carols and no doubt there would be the usual liquid refreshment at each venue. In those days the band travelled around by horse and cart and the story goes that one Christmas, whilst negotiating the streets, they took a corner quite sharply with the result that the cart tipped over and its occupants were thrown out onto the road. Unfortunately quite a few instruments were damaged and Sam Darby's humour was sorely tested as he was convinced that the members of the band had over indulged. The villagers ran a collection and through their generosity raised enough money to replace the broken instruments. The new instruments were silver plated as opposed to brass - this shows how popular the Band was with the villagers. (thanks to Veronica Brown for these notes). A concert in June 1896 was: Collinwood (Pette), Lord of Hosts (Round), Edwinstowe (J. Ord Hume), Torquato Tasso (Donizetti), The Better

Land (Cowen), Hallelujah Chorus (Handel), Hours of Beauty (Round). Members c.1910 included Sam Darby (bandmaster), Jack Darby, Mr Burton, Mr Ferrin, Foster Summers, Jack Phillips, Ginger Whiteman, Tom Sutton, Ernest Sutton, Mr Gamble, Albert Hartson, Horace Neal, Mr Wells, Len Chapman and Reuben Lovett

Barton Cycle Works Brass Band (2) - Barton-on-Humber, Lincolnshire

Formed in 1904 by Mr F Hopper Snr. Conductor George White in 1905. It had many successes in competition, the most notable being the Contest held at the Crystal Palace in London where they gained a 3rd and 4th place in the years around 1907. Unfortunately on another occasion they had a few too many trips to the Public Bar and acted with an "unfortunate lack of sobriety" disgracing themselves on the contest platform. This caused their sponsor, F Hopper to gather them in the Cycle Works yard confiscating their instruments and ritually burning their uniforms before them - an inglorious end to a once fine band. Probably folded during WW1

Belmont Public Band - Lancashire

Formed in 1882 by Harry Gorse of Darwen an employee of Messrs Deakin, in the village. He used to write marches and composed parts for the band during his lunch hour. The band was formed one month before Christmas and a local resident offered 10 shillings to play outside his house, the band jumped at the chance. Conductor Mr Thornley in 1885. In 1901 the conductor was George Haslam and players included G. Rushton, A.J. Hutchinson, A. Nightingale, H. Haslam, H. Howard, C.M. Trevor, and C. Stephenson (who emigrated to Canada in April 1901). The bands most successful period was in the late 1920's but 10 years later the band had hit hard times, blaming improved access to Bolton for the decline in the younger generation's interest. The band disbanded in the early 1960's. A concert in Belmont Recreation Ground in June 1902 was: The King's Cavalier (W. Rimmer), Vesper Hymn (H. Round), Bohemian Girl (Balfe), The Promised Land (H. Round), Gems of Melody (H. Round), Ora Pro Nobis (M. Piccolomini), The Prince of Peace (T.H. Wright). The band played the patients "in" on admission and "out" at discharge (they were often in for many months, up to a year or two). It is likely to have been an ad hoc band consisting of what musicians were available as inmates. The uniforms seem to have been deliberately ragged - some still exist in the museum at Benenden Hospital.

Berkeley Teetotal Society Band - Mitcham, Surrey

Active in the late 1890s. Organised by the redoubtable Priscilla Pitt, the Society ran an imaginative programme of social and educational events designed to promote self-improvement and the rejection of alcohol. Initially described as a "ragtag but optimistic bunch", the band developed into proficient musicians. By this stage they had proper instruments and sported uniforms funded by Joseph Ely (founder of the famous Wimbledon department store). The group eventually imported non-teetotal musicians and evolved into the Mitcham Gas Works Band, which was active in 1909. Their musical prowess was such that they appeared at a wide range of events and celebrations, even participating in the Crystal Palace Brass Band Festival. The band probably disbanded during WW1.

Berkhamsted Amateur Brass Band - Hertfordshire

Berry Brow Brass Band - Yorkshire (West Riding)

Founded in 1851. On 26th September 1852, the band played for Lockwood Pig and Poultry Association Annual Show. Conductor James Dyson in 1861. Still active on 19th July 1893 when the band played to entertain the crowds in Greenhead Park, Huddersfield. The band obviously provided an opportunity for the working men of Berry Brow to travel, as in 1860 and 1861 they participated in the 'Great National Brass Band Contest' held in the Crystal Palace in London. On the first occasion their conductor was Mr A. Jackson (who was still at the helm in 1860), and on the second, Joseph Hirst. Other conductors mentioned were J.H.Haley in 1872 and Mr J. Brook in 1874. Berry Brow was a densely packed village about two miles from Huddersfield. It was almost completely bulldozed in the 1960s. At the foot of Berry Brow lies another village, and the band is often named as Berry Brow and Armitage Bridge Band. The band is also remembered in the alliterative local saying "T'best bloomin' bugle blower in t'Berry Braa Brass Band". The band was still active in the late 1890s. It was known as the "Crooked Finger Band" - anyone could tell a member of this band by his permanently crooked fingers - the result of continuous effort on heavy mugs of beer!

Bersted Brass Band - North Bersted, Sussex

Founded in autumn 1894, with 17 performers. Conductor R. Sharpe in 1894-1903. In April 1910 it included 3 Horns, 3 Bass, 3 Cornets, 2 Drums, Euphonium and Trombone. In 1911 it was referred to as the Bersted and Bognor Brass Band. In 1912 there seemed to be a decline in the Band's popularity and membership had decreased to 9 members. However somebody had faith in the Band and although in 1914 one Bandmaster resigned another was appointed soon after from a selection of 9 applicants. In the same year new uniforms were purchased for the Band which had improved its playing! The Band had reduced to 9 members as 11 were by then in the forces. In 1916 the Bandmaster resigned as there were not enough players. In Easter 1922 the Band gave 5 performances, the Bandmaster's pay was 5 shillings per performance. The Band went into decline from then on, and in 1933 the Town Band Committee recalled Band equipment and music. In 1934 The Music and Instruments were offered to a Mr Bottrill, who declined the offer, and subsequently all items were sold.

Bersted Home for Boys Brass Band - North Bersted, Sussex

Active in the early 1900s. The home was established in around 1890 at Sheepwash Lane (now Hawthorn Road), South Bersted, on the outskirts of Bognor Regis. It could accommodate 40 boys, aged from 8 to 14. From the outset, the home had received boys paid for by the Waifs and Strays Society and was taken over by the Society in 1892. The band gave performances at local events.

Bethany Home Brass Band - Kinver, Staffordshire

Pastor Ernest Hexall founded the Midland Counties Crippled Children's Guild in 1906, and he arranged with Mr Martindale of Kinver for groups of four or five children at a time to stay in his house, for which he paid 6/- per week per child. Demand was such that the Guild leased Hyde House, renaming it Bethany. One of its main claims was that it had the only crippled children's brass band in the world, and George Kimberley came to help out with teaching the children how to play. The band travelled around in the home's bus giving concerts in the neighbouring towns. Pastor Hexall died in 1915, falling off the home's bus, and the home was then run by Richard Davies. Sadly, after a case of neglect in 1919, the home (and band) closed.

Bethany Temperance Band - Aberavon, Glamorgan

Formed in 1889 under the leadership of Mr. Thomas Griffiths. At that time there was a large number of young men at Bethany and the idea behind the formation of the Band was to keep them together. Friends advanced money for the instruments. At the time there were only two who could play or read music, so that the conductor had a great deal of work to do in teaching. The story of the first attempt at marching is very interesting. The members, not feeling sufficiently confident to start playing in the street, climbed to the top of Aberavon mountain to practice. The first street march was on the occasion of the home-coming of Sir Sidney Byass, Bart. (then Mr. Sidney Byass) and his bride, when the Band played in the procession back to Aberavon. The band which competed in the Merthyr Contest in July 1892 was: Conductor T. Griffiths, W.T.Ware, D.L. Ware, E. Evans, A.O. Griffiths, D. Clifford, D.A. Evans, R. Reynolds, S. Thomas, C. Thomas, T. Williams, F. Cole, I. Davies, E.J. Evans, B.Griffiths, E. Lewis, E. Richards, S.B. Evans, L. Davies, S.F.K. Rees, T.E. Griffiths, E. Llewellyn, E. Davies, E. Hopkins, B. Davies. The Band was very successful in competitions, their greatest success being placed first at Bridgend of eighteen bands in 1894. Many will remember their triumphal march through the crowded streets of Aberavon on their return. Two of the members left for the Ministry, and others left the district. This depletion caused the Band to disband. In 1894 it came fifth in a brass band contest at Porth, conducted by Mr. Thomas Griffiths.

Founded in 1908 for the older members of the Sunday school. Mr. Bussey gave money to buy instruments. Mr Roberts of Willenhall was the Conductor assisted by Mr. Orme. As many of the members came from musical families rapid progress was made and they first led the "march round" for the Sunday School Anniversary in May 1909 and played for the afternoon service. Later, they performed at garden parties and on Sunday evenings in Hickman Park as well as leading the march on Civic Sunday and for High Street Sunday School Anniversary. Each year at Christmas time they raised about £30 and this was used to finance charitable events including a breakfast for 350 poor children, tea and entertainment for 350 elderly people and a half day trip into the countryside for 150 of the poorest children. In 1912 they took part in a band contest at the Crystal Palace but did not do well. Sadly by 1915 so many members had joined the army or navy that the band was forced to cease.

Blackrod Brass Band - Lancashire

Formed in 1872 as Blackrod Good Templar's Band it changed its name to Blackrod Public Subscription Band within a few years. Conductor John Brown in 1880, Thomas Wheelwright in 1892. Known as Blackrod Temperance Band in the early 1880s. It held its rehearsals in the building that was the Old Grammar School and is nowadays used as Council Offices. Each member then paid an entrance fee of 5 shillings and a weekly subscription of 1 shilling. Eventually it was decided to enter for contests, and in consequence it was necessary for a professional conductor to be engaged to ensure that the correct training was given to the band. Many conductors held this very important position, Messrs. Durham, Wheelwright, Rutter, Peatfield, Fairhurst and Pollard coming readily to mind. Several prizes were won during this period, but a first prize eluded them. During 1913 a new set of instruments was purchased at a cost of £378, and shortly afterwards a set of new uniforms was obtained at a cost of approximately £114. It will be realised that this sum was very heavy expenditure in those days, and the band are worthy of congratulations for the courage that was shown, especially when it is known that they only had the sum of £90 available. Members of the band, however, loaned money and borrowed the remainder. This effort was supported by the free services rendered by the officials and bandsmen for six years until they were clear of the debt. Mr Percy Bullough, who was appointed bandmaster in 1907, became conductor in 1918 [a bandmaster, usually a player in the band, was deputy to the conductor and fulfilled rehearsals or engagements that the conductor could not. Most modern bands still have a bandmaster]. It was decided to compete in contests again, and soon the patience and enthusiasm shown over the years was crowned with glory, for the band won their first, first prize at Haydock. A story told about the band was that it was not uncommon for the bandsmen to have to be summoned from the Scot Lane Inn to start the village parade or either the field day. One bandsman who was the worst for drink sat down on a wall with his bass and overbalanced landing in a garden with the instrument on top of him! One claim to fame is that the professional tenor John Mitchinson made one of his first public performances with them. They disbanded in the early 1960s

Blagdon Brass Band - Somerset

Formed in the 1920s. It is said to have played on Friendly Society Whitsun Walks - the Buffaloes, the Oddfellows and the Foresters were local societies. The Postmaster Wilf or Frank Light was one of the players. The instruments were possibly given by Lord Winterstoke, who was keen on self improvement for the villagers. A disused cottage in the centre of the village was used for storage (and possibly for practice). During WW2 this cottage was used by the Home Guard and they were going to revive the band, but the instruments, having been unused for a long time were unplayable. It is thought that a sousaphone accompanied the 'Victorian Carol Party' round the village some 40-50 years ago.

Bloxham Temperance Band - Oxfordshire

Active in 1892. Still active in 1907. Contemporary with the Old Band and the Church Band. Also known as Bloxham Mission Brass Band. Joseph Rogers was a cornet player in the band at the time of his death in August 1894, the band playing his favourite march "Bright Crowns" at his funeral. Bandmaster H. Eagles in 1902-1907. They wore a subdued costume of navy blue set off with facings of black. The bandsmen had all 'signed the pledge', and smoking also was barred. During the 1900s, when all three Bloxham bands were in existence, piracy crept into the picture to an alarming degree. If one band bought new music, the others immediately wrote to the publishers for the identical selection. The Chapel Band baffled their opponents by cutting off the headings and substituting a number for each sheet of music. At the weekly practice the bandmaster would announce: 'Next Sunday we'll play up with 21 and 35 on the green, and come back with 7'. The system appeared fool-proof, until one Sunday evening when the band set off from the village green, the big-drummer giving his five traditional bangs; only a few steps had been taken before the onlookers were standing with mouths wide open. There was an interesting three-cornered counterpoint between the trombone, the rest of the band and the bandmaster's cornet. Confusion became complete as each of the three parties blew harder, in order to drown, if possible, the appalling noise. Finally they all gave up the unequal struggle; the trombone ceased to play No. 71 while the bandmaster played No. 17 and the rest of the band No. 70. The occupations of the players shortly before WW1 were: Bandmaster - Head gardener; Cornets (6) - Tailor, groom, two farm workers and two lads; Tenor Horns (3) - Cowman, farm worker and lad; Trombones (2) - Railway signalman and gardener; Euphonium - Cowman; Basses (2) - Baker and blacksmith; Circular Bass - baker's son; Big and Side Drums - Baker and baker's lad; Triangle - Schoolboy.

Bold Miners' Welfare Band - St Helens, Lancashire

Formed around 1970 and folded around 1990. Thought to be the last miners band on the Lancashire coal field. A lot of their music was inherited from the earlier Clock Face Colliery Band. A report from "Coal Face", in June 1979, states: "Band 'Babes' Cut Their Contest Teeth. Brass competition 'babes' who have collected their first trophy after even years are aiming to follow the lead of another Western Area band bidding for top prizes. Musicians in St, Helens' Bold Colliery Band made their trophy-winning debut at Workington, Cumbria. "It's the breakthrough they've been looking for," says Admin. Officer, Frank Kenyon.

Music loving Frank took action when Clock Face Colliery closed some years ago and their instruments became available. he thought it would be a pity if the band tradition died and decided to re-form them at Bold and they are now one of the North West's last surviving colliery bands. Bold bandsmen were helped in their re-birth by CISWO who transferred the old Clock Face instruments and by pitmen like now-retired training officer Jack Wildman;. "It was very hard work but we now have a full sized 24-string band with plenty of reserve players as well." says Frank Kenyon. Pianist Frank, who got his taste for the sound of brass from his father who used to take him to hear the former Bickershaw Colliery Band as a boy, adds: "We give free performances for any coal industry function we are invited to and always play at the paraplegics sports at Blackpool. "Some of the lads have even appeared on TV during a scene from the Liver Birds but of course our big ambition is to win at the NCB finals at the Mining Weekend. The band give free tuition for any youngster who fancies the chance to blow his own trumpet, miner's children especially being welcome."

The Colonel was a great lover of music and when the regiment was disbanded soon after the Napoleonic war he kept the band on at a cost of over £1,000 a year to himself. The regiment was reformed in 1819 and the band once again became the regimental band. Colonel Fletcher died in 1832 and the regiment was taken over by the Earl of Ellesmere. Sometime around 1850 the regimental headquarters were moved to Worsley and the band had converted to all brass. They had disbanded by 1884.

Bolton Temperance Band - Lancashire

In 1902 the authorities at Queen Street Mission conceived the idea that their open air meetings on Sunday evenings in Idle Street (now Central Street) would be more effective with the aid of a band. A band was therefore formed, or rather a number of Mission Lads and men were assembled, taking the name Queen Street Mission Band. The hero, the late Mr J. Ashworth, surveyed them. Not one of the 24 could read a note of music, not one of them could play an instrument. His job was to make them into a brass band, and it is a tribute to his patience and ability that he was able to do it. He produced a band which ranks amongst the best in the town, and which has won many prizes. After six months tuition they had two hymns and two marches in their repertoire, one of the marches was aptly called 'Now or Never'. They won numerous local titles and were at their most successful during the early and mid 1920's. It was renamed Bolton Temperance Band around the mid 1920s. The band possibly disbanded sometime during the 1940's. According to Charlie Taylor of Tyldesley Band, who used to play sometimes with the Temperance Band, they used to rehearse on Sundays in a pub in Bolton Town Centre. They turned up to rehearsal one Sunday, to be told by the landlord that the pub was shutting. They had a quick chat amongst themselves and turned round to Charlie and announced 'that if the pub was going then they'd go as well' and that was the rather abrupt end of the Bolton Temperance Band. This happened around 1952. This coincides nicely with the formation of the Bolton Public Band, which started up around this time [?].

Bonchester Brass - Bonchester Bridge, Roxburghshire

In spring 2010 Christine Weigold from Bonchester Bridge in the Scottish Borders thought it would be a good idea to start a local brass band in a large rural area with no musical outlet for youth for miles in all directions. After forming a small committee Bonchester Brass was born. It was with great disappointment that Bonchester Brass discovered that the major Brass Band governing body in Scotland 'SBBA' were unable to offer any financial help whatsoever to newly formed Brass Bands. Musical Director John Kirk remembered that in his youth he visited the Sunderland Empire in the early 1980's to see James Shepherd 'Versatile Brass' and remembered a funnel routine. He had also taken his mouthpiece on holiday building his own plastic funnel instruments to keep his practice up without having to take his bulky Brass instrument on vacation. As Bonchester Brass had no funds to buy instruments it was decided that Funneloniums would have to do! A local plastics firm from kindly supplied colourful plastic tubing and a kind donation allowed the purchase of many plastic mouthpieces. The bands plan was to start a musical club for kids where they would build their own instruments learning the basics of note production in a fun way and eventually take up a Brass instrument (by which time the financial situation would have been resolved). Several instrument building workshops were held, in village halls, outdoor festivals and even in pubs to spot adult talent. Throughout 2010 Bonchester Brass continually made headlines in local press for its colourful and exciting appearances in the public eye. The efforts of Bonchester Brass was recognized by a lottery funded scheme 'people making waves' and by September 2010 funding was in place for a full set of brass instruments. Stand banners had been custom designed as a sponsorship from a local textile firm and a schools recruitment program about to initiate. It was still a steep hill however. The local Brass instrument tutor would not encourage any of his pupils to try out the new band, and other financial pressures meant that Bonchester Brass was loosing momentum and it was with great regret that the band folded just prior to its first intake of young students. The thousands awarded to the band graciously and kindly were handed back. A sad day for the children of Rulewater. The most exciting thing to come from Bonchester Brass however was the 'Funnelonium Experience'. To see the excitement as people enthusiastically created their own instrument, learned to play, then take part in a collective musical parade together, all within the space of an hour on average. The majority of which had no prior musical experience. that was and still is the true success of Bonchester Brass.

Boots Plaisance Band - Nottingham, Nottinghamshire

Established 1906. Jesse Boot was keen to promote music making and musical appreciation amongst company employees, and within Nottingham generally. In 1906, when a campaign was launched to restore the Albert Hall, Jesse Boot offered to spend £5,000 on a new organ, on condition that the organist provided popular recitals every Saturday afternoon with a fair number of seats not exceeding 3d each. Jesse Boot funded the organist's salary for three years. At Plaisance, the Boot family's summer house, employees were invited to afternoon entertainments, with music, dancing, athletics, swimming, and in the evenings sometimes fireworks. Jesse Boot provided a set of instruments for the use of an employees' band, and the Plaisance Band was formed. The band's first conductor and founder was William Hames. Florence Boot chose the uniforms - Lincoln Green, light green collar and cuffs, and silver braid. Jesse Boot arranged for the band to be coached by a professional conductor, Mr Alex Owen, and in June 1908 the band made its first venture into competitions at Lincoln. In 1909 the band won first prize in the Junior Cup section in the National Brass Band contest at Crystal Palace. Reformed after the First World War and affiliated to the Scout Movement, known as Boots Silver Band, or 42nd (Boots) Silver Band, the band had the honour of being the first civilian band to play on Wellington Barracks Square. Conductor R.B. Mills in 1935. During the 1930s it disbanded and some players went on to form the Beacon Silver Band,

The Bradbury Boys' Brass Band performed many concerts. The following gives some idea on how busy they were throughout the school year: On the 26 March 1969 a brass band concert included pieces by Haydn, Brahms and Offenbach. On the 11 July 1969 a musical evening featured a cello solo by Peter Carney, a tenor horn solo Bist du bei mir by J S Bach performed by Richard Hagon, and a cornet duet by John Hawker and Peter Henstock, with musical director Margaret Bailey. 17 Dec 1969. A Christmas brass band concert featured a clarinet solo by Peter Waters, euphonium solo by Philip Young and songs by the first and third year pupils. On the 18 March 1970 a brass band concert featured a clarinet solo by Peter Waters, a cornet solo by John Hawker and a euphonium solo by Philip Young. In April 1970, the brass band went to Seaton in South Devon to perform in several venues: the Memorial Hall, Colyford, Seaton Methodist Church, Woodroffe School, Lyme Regis, and Cross Road Community Centre in Seaton. The boys camped out in a local field which was enjoyable but a bit chilly at times! On 18 April 1970 the band took part in the Heaton Mersey Music Festival. On the 8 July 1970 an end of term concert featured solos by Peter Waters, Philip Young and a clarinet trio by Peter Waters, Richard Hagon and Robert Reid. The band were eternally grateful for the time and effort put in by Margaret Bailey (music teacher), Charles Holt (band tutor), and Mr Lincoln (band tutor) who made the musical life at school so enjoyable.

Bradshaw Brass Band - Bolton, Lancashire

Originally started as a drum and fife band in 1856 by the Church Lad's Brigade, some of these lads who had fostered a true love of music broke away in 1862 and formed a brass band. Leader Robert Unsworth, conductor Mr Nuttall, in 1862. Bandmaster Jesse Gost in 1871, Mr Monk in 1880, William Smith in 1883. They were renowned for their colourful uniforms throughout the life of the band. Initially they wanted a uniform to make themselves stand out from the other local bands and help them gain engagements, but due to a lack of funds they used their resourcefulness and clothed themselves in flannel trousers and straw hats. In 1906 they decided to change their uniforms and after great deliberation they decided on the uniform of the Mercantile Marine, they clung on to this until 1930. The band then chose a Scarlet and Blue uniform which they kept until they disbanded in 1954. Although they never won any major trophies, they seem to have had a very good and friendly atmosphere in the band. A concert in August 1880 was: Gainsborough, Worthy is the Lamb, Marion, Macbeth, Scotch Airs, Hail Memory Hail.

Bramley Brass Band - Yorkshire (West Riding)

Formed in 1828 as a reed band by Edward Hesling, a farm-man, consisting of 14 players. It reorganised in 1836 as a full brass band, with John Whitley as bandmaster. Known as Bramley Temperance Brass Band in 1847. Was reputedly the first temperance brass band to be established in England. Competed in the British Open in 1853. By 1859 the temperance element of the band had presumably lapsed as they had earned the nickname of "Bramley Beer and Bacca Band". Conductor J. Jackson in 1860. Entry in 1866 directory: "Widely celebrated for its musical skill although composed mainly of working men". Leader was Meek Hesling during the 1870s and early 1880s. Conductor A. Thrippleton in 1887. It opened its new band room in Tower Street, Bramley in August 1894. It amalgamated with Bramley Model Band, under the conductor Samuel Hesling White, in 1898. W. Lupton played soprano cornet in 1904. The band thrived through the early part of the 20th century, but folded around 1936. The uniforms and instruments were sold, but the Band Club (or Band 'Ole) continues today although, sadly, the medals and trophies which were on display there were later stolen and never traced. A successor band, Bramley and District Subscription Band, was formed after WW2. Brassington Brass Band - Derbyshire

Active in 1865. The village had had a band at least since the celebrations for George III's coronation in 1761, and probably for very much longer. Inter-war photographs show the bandsmen, sometimes in uniform, with peaked caps, sometimes not, leading parades through the village. They played at all the outdoor events. The Village Hall committee's accounts, for instance, show a payment to "Brassington Silver Band" of £3-10-0d for playing at the Wakes in August 1946. They appear regularly thereafter for similar fees - by 1950 it had risen to £5 for the Wakes parade. The band, however, was short of bodies. It found it hard to find enough players to lead a parade or take on a concert and in 1964 amalgamated with the Wirksworth and Middleton bands to form the BMW band, practising at Wirksworth.

Briercliffe Brass Band (2) - Lancashire

Formed in 1866, with twenty members, obtaining a new set of instruments. In 1867 the secretary was J. Atkinson, and the leader Mr Bannister. For some years the band was known as the Haggate Brass Band and its members included Mr. John Foster, a noted solo euphonium player. Joshua Kippax played trombone in 1871. Conductor John Banks in 1877-1878, Mr Whitaker in 1891, T. Greenwood in 1895. Rehearsals began in a room at Finnymoore Foot, near Walverden, and the members were self-taught. All of them were singers, some being members of the Haggate Baptist choir. The first bandmaster on record was Robert Bannister, and after three or four years existence the band entered its first contest at Hollingworth, with the test pieces of the "Hallelujah Chorus" and "Kyrie" and "Gloria." Their performance was so creditable that they won the fourth prize of £5 and a soprano cornet. T. Greenwood was a member and treasurer for 24 years until his death, aged 42, in March 1891. Robert Halstead secretary in 1894. From 1902 the membership dwindled, and the band became practically extinct, but about 1906 it was revived. It folded in 1936. Members in 1925 included: Albert Proctor (conductor), H. Proctor, W. Cunliffe, E. Kippax, T. Hargreaves, H. Sagar, Mr Waterworth, H. Stuttard, John Atkinson, F. Thwaites, C. Beatty, Mr Holmes, J. Sanderson, W. Smith, T. Hartley, H. Penrose, Mr Clark, J. Kay, A. Bailey, E. Howarth, J. Robinson, Leslie France, J. Haslam, Mr Astin and V. Robinson. Brigg Town Brass Band - Lincolnshire

Active in the early 1920s. Won the Midlands Brass Band Festival in 1931. In the mid 1930s there was a reversal of fortunes from which the band did not recover for nearly 30 years. The long period of stagnation, including the war years, led to almost collapse, but revival in 1964 met with enthusiastic support from bandsmen and public alike. Within a few months they were confident enough to be entered for the bottom section of the Belle Vue Spring Contest, coming 8th out of 18 entrants. Also known as Brigg Town Silver Band. By 1966 they were good enough to be entered for the World Music Contest at Kerkrade, Holland. A visit that was repeated in 1970, winning 2nd class awards in competition with some of the best bands in the world. Another 5 years and they were knocking on the door of the 2nd Section, National Grading and even Section one was thought to be within reach, which would have put them in competition with the best bands in the country. Sadly that was not to be. The fortunes of brass bands have invariably gone in cycles and Brigg was no exception. Just as they reached their peak in the late 1870s, winning Radio Humberside Band of the year three years in a row. In the early 1980s there was a real crisis. Friction between some players led to leaving the Brigg band and joining other local ones. Others followed leaving it in a sorry state. How could it have still survived to be still playing in 1991! It did just but finally it folded in December 2008.

Brislington Brass Band - Somerset

Brislington is now a suburb of Bristol, but was formerly a rural village in North Somerset, which did not come fully into the Bristol Boundary until 1933. The Brislington Brass Band [usually known as "Tom Weymouth's Band"] was founded around 1860, or slightly earlier. Tom Weymouth was the bandmaster in the 1860s and was also landlord of 'The Pilgrim Inn' located at Hollywood Road. Brislington, it still stands today. Tom Weymouth took over the pub in 1862, and ran it, and the band until the 1890s, when both were taken over by his son also Tom. The band flourished until the 1910s, but Tom Jnr continued to run the Pilgrim until 1933. The band played at all local events, and there are local diaries from the 1860s noting that they went from house to house at Christmas and New Year's Eve. Notably they began the village celebrations for the Royal Wedding of the Princess of Wales [later Edward V11 and Queen Alexandra] in 1863, by playing at the top of the tower of the parish church of St Luke's. They also played regularly at Bristol Zoo, at some time, and played at the opening of Clifton Suspension Bridge in Bristol in 1864. It is also believed that the Band played when the Keynsham [a near neighbour village] Mummers performed in Brislington. When Brislington's first public park [King Edward VII's Pleasure Grounds] was opened in 1903 a band stand was presented by Miss Annette Clayfield-Ireland, sister of Alfred Clayfield-Ireland the 'Squire of Brislington' of Brislington Hall. Sadly both park and bandstand have long since been covered by modern housing.

Bronwydd and Llysnewydd Brass Band - Carmarthenshire

An account from 1st July 1895 - the day the railway opened between Newcastle Emlyn and Llandysul. "The whole town turned out to welcome the opening of the railway. Schoolchildren were given a day's holiday and an organising committee had been hard at work making all the arrangements for the historic day. Shortly before 10 am the town's schoolchildren all wearing rosettes and flowers marched in procession to the station headed by the Bronwydd and Llysnewydd Brass Band. There they boarded three special excursion trains of 12 carriages each for a return trip to Llandysul. According to the report in the Tivyside, saloon carriages were provided for the teachers and members of the organising committee. On the return of the excursion trains nearly 2,000 children and adults sat down to tea in the Market Hall. During the afternoon the band played through the streets and everything "wore a most festive appearance."

Originally formed as the Blackhall Youth Band by Albert Haswell in 1971 to teach young people to play brass and percussion instruments. Many successes included two major youth awards at the International Music Festival held in Rastede, Germany. The gradually brought in more senior players to enable younger players to benefit from their experience and expertise. In 1982 sponsorship was obtained from the American Oil Company A.M.O.C.O., which lasted until 1987. Following this, sponsorship was obtained from Broughtons Ltd, the Rolls Royce and Bentley distributors based in Cheltenham. Also at this time, it relocated in 1987 to South Hetton Community Centre, a building converted from the offices of the recently closed South Hetton Colliery. The band amalgamated with Hetton Silver Band in 2009 to form the Durham Miners Association Brass Band. The Blackhall Youth Brass Band still continues

Formed in 1905. Conductor Peter Brown in 1909. Joined S.A.B.B.A. in 1911 and entered the Scottish third section in 1912. In 1913 they competed in the Scottish third section championship and came joint first with Penicuik, Penicuik held the trophy for the first 6 months and Buckhaven for the last six months. A run of good results came to a halt as the first world war began and suspended contesting until 1918. On 1st December 1917, 4 contests commenced, all of which were for charity, returning bands to contesting, Buckhaven were awarded prizes for best soprano, best tenor horn and best baritone. On 13th December 1919 Buckhaven were promoted to second section after a joint third place at the Scottish championships, then competed in the second section championships on the 20th and took 4th place with only one point separating the first four bands. By 1925 a fourth section was introduced because of ever rising numbers of bands and regional qualifying competitions meant that the top 5 east and west bands were to compete against each other at the Scottish championships for grading (Buckhaven were third and Wellesley Colliery were fourth in the east). In the 1927 second section championships Buckhaven won, and for the first time the association presented 25 bronze medals to the winners along with best instrumentalist Buckhaven's solo euphonium, to top it all off they were promoted to the championship section where they stayed for eight years. In 1937

they returned to the second section and the Second World War put contesting into limbo until 1945. On the 15th October 1945 Buckhaven launched into the Scottish championships and took 2nd place and until the 1950s Buckhaven were in and out of competition after the retirement of Charles Terris. They then started annual visits to the C.I.S.W.O. championships in Blackpool. They amalgamated with Wellesley Colliery Band in 1976 to form the Buckhaven and Methil Miners Band

Burry Port Town Band (1) - Carmarthenshire

Originally formed as Elliotts Smelting Works Band in 1896. It quickly established itself playing at local fetes and marches, raising money for both itself and worthy causes. One such example was a march for the destitute and unemployed people of Kidwelly, which raised about £8, a considerable amount of money at the turn of the century. Conductor Rufus Fletcher in 1899. The lifeblood for most bands is on the competing stage and this was as important in the 1920's as it is today. In those days the band had to make it's own way to contest venues by train. It was fortunate that the band's rehearsal room was in the Neptune buildings adjacent to the station. Just before the outbreak of the Second World War the bands' fortunes took a turn for the worse and they disbanded. Elliott's Smelting Works were originally founded as Elkington & Mason's Copper Smelting Works before being taken over by the Selly Oak based Elliott's company. A successor band was formed in 1972.

C.W.S. (Manchester) Band - Manchester, Lancashire

Formed in 1900 as the CWS Tobacco Factory Band, changed to CWS (Manchester) Band in 1937. It became the City of Manchester Band in 1985, finally disbanding in 1993. A group of workers from the CWS Tobacco Factory in Manchester got together to form a band in 1900, one which quickly made a name for itself on the concert and contest circuit. In September 1901 Mr J C Cragg, the manager of the CWS tobacco factory, built the ad hoc band of his employees, stumped up £300 for some second hand instruments and made himself bandmaster. In 1931 the old Tobacco Band, conducted by J. A. Greenwood was awarded first prize at the Grand Shield Competition at the Crystal Palace. In 1946 the directors of the CWS changed its name to the CWS (Manchester) Band. In 1947 Fred Roberts from Brighouse and Rastrick was offered the position of Bandmaster alongside their new professional conductor Eric Ball. In December 1947, at the age of seventeen, Derek Garside was invited from Brighouse and Rastrick to be the Principal Cornet at CWS - a position he was to hold with distinction for the next 25 years. The first major success the new band had was at the British Open Championships at Belle Vue in 1948. In the Centenary British Open Championships of 1952 under the baton of Eric Ball, they were awarded the title of British Open Champions for the second time playing the Henry Geehl test piece 'Scena Sinfonica'. Alex Mortimer was appointed as Musical Director in 1954. Between 1947 and 1970 they took part in the British Open Championships in the Kings Hall, Belle Vue on 18 occasions and won it 4 times and were placed on 12 occasions. They took part in the Daily Herald National Brass Band Finals in London practically every year following their contest successes as North West Area Champions in 1955, 1957, 1958, 1960, 1961 and 1962, which saw them crowned champions for the sixth time in eight years, also registering the area's first senior class of hat trick wins. With the exception of 1961 when they were led to victory by their bandmaster Tom White, they were conducted by Alex Mortimer. In addition they were runners-up at six area championship contests and placed sixth in 1970 in the World Championships. Prior to competing in the 1962 National Finals they had already collected 5 second prizes and 3 third prizes in twelve appearances at the senior finals. In the eight Edinburgh International Festival contests the band entered, they took 4 first prizes, 4 second prizes and, with the exception of 1953 when they were conducted by Jack Atherton, they were conducted by Eric Ball (1949/50/51/52) and Alex Mortimer (1954/55/56). The band took part in the National Festival Concert at the Royal Albert Hall in 1955, 1957, 1958, 1960, 1961, 1968 and 1969. The band finally achieved their long awaited crowning glory on Saturday, 20th October 1962 when they won the Daily Herald National Brass Band Championships at the Royal Albert Hall with Musical Director, Alex Mortimer, playing Frank Wright's arrangement of Verdi's 'Force of Destiny'. A performance which is still talked about today - forty years on... An achievement they went on to repeat the following year in 1963 playing 'Belmont Variations' by Sir Arthur Bliss. The band toured throughout the United Kingdom and went on numerous continental tours, including Canada in June/July 1972 with Fairey Aviation Band, Black Dyke Mills Band and G.U.S. (Footwear) Band. Owing to Alex Mortimer's continuing ill health he was unable to go on this tour which meant Derek Garside

the band's Resident Conductor then became Musical Director and took charge of the band on that tour. A few months prior to Derek's appointment the band had once again qualified for the national finals under the direction of what was to be Alex Mortimer's last appearance on stage at an area contest. Although Derek led the band through that summer it was 'Mort' who had found sufficient strength and determination to lead them for just one more time at the Royal Albert Hall playing Eric Ball's test piece 'A Kensington Overture' off number three but the results showed that it was not to be their year. In 1973 Derek led the band to qualification at the North West Area contest, ensuring they took part in the national finals once again. This was a memorable occasion for Derek on what was his first appearance at the Royal Albert Hall as Musical Director, leading them to second place behind B and R. Under Derek's direction the band did well and was awarded first place in both 1975 and again in 1976 at the North West Area Finals - Derek had announced in advance of this performance that he would be leaving the band after the London finals. He was followed by Trevor Walmsley DFC as the last full time Musical Director of the band, followed by Frank Renton with Stan Whiteman as the Resident Bandmaster. Shortly before Frank arrived to take up the reins Maurice Handford the former Principal Horn player from the Halle Orchestra and Orchestral conductor took them for a short while. On Sunday, 3rd April 1977, at the Preston Guild Hall, conducted by Trevor Walmsley DFC the band could only manage third place at the North West Area Contest, which ended a run of twenty four successive appearances at the national finals in London. In 1985 the C.W.S. Board of Directors decided that a brass band was not the image the Co-op wished to promote in the future and made the decision the band would cease to exist - for the record the last appearance of the band was at Dobcross Band Club on 31 March 1985, following which all instruments, music and uniforms were handed back to the company. Much of the band memorabilia is still stored in CWS's New Century House, Manchester (including the library of music). Manchester City Council then took over the band which was renamed The City of Manchester Band, which finally folded in March 1993. The school was open in Caerleon from 1859 to 1902, the musical reputation of the school in Caerleon and in Newport was high. In 1878 there were 24 boys in the regular band who could "play moderately difficult music at sight besides a number of learners coming in". the headmaster, Harding's salary was increased in 1885 on account of the extra tuition given by him in drill to the band. He was also given permission to hold a concert in support of the band funds. The services of the band were in much demand locally, in 1880 the Caerleon Cricket and Football Club requested the presence of the band at their annual sports. A similar request came in 1887 from the organizers of the Caerleon Flower Show, and in 1888 the band proudly accompanied the demonstration of the Sunday Schools Union in Newport on the Whitsun Monday. In June 1884 the Mayor of Newport, accompanied by Captain Thurston and Lieutenant Jones of the 3rd Welsh Regiment, heard the band. Their opinion was that "The boys' band is one of the best I have heard for a very long time and they are a credit to the Guardians". Conductor T. Harding in 1890

Active in the early 1880s. Still active in 1884. A professional brass band of 15 musicians associated with Callender's Consolidated Spectacular Coloured American Minstrels Show (which arose from Haverley's Genuine Coloured Minstrels), which toured England during that period.

Callender's Cable Works Band - Erith, Kent

Formed in 1898 as the Belvedere Baptist Temperance Band. This arose when some members of the Belvedere Salvation Army Band were given an ultimatum to cease playing their favourite march "Now or Never", which was a secular piece, or leave. They left and formed the Baptist Band, with J. Maycock as Bandmaster. They soon amalgamated with the Belvedere Military Band and were then renamed the Belvedere Excelsior Brass Band, still with Maycock as bandmaster and E.H. Alder as conductor. Secretary Mr Harris in 1902. In 1907 the entire membership was working for Callender's and they sought and won sponsorship from the company. The band was at its height in the 1920s with three second places in the National Championships and the British Open, together with several recordings and many broadcasts which maintained the high profile of the band through the Second World War. When Callender's Cable and Construction Company merged with British Insulated Cables in 1945 to form British Insulated Callender's Cables, the band became the BICC Band. The band was still honouring commitments to play for the BBC in December 1960 when the following month BICC decided to close down the band. When it disbanded, its library was purchased by the current Haydock Band, the players retained their instruments and the bandroom at the works was eventually bulldozed to the ground. Competed in the Crystal Palace Championships in the 1930s. Took part in a contest in Cambridge Guildhall in 1925 which it won to great excitement. "There was a furore of applause from the large audience present, and the bandsmen themselves momentarily lost their heads in their enthusiasm. The dignity of the large hall, which had rung for well nigh two hours with the blare of brass instruments was quite forgotten. Hats were thrown high into the air and trombones and cornets waved to delighted friends among the audience."

Cambusbarron Brass Band - Stirlingshire

Formed 1882, could not contest for the first five years due to lack of proper instruments. In 1886 a subscription sale on Art Union principles realised £190 which enabled them to purchase the necessary instruments. John Millar was solo cornet in 1892. In October 1896 the tweed mills of Hayford and Parkvale at Cambusbarron closed. Most of the village depended on the mills for employment and the band was "scattered". However it survived and was still active in the 1900s, presumed to have folded by WW1. Bandmaster William Hastie appointed in 1903. The band, at the Alloa contest in May 1894, consisted of: James Jenkins (conductor, 1st cornet), W. Pollock (soprano), J. Bryce (solo cornet), J. Craig (repiano cornet), J. Bateman (2nd cornet), J. Coupar (3rd cornet), R. Craig (1st flugel), A. Camelon Brass Band - Stirlingshire

It was formed in 1832 as a more sophisticated form of a Flute Band which had been formed in 1830 mainly at the instigation of Robert Smith. The Smiths had a long and distinguished association with the Band. The father maintained his connection for forty years and his son Robert was leader of the Band for about forty years and was closely connected with it for over fifty. On Friday 10th November 1907 a presentation was made in The Victoria Inn when Robert Smith was presented with a long service gold medal and a gold albert to mark his 52 years with the Band. In the Falkirk Mail of 16th November a poem appeared entitled "Auld Camelon Band", of which the first verse is: "There's Auld Camelon Band they're aye tae the fore; They started wi' flutes in the year '34, If you had only heard them their music you'd adore, ~ For always their number was less than a score, their auld flutes ha'e been turned into brass~ Three cheers tae the friends that gave them the cash, For we've all joined together to gi'e them a hand, and try and make good members tae the auld Camelon Band." The original founder had four sons all of whom played in the Band despite the fact only one of them, presumably Robert, could read music, he whistled the tunes and the others picked them up from this. Each of the sons had nicknames which were "Whip," "Radical," "Bit' and "8oosey." The latter name did not derive from an addiction to strong drink, but from the owner's predilection for musical instruments made by the famous London manufacturer of instruments of that name. In the programme for a Bazaar held at the beginning of the century to raise funds for the Band there is a brief sketch of the Band's history from which the following is an extract. "The chief industry of the village at that time was Nailmaking, and the Nailers, whatever other virtues and vices they possessed, could not be accused of closefistedness. To a man they assisted their musical brethren to accomplish their purpose. Out of their comparatively slender earnings they contributed so liberally that in a short time the Band was furnished with all the instruments then considered necessary, namely, Keyed Bugles, French Horns, Trumpets, Trombones, Ophicleide, and a bass instrument called "The Serpent." All these instruments, if we except the Trombone, are now obsolete." The band was still active in 1913, and also in 1928, conducted by George Smith. Possibly folded in the early 1950s. A breakaway band was formed in the early 1890s by Charlie Wright, called the Wright Memorial Band.

Cammell and Company's Works Brass Band - Workington, Cumberland

Founded in 1891, based at the iron and steel works

Cammell Laird Band - Birkenhead, Cheshire

Formed 1957, disbanded 1972. Originally conducted by Rex Mortimer, then James Scott, it gained success in contests through the 1960s, but was abruptly disbanded by the company in 1972. Tim Mutum recorded: The Cammell Laird Works Band was originally a combination of brass and reed. It was based in Birkenhead and all the players were employed by the ship building and ship repairing company of that name. Not surprisingly, it was formed to provide music for what is always the proudest moment of a shipyard's life, the launching of a newly built vessel. The band dates from 1957 but whether that was the year of its formation or when it went all brass is not clear. However, in 1958 Rex Mortimer became musical director in addition to his main role with Fodens Band. In that year they entered their first competition, at Blackpool, and were placed a respectable seventh. In 1959 the band secured the Fourth Section North West title, going on to win the National title itself in London. The start of a remarkable ascent to the very top echelons of British banding had begun. In 1960 James Scott, then principal cornetist at Munn and Felton's Band, was appointed bandmaster. James was at the peak of his playing career so this appointment was surprising. James says that he felt the time was right. In the spring of 1960 a letter arrived from the managing director of Cammell Laird asking if he would be interested in moving to become the musical director of the band. After a great deal of thought - it was a gamble with no guarantee of success - he decided to take the plunge, as his desire to conduct had to be met at some stage. He moved back north where he began what was to become a successful conducting career and, at the same time, gained valuable experience as a trumpet player with the major northern symphony orchestras. The first few months were not the success James Scott had hoped. The band was in the Third Section when he first joined them as bandmaster and Rex Mortimer was still professional conductor - James still thinks of it as his apprenticeship into the world of conducting. Rex stayed a couple years and then it was left to James and gradually they began to improve. In 1961 the band won both the Second Section North West Area and repeated their 1959 success by winning the National title in London too. Within four years the band had reached the Championship Section. James Scott attributed the success that followed to the fact that the membership of the band remained stable throughout the mid 1960s, with the exception of a couple of policemen who moved on through their police work. The band was a team. The band won the Championship Section North West Area for the first time in 1964 and James Scott led them to their first appearance in the National Finals later that year. Drawn 24th and last band to play on Gilbert Vinter's 'Variations on a Ninth' they played far beyond their expectations and took 4th place. A year later, they repeated their North West victory, going onto London where they were runners-up behind Fairey. Further visits to the National Championships in London followed, as the band added two further runner up placings in Blackpool plus a third in subsequent years. In 1966 they were again placed fourth, and although they failed to gain a place in the 1967 and did not qualify in 1968, in 1969 James Scott led them to sixth place. The band's final visit to the Royal Albert Hall was in 1970 after they won the North West Area for a third and final time. Despite the diluted field of rivals due to the World Championships, the band could not finish in the prizes. It was their last appearance at a major contest. The band's appearances at the British Open started in 1962 and ended in 1966 without them ever getting a mention in the prizes. By the early 1970s shipbuilding was in decline and the band's future became uncertain. In April 1972 it was tersely announced that the band had been closed down, the instruments and uniforms called in and future engagements cancelled. A few years later James Scott had this to say, "The firm didn't realise what they'd got - they were Philistines. Shipbuilding began to decline and they finished the band - said they couldn't afford to run it. It was very sad". Campden Town Band - Chipping Campden, Gloucestershire

Active in 1853 through to the 1890s. Conductor Thomas Warner in 1866, W. Warner in 1888. James Walter (Jim) Pymment was the Foreman of the Guild of Handicraft Woodworking Shop and a good organiser. The Guild arrived in 1902, and Jim Pymment took over the leadership of the Band in 1903, using the School of Arts and Crafts lecture hall at Elm Tree House for practices and being warmly thanked in the end of Session reports for his attention and assistance. There is a photo of the band larking about in the garden of Elm Tree House at band practice. The Town Band was awarded First Prize for brass bands at the Madresfield Musical Competition in May, 1904. At the annual dinner in July, it was reported that an instrument fund was established and that monies gained from playing about the town most Saturdays was being collected to enable the Band to go to hear a Band contest at Crystal Palace in September. In 1905 the bandsmen were outfitted in new military style uniforms. The band continued into the 1920/30's, even though the musicians were not all Campdonians. It probably disbanded towards the end of the 1930s. Bandsmen in 1904 were: James Walter (Jimmy) Pymment (Band leader, Senior Guildsman, since 1894, Foreman of the Wood shop); Charley Downer (Guildsman since 1898, Metal Worker and blacksmith); Bill Thornton (Guildsman since 1894, Metal Worker and blacksmith); Arthur Pymment (son of Jim Pymment); Algernon Hathaway (Morris man, killed in 1915 at Dardanelles); Fred Hathaway (Morris man, elder brother of Algernon); Dennis Hathaway (leader of Morris men, eldest brother of Fred and Algernon); Bill Aston; Charley Aston; Frank Bennett; Fred Bennett (Stonemason); Noah Bennett; Jacky Webb; Charley Grove; Bill Harris; Fred Taylor; Gran Huckfield; Arthur Ernest Bunten (Guildsman since 1902, cabinet maker, played the lead cornet, half-brother of Jim Pymment); Charley Veale. Camperdown Linen Works Band - Lochee, Dundee, Angus

Active in the early 1870s. Still active in the early 1900s. Conductor R.H. Warren in 1876. It was re-organised in 1881, after support from the works dwindled, with a new committee (president James C. Cox, vice president Baillie Perrie, treasurer W.M. Ogilvie, secretary Alexander Elliott) and renamed the Lochee Operative Brass Band, with Andrew Johnstone as the conductor - who was still at the helm in 1891-1896. It seems to have reverted to Camperdown Brass Band. In 1884 the members had managed to obtain their own instruments and the band became the Lochee Trades Instrumental Band, or Lochee Brass Band. Still maintained association with the Jute Works. The Camperdown Works at one point employed almost 6,000 workers and was, for a time, the world's largest jute works. W. Greig was trombone player in 1895. A concert programme in July 1893 consisted of: The Bonnie Lass of Ballochmyle (Maddock), Lyric Gems of Scotland (Maddock), Lily Queen (Metcalf), Irish Erin (Metcalf), St Andrew (H. Round), Daisy Dell (Metcalf). A concert programme in June 1895 consisted of: Goodbye Sweetheart Goodbye (J.L. Hatton), Nelson (A. Johnston), Lyric Gems of Scotland (W. Canvey Subscription Band - Essex

Formed in 1934, through the generosity of a local farmer, Mr Chambers, who lent money for instruments and uniforms. Mr Mackay was the conductor, and an early engagement was the Canvey carnival of 1936. The outbreak of war in 1939 brought a halt to the band's progress, but it reformed in 1946. The next few years saw a number of engagements, including an appearance with the Rayleigh Band at Fielders holiday camp, and a regular Sunday afternoon booking on the bandstand outside the Monico hotel on the Canvey seafront. Mr Mackay passed the baton to Bill Scott (euphonium), who would apparently get rather carried away with his conducting and break into song! The Canvey floods of 1953 brought a halt to the band's progress - music from the rehearsal room at the Green Glades Cafe was seen floating on the flood waters and band members (and instruments) were evacuated all over Essex.

Carlton Temperance Band - near Rothwell, Yorkshire (West Riding)

A newspaper report from around 1908: "Carlton Temperance Prize Band came into existence in 1895, starting with a mixed set of instruments. In the course of two or three years these were abandoned, a new set of Besson instruments being purchased. Soon after the band began to enter competitions. At Stanningley, in 1904, when ten bands competed, a third prize was gained and W. Shillito (baritone player) won a medal. In 1905 a couple of firsts were annexed at Woodkirk. In 1906 the band faced twenty-one competitors at Ilkley. Here a fifth prize was won. Numerous other prizes then came its way, including a fourth prize at the Crystal Palace. The two succeeding years were most successful. Last year, when Mr. William Heap, who also conducts the Nazebottom Band, was appointed conductor, the "wins" included: At Ilkley, second prize and diploma; Lofthouse, third prize; Castleford, two second prizes; Batley, first prize, cup, and four special prizes; Morley, first prize and cup, also second prize in a march contest; Lofthouse Park, first prize, also first prize in march contest. Mr. Alfred Newton is the bandmaster, and I have the authority of the secretary, Mr. Walter Speake, for saying that before playing in the Carlton Temperance Band every man has to be a staunch teetotaler, a restriction which, of course, in no way impairs, but on the contrary adds to, the general efficiency of the band. The majority of the players are colliers, being employed in the coal mines owned by Messrs. Charlesworth." Still active in the 1930s

Castletown Rechabite Band - Isle of Man

Took part in the celebrations for Queen Victoria's coronation in 1838, "At 11 o'clock, the members of the Independent Order of Rechabites (who celebrated their anniversary on this occasion), with the children of the various Sunday-schools of the town and neighbourhood to the number of about 1,000, assembled at the green, and walked in procession, accompanied by the Rechabite Band, to St. Mary's Church. The Rechabites retired to the Tent, at the Schoolhouse, where a plentiful supply of tea, buns, and beef, was provided; after partaking of it, the band and a few of the members again walked through some of the streets." Rechabite bands were formed in the Isle of Man very soon after the introduction of the Order of Rechabite, and no small part of the minute-books of the Order is taken up with purchases of instruments and arrangements for training adult and juvenile musicians. A Manx band took part in a great demonstration in Liverpool in 1839.

The Band then had a Band Room in the upper storey of the coach house at the Spencer Arms. It was well established by 1920 when it featured prominently in "Cawthorne Hospital Sunday", a musical festival in aid of Barnsley Beckett Hospital. The conductor at this time was W. Rusby. By the late 1940's after briefly disbanding during the war years, the Band was well established. Its conductor then was Ken Wood, who conducted the Band for many years and composed and arranged a great deal of music for the Band. Throughout the 1950's the Band was to be seen regularly at village events and by 1959 it was able to acquire its first set of uniforms. It was a set of uniforms obtained second hand from Dodworth Band. It disbanded in 1961.

Chelford Brass Band - Cheshire

Active in 1877, conductor Samuel Clark

Chelmondiston Gospel Band - Suffolk

Active from 1966-1980 with mainly Methodist band members only one of whom could play a note when they started. The inspiration for the band came from David Welham who taught himself to play the trumpet after buying one for his son. He gathered together several willing volunteers including a David Cordle, currently Chairman of the Chelmondiston Parish Council. The twelve strong band used to practice in the Methodist Schoolroom on instruments begged or borrowed from various sources. Their uniforms were cast offs from a brass band near Peterborough and their first music books were a set of SA Tune Books. Yet within a short time they were accompanying the hymns at the Chelmondiston Methodist Church and later played at all the services. Like a true village band they provided the music for harvest festivals, Christmas carol services and Remembrance Sunday event, Not content with supporting their own local village events they bought an old bus and travelled around the area conducting services sometimes in the open air. Sadly the band broke up after a management disagreement.

Cherry Orchard Road Brass Band - Croydon, Surrey

Active in 1903, conductor F. Crouch

Cherry Orton Brass Band - Peterborough, Northamptonshire

Active in the mid-1890s to the early 1900s. One bandmaster was Boss Pauley, owner of a wheelwright and undertaking business, who taught a number of local youths to play various instruments. This band was kitted out in a heavy uniform with silver braiding, and was much in demand throughout the district for various functions. Practice would take place in the wheelwright's shop on winter nights just lit by one or two oil lamps, and warmed by the dying embers of the forge. When the bandsmen complained that it was too cold for their fingers to feel the stops of their instruments, Boss Pauley would say, 'Alright Abide With Me and then bugger off'. The bandsman who beat the large drum was a larger short rotund figure who had difficulty seeing over his drum. He was once seen marching down Bridge Street alone, unaware that the rest of the band had turned down Albert Place. It folded some time in the 1930s

Chesham Brass Band (2) - Buckinghamshire

Active from 1881. Conductor W. Spratley in 1884-1890, Mr Gomm in 1900, William Greenwood in the early 1900s. The band had, by 1907, become a Silver band. The next 20 years were surely the band's heyday; they were much in demand for shows, fetes, open air dances, and indeed, almost any gathering in the town and district. They entered competitions in Aylesbury, High Wycombe and Reading, where cups and medals for excellence were won, hence the word 'prize' being added to their title. (More information can be found in a chapter of "Tales of Old Chesham" by George Piggin, ISBN 0 948929 70 7). Records of the band from 1912-35 are held by the Centre for Buckinghamshire Studies, Aylesbury. Memories of Herbert Wingrove who has lived in Chesham for over 80 years - he remembers the band playing at major events in the town, in Lowndes Park and in the Broadway on Saturday afternoons when the Salvation Army were not playing there. The players were all male and had a smart uniform with peaked caps. They led the crowd at every football match and were a vital part of Chesham. Sydney McDonald was the conductor and a Mr Reading played the Last Post on the cornet at the Remembrance Day services. Herbert said he contributed to collections towards the upkeep of the band. They must have had 20 or 30 beautiful silver instruments of which none remain. Roderick John Macdonnell born 1876 died 1967, was bandmaster and/or conductor. He originally played and taught the cornet. He worked in a cycle factory and then the boot and shoe industry until he was 73, then he worked at Sundt plastics until his death. He studied music and played the cornet in various brass and silver bands. He taught music as an extra income, and his pupils included Harry Mortimer. He had to stop playing when he had dentures, instead became a conductor and bandmaster. Played in and conducted the Chesham Town Silver Prize Band from 1914 until his death. It is presumed to have folded prior to or during WW2. [Further information - see: Fletcher, Keith - The Chesham Town Band: a brief history - 2008]

Cheslyn Hay Star Band - Staffordshire

Formed before 1883 and was conducted by Mr Teddy Turner, the landlord of the White Lion on Chapel Square. This did not last long and some of the remaining members formed the Cheslyn Hay Victoria Brass Band in 1883.

Cheslyn Hay Victoria Brass Band - Staffordshire

Formed in 1883 by Mr Joseph Kingston together with three of his brothers. Teddy Turner from the Star Band was the conductor but it was only when he relinquished his position in favour of Joseph Kingston that the Victoria became established as a first class village band. With the decline of the Cannock Town Band it soon became the leading band in the district and consequently was in great demand at all the village and town festivals. At the Christmas Festive Season they would parade around the village playing the carol tunes composed by Cornelius Whitehouse but their fame also extended to the outer areas of the Chase, appearing at Brewood, Wheaton Aston and Shareshill. By now, as the old members left the band there was no difficulty in recruiting new volunteers and the band continued to progress under Mr Kingston's leadership until, on account of his advancing years, he was obliged to lay down the baton. Mr Thomas Holcroft then became conductor and the high standards of their performances were maintained until the First World War. It was during the period between the two wars that the band seemed destined for great honours. They strengthened their membership and engaged the services of a full time conductor in the personage of Mr Hart of Wolverhampton and a late member of the famous 'Bess o' the Barn Band'. Under his conductorship they were successful in gaining several awards of merit and the band took on the name of the Cheslyn Hay Prize

Band. The progress did not last, however, for Mr Hart found a more lucrative position in the same capacity in Wolverhampton and from that time onwards the band gradually declined until it finally broke up some time before WW2. Reference from 1903 - "The Victoria Brass Band will play selections of music at the workhouse this Saturday afternoon. The inmates are sure to have a treat." Joseph Kingston started work at Wyrley Colliery when he was ten years old in 1866. Joseph retired in 1919 after working fifty-three years and he died in 1936.

Chiddingly Brass Band - Sussex

Formed in the 1890s and active through to WW2. Jim Coleman was the bandmaster in the 1930s. A member of the band remembered: "I joined the band when I was twelve. Practised the cornet in somebody's house. We used to be about 23 in the band then. We used to go to Tunbridge Wells and the Crystal Palace for contests. We could always get a second, but we could never get a first! Then after the War, Uckfield started up a band and they bought all the instruments. One thing from the old days was the Flower Show. It was so outstanding. You had a large marquee up in the field, with the Chiddingly Brass Band in attendance. I don't expect there are many brass bands where the drummer would go along with his pipe resting on top of his drum!"

Chilsworthy Brass Band - Cornwall

Active in 1860. An article in the Cornish Times of 1863 reads "CHILSWORTH BRASS BAND. The members of the Chilsworthy and Latchley "Brass Band" respectfully beg to inform the public generally, that they are now open to treat with all parties for further engagements, and having selected suitable music for all occasions, arranged by some of the best men of the day, (the same, being under the management of J.C.PURTOX, Esq, Plymouth), they hope as hitherto to give satisfaction to their employers. Applications to be made to MR W STENLAKE, Chilsworthy, Gunnislake, Calstock." A photograph of the 1907 band shows a well balanced band of 15 players. A non contesting band, the village of Chilsworthy can be found 2/3 miles west of Tavistock, near the Cornwall/Devon border. This is not to be confused with the Devon village of Chilsworthy. In 1860 the band was present at a ceremony known as "hunting the stag", which consists of carrying the efigy of a man known to have violated the sanctity of a neighbour's household. John Bodenner (a member of the band) and Richard Piper had a bare-knuckle fight over some girls, egged on by a crowd of over 200 people. Sadly, Bodenner was knocked to the ground and fatally injured after nearly two hours of battle.

Clare Brass Band - Suffolk

Active in 1854, taking part in the celebrations on the consecration of the South Suffolk Freemasons Lodge. Still active in the 1920s. On May 25th 1861 when the first news came through that the railway was soon to connect Clare with Sudbury and Cambridge. "The band paraded the streets and a huge bonfire of old tar barrels and sugar hogsheads was ignited and burnt in profusion". Possibly not a true brass band but a band nevertheless. Two months later the band were out again when "on receiving intelligence of the decision of the Committee of the House of Lords in favour of the Eastern Counties Railway Bill on Saturday night, the town was in quite a commotion, the band was mustered in ten minutes and the streets resounded to "see the conquering heroes come" the bells also pealed to welcome the joyous news". Note that "The Band was mustered in ten minutes". They were probably all in the same place - the local pub! On July 11th 1862, the paper celebrates the news that; "On Saturday last, the village of Cavendish (next village to Clare) was aroused from its usual quietness by the turning of the first sod of the new railway line from Clare to Sudbury on the Cavendish Hall estate. The Clare Band was engaged and at 3 o'clock workmen belonging to Mr Garrett formed a procession carrying flags and banners and headed by the band marched through the village to the ground where a great number of the leading families of the neighbourhood was assembled. The ceremony was performed by Miss Yellowly, nearly 100 persons sat down to luncheon provided by Mr Bear of the Rose and Crown Inn at Clare, the band played selected numbers of popular music, the chairman, Mr Ilinchcliffe proposed the health of the Queen and the band played the National Anthem followed by Rule Britannia". A Mr Lee was prosecuted at Clare Petty Sessions for fishing without permission. Charges were also laid against several other people who said they had angled in the river for 30 years or more. The fishing case occasioned great excitement in the town and a subscription has been raised to defray costs for the defence. In the evening a large bonfire was lit on the Market Hill and the band paraded to celebrate. In January 1921 the Clare Brass Band was present at the unveiling of the war memorial at Belchamp Otten. The Clare Brass Band also played at the unveiling of the Clare war memorial by Col Sir Courtenay Warner in October 1921 The band at this time was conducted by a Mr Alfred Lawson a retired army musician. In 1911, Alfred Melville Lawson age 59, and born in Woolwich was a retired musician, and lived with his wife at Clopton Hall, Poslingford. In 1911, he was an orchestral musician, living in Lewisham with his wife and brother. In 1881 he was a soldier in 1st Life Guards at the Cavalry Barracks at New Windsor, Berkshire.

Active in the early 1850s. Still active in 1925. Secretary J.C. Hallworth in 1877. On the 4th September 1882 the 30th Annual Brass Band Contest took place at the Belle Vue Gardens in Manchester. Of the 30 bands entered there was only 18 that put in an appearance one of which was the Clayton le Moors Rifle Volunteers Brass Band ~ this was their Greatest Achievement. The music required to play was a selection from "Il Seraglio" by Mozart which was arranged expressly for the occasion by Mr Charles Godfrey, the bandmaster of the Royal Horse Guards and the scores of which were supplied to the contesting bands, six weeks ago. The proceedings lasted over six hours. Several bands exhibited great ability, but on the whole, there was a falling off in the excellency of the playing. The first prize of £30 went to Clayton le moors Rifle Volunteers, surprising really when you hear the story ~ not only that they all received a gold medal each value of £3 but was presented an electro-plated "Echo" cornet of the value of £22. Ned Holditch was the principle cornet player and conductor of the Band. He coached the band for the Belle Vue contest and as was usual in those days they engaged Mr Alex Owen of Bessie of the Barn conductor. When they got to Belle Vue, Ned warned all the bandsmen to keep away from the marquees containing the bars and then they could easily win the contest. Apparently Ned's advice didn't apply to himself because when he went onto the platform to play the contest piece, Mr Owen accused Ned of being drunk of which he didn't deny the statement but told the conductor just before they started that the band would win and he would also collect the solo cornet prize. His predictions proved correct and Ned won a Silver Cornet trophy for first prize. When the band arrived back at Rishton they wanted to show off their "winnings" and sent round to Ned's for the prize he had won. He replied by sending back the pawn brokers ticket ~ for he had "hocked" in prize at "Uncles" and used the proceeds to get drunk. [Edward "Ned" Holditch was born Edwin Henry Holdship in Portsmouth, 1847]. Thomas Wilkinson had been a member of the band for 50 years at the time of his death in 1903. Conductor C. Clevedon Silver Band - Somerset Formed in the 1870s as the 5th Gloucestershire Royal Artillery Band, then known as Clevedon Brass Band. Conductor F. Hedges in 1880. It entered a contest in Windsor Park in 1881 and played to commemorate the jubilee of Queen Victoria in 1887. Renamed Clevedon Silver Band in 1905, under the baton of Mr Fred Ware, it competed at the Crystal Palace in the 1930s. From the "Clevedon Mercury" c.1925, "The Clevedon Band, under the baton of Mr F Mogg, played a varied and well-chosen programme. Although small in number they are effective and have a sound idea of the qualities requisite to render brass music pleasingly. They were heard to the best advantage in what were the most difficult items in their repertoire. The soloists played with true regard to phrasing, and gave a fine interpretation of the various songs. Mr Mogg, the conductor, was excellent in his rendering of 'Alas! Those chimes' on the cornet. The obligato passages were played with unusual restraint and feeling, the ensemble being perfect. The balance was perfectly maintained and the expression fully sustained but not unduly stressed. Mr Mogg has the band well under control, getting an instant response to his baton and he is to be congratulated on his work". The band folded at the start of WW2.

The object of the school was "to save lads from the streets when driven to them by the loss or misconduct of their parents, to give them a handicraft and to train them in honest principles". The brass band was under instructor Henry Miles, and 2 members of it had enlisted for the Band of the Scots Fusiliers and 1 for the Rifles Band. The Annual Report in April 1884 gave details of the activities of the school and a summary of the last 3 years. The average number of boys was 210 and during 1883 47 had been admitted. 10 were of the 1st class, 15 of the 2nd, 1 of the 3rd, 9 of the 4th and 3 transferred from other schools. Only 3 could read and write above the 2nd standard. Altogether over the 3 previous years 143 boys had been discharged. Situations had been found for 78 of these. 70 of them were doing well, 2 had been convicted, 1 was doubtful, 4 could not be trusted and 1 had died. 17 had been returned to friends. Of these 13 were doing well, 2 had been convicted and 2 could not be traced. 14 had gone to sea. Of these 12 were doing well. 1 had been convicted and 1 had died. 28 had emigrated. This was to Canada and situations were found for them by an agent. Of these 27 were doing well, 1 was doubtful. 5 had been discharged on account of disease. Of these 4 were doing well, 1 unknown. 1 had enlisted and was doing well.

Founded in July 1860 by Mr William Eyre (conductor) and his brother Joseph. Conductor Jabez Langton in 1894, J. Sharpe in 1900. It was for many years the only source of entertainment (apart from the annual wakes) in Codnor, and right royally they enlivened the village with their stirring music. The various chapels could always rely on the band on anniversary days to lead processions in the village and elsewhere, and at Christmas they would play hymns in front of the big house at Hall Farm. They also had a high reputation when they competed in numerous contests and won many prizes. It was at the height of its fame around 1905. Weekly practices were held at the Miner's Arms, the band-master and conductor being Mr William Eyre for a number of years. The band ultimately merged with the Butterfly Colliery Ambulance Band some time after 1918.

Collinson's Brass Band - Preston, Lancashire

Active in the 1840 and 1850s. In 1845 "the Oddfellows of the Pleasant Retreat Lodge met at the Exchange Rooms where a portion of the excellent Collinson's Band played". In January 1846 a fund raising tea party was held in the Exchange Rooms in aid of St. Ignatius's Boy's Schools. "Tea being over, the rooms were cleared for dancing and promenading. The band (Collinson's) strikes up, and a thousand twinkling feet are in motion, dancing without cessation, in every mood and measure". In June that year some 2,000 persons attended an afternoon's wrestling at the rear of the Dog and Partridge on Friargate. "Collinson's Brass Band was on the ground enlivening the assemblage with favourite airs in their best style". They played at a processing at Garstang in 1849, together with the Chipping Band. In August 1850 "Collinson's Band, together with the National School Band, walked in procession with some 1,570 workpeople employed by Horrocks, Miller and Co, as they made their way to Maudland Station to travel to Blackpool. On arriving at Blackpool the holidaymakers walked in procession, accompanied by the two bands, to the beach where, in addition to having donkey rides and suchlike, a considerable number of lads and lasses enjoyed a merry dance on to the lively strains of Collinson's Band".

Roy; BBb Bass: J. Goldie, D. Crookston; Secretary: David Fraser. Report from the Motherwell Times, Friday 14th. June 1901: "The New Masonic Halls - Laying the Memorial Stone. The procession which was marshalled at the Town Hall by Brother W. McKean, Provincial Grand Marshal, and which was the largest Masonic gathering ever seen in Motherwell, marched by the way of Clyde Street, Merry Street, Dalziel Street, Coursington Street, Park Street, Crosshill Street, Brandon Street and Muir Street to the Halls in Hope Street. The procession which was accompanied by Coltness Iron Works Band was witnessed by large crowds all along the route. When the front of the procession arrived at the building the ranks opened up to allow the Provincial Grand Officials to pass through, and to take up their position near the stone.Three cheers were then given, and the choir gave a spirited rendering of the "Hallelujah Chorus", after which corn was sprinkled on the stone, and the oil and wine was poured over it. The Coltness band then struck up the "Mason's Anthem" and other three cheers were given.....The ceremony concluded with the playing of the "Mason's Anthem", by the band, after which the Provincial Grand Officers returned to the platform, where they were greeted with three cheers by the brethren. Everyone joined in the rendering of "Rule Britannia", at the close of which the assemblage was photographed for the "Hamilton Herald" Supplement, by Mr. T. Johnston, photographer, Camp Street. Thereafter the company was again arranged in processional order, and proceeded by way of Muir Street, Milton Street, Calder Street, and Merry Street to the Town Hall, where the Lodge was closed in due form. The bands which accompanied the procession were the Coltness Silver Band, and the Motherwell Town Silver Band both of which more than maintained their reputation for first class music. Report from Livingstone, 17th September 1904: - The next item of importance was the laying of the Memorial Stone of the Public Library in Clyde Street. On this occasion there was a joint Lodge of St. John Dalzell, No. 406, and Lodge Livingstone St. Andrew, No. 573, with Brother Alexander Findlay, M.P., M.M. Lodge Irvine St. Andrews, No. 149, acting as Right Worshipful Master. The Office-bearers were selected from the R.W.M.s., P.M.s, Wardens and Brethren of both Lodges. The Brethren met in the Lodge-room, then paraded the principal streets (headed by the Motherwell Silver Band and Coltness Silver Band) In September, 1937, the 1st Bonkle Scout Troop celebrated its 25th anniversary. On Sunday a special "All Scout" service was held in the Scout Hut grounds. Neighbouring companies of Scouts and Guides paraded with the Bonkle companies. The address was given by the Rev. George Fraser, MA, Stoneyburn, a former minister of the church who was the first Scoutmaster of the troop. The praise was led by the Coltness Silver Band.

Combs Brass Band - Suffolk

Founded in 1893, it was made up of employees of Webb and Sons (Combs Tannery) and of men living in the village of Combs; it existed for over half a century until it was disbanded in the mid 1950's. In 1885 the Tannery employed 150 persons. There were five Williams brothers in the band and when Frank Williams got married the band presented him with a silver teapot. Conductor was R.J. Vince in 1894-1900, B. Vince in 1904. The band, in February 1895, consisted of J.V. Webb, president; G.W. Portway, vice-president; A.H. Wallis, treasurer, J.R. Goodall, auditor, R.J. Vince, bandmaster, E.W. Crooks, secretary; and twenty bandsmen - and it was reported that all wood instruments (apart from piccolo) had been replaced with brass. There were 91 practices in 1894, with an average attendance of 18½ out of 21 members. The Band disbanded in 1953, the Bandmaster at that time was a Mr. Maurice Laflin The instruments were stored in a cupboard or shed and were later discovered in the 60's. They were then refurbished and loaned to the Stowmarket Schools Band, (later the Stowmarket Concert Band)

Comrades of the Great War Brass Band -
A good number of "Comrades of the Great War Bands" were formed following the end of WW1. These were, in the main, fairly transient groups, mainly brought together to show solidarity at civic and remembrance occasions. A few lasted into the 1920s. The members of these bands gradually picked up with the reforming and new brass bands once life began to get back to normal.

Connah's Quay Silver Band - Chester, Cheshire

Formed in March 1894 (though it does appear to have been active "newly formed" in September 1893). Its first secretary was T.H. Haswell (headmaster of St Ethelwold's School, Shotton) and the first conductor was John Griffiths of Buckley (formerly a member of the Flintshire Militia Band). The band played in early May 1894 to welcome John Rowden Freme back to Connahs Quay for his 21st birthday when he would come in to his inheritance of Wepre Hall and Estate and so become squire of Connahs Quay. Secretary J.P Carter and treasurer T. Mathias in 1895. The 1 July 1911 edition of the Chester Chronicle reported: "The participants assembled near Mollington Post Office at 12.30 precisely. The Rev. J.M. New formed them into a procession and they marched to the spot (on Townfield Lane) where the tree was to be planted. In advance came the Connah's Quay Silver Prize Band, and after the band walked Mrs and Miss Olive Frost (of Mollington Hall) followed by Parish Councillors wearing rosettes of white ribbon. Next came the festivities committees wearing their badges, then the children of the parishes carrying Union Jacks, and at the rear the residents." Amalgamated with the John Summers and Sons Steelworks Band in 1972 to form the new Deeside Silver Band.

Constantine Brass Band - Cornwall

Formed in 1848, shortly after the 'Wheal Vyvyan Mine' was opened. The first mention of a band in Constantine was in the Falmouth Packet and Cornwall Advertiser dated 18th July 1857. Around 1887 the band had a change of name, being referred to as The Volunteer Band. The explanation of this name appears quite simple, after the episode with Russia in the Crimea and the trouble with India at the time of the mutiny, it was decided the army might serve overseas in increasing numbers and that the army at home should be bolstered by a reserve force, many of whom played in the band. By 1908, after the formation of the Territorial Army, the Volunteer Band once again became Constantine Band. It is believed that when the Great War broke out the band became involved with the Territorials and joined them. When the war ended they once again reverted back to Constantine Band, and they were back in business playing at local functions like Regattas and Traditional Tea Treats. They disbanded sometime later. A successor band was formed in 1977

Coppull Subscription Band - Lancashire

Formed in 1888 and merged in 2005 with the Standish Band to form the Coppull and Standing Band. Bandmaster in 1908 was Thomas Fishwick. An anecdote from the memoirs of William Halliwell, as related by Alan Littlemore: Mr Halliwell had a special affection for the Coppull Subscription Band, and one of his favourite stories (which he included in his memoirs 'Sixty Years with Brass Bands') concerns a certain Frank Smallshaw, who was for some time euphonium player with Coppull. Mr Smallshaw who was a native of Crawford village, near Uppholland, interested himself in brass bands as a young man, and he played with various bands in the Wigan district. On going to live in Coppull his services were soon requisitioned by the local band, and in September, 1901, he won a gold medal for euphonium playing at a Darwen contest, beating the then famous Herbert Scott of the Besses o' th' Barn Band, and other equally well known. Now let me quote the personal account of this gold medal exploit of Mr Smallshaw from Mr Halliwell's memoirs. "An incident with an interesting sequel stands out clearly and pleasantly in my memories of Coppull Subscription Band's contesting efforts in 1901. The band had been successful in several in several minor contests, and decided to enter a contest at Darwen. This entry was considered to be a too ambitious venture of them, because brass bands bordering on the top class frequently completed there. Mr Richard Stead, a famous euphonium player of the Meltham Mills Band, was appointed judge. The test piece was H Round's "Songs of England", and included the "Pilgrim of Love" song as a euphonium solo. This solo was normally rather outside the scope of the band's solo euphonium player Frank Smallshaw - but he was a trier. Smallshaw could do quite well in the dashing music of marches, quadrilles and waltzes, but a beautifully quiet sentimental song, requiring a smooth, flexible, quiet tone, with delicate articulation was rather beyond his normal capacity as a player. The bands success depended on him, and in order to improve the quality of his playing I adopted the unusual method of securing from Smallshaw a pledge that during private practice, or with the band, he would play the solo very, very quietly until I gave him leave to open out and play freely. Smallshaw's quiet play mystified his fellow bandsmen, and he had to face up to some bitter criticism and gibes from them,' Mr Halliwell goes on to relate, 'but he loyally kept his pledge to me. When the ban was lifted Smallshaw was a new man as far as that solo was concerned. At the contest he played beautifully, and Mr Richard Stead referred to his performance in the following words: "Euphonium cadenza a very artistic performance. Andante moderato...soloist plays beautifully, and with excellent taste - not overdone and Mr Stead awarded Smallshaw the medal for the best euphonium solo." "The sequel to this event", Mr Halliwell adds in telling the story, "was that Smallshaw brought the medal to me and said, 'Here Mr Halliwell, this is your medal, not mine.' Of course, I refused it and expressed a hope that we should win some more medals to keep it company. Smallshaw's reply was startling, 'There'll be no more - not for me - I'm stoppin' while I'm a good un.' And so Smallshaw went into honourable retirement from brass band contesting. Years later he visited the Belle Vue Championship Contest, and I had the opportunity of indulging a gentle "leg pull" by enquiring for the other medals." Competed in the Junior Shield in 1962, conducted by R. Evans.

Band officers in 1907 were: president Henry Witty, secretary C.E. Naylor, assistant secretary J. Wilson, conductor W. Brocklesby, vice president Fred Ennis, treasurer Rev. A.J. Agard Butler, committee: Roberts Smith, A. Harvey, A.B. Moorby, H.W. Holmes, H. Evans, H. Withers and William Thompson. Later known as Cottingham Prize Silver Band, then reverted to Cottingham Band. In 1895 it was reported that "the band has come to a standstill. It requires re-organising, and thus placed on a sound basis. Of late the instruments appear to have fallen into the hands of outsiders, who have been on begging expeditions". Its records c.1900-1996, are held in the East Riding of Yorkshire Archives and Local Studies Service

Cowling Temperance Band - Yorkshire (West Riding)

Formed in 1896 and folded around 1954. Later known as Cowling Public Brass Band. Tom Snowden, trombone, was a founder member, and later M.P. for Accrington. Bandmaster A. Bradley in the 1900s. The bandroom was in the local recreation ground and had a cast iron coke stove to supply the heating, early arrivals sitting around the stove smoking their pipes and chewing twist, hearing a sizzle as they spit onto the stove! Willie Smith, was conductor following the demise of Arthur Bradley. The band rehearsed standing around a circular music stand., with the conductor in the middle. During the summer months the whole circular music stand was taken outside into the recreation ground for rehearsals, quite a task. Dick Waddington, a local tailor, and a horn player in the band made a full set of uniforms for the band, which were blue with silver braiding. Following their disbanding the bandroom became home of Cowling Youth Club. The band did not contest between 1943 and its demise. Kenneth Smith was a member from 1945 to 1954, and his father and two grandfathers played in the band, and appear in a photograph of 1926. An article from the "Craven Herald" 1st July 1932. - "Mr. John Smith of no. 9 Middleton, Cowling, on Saturday attained his 84th birthday, which was celebrated by a gathering at his home by members of his family and friends. He also developed a liking for instrumental music, and became a well-known cornet player and brass band conductor. He was the solo cornet player in the first Cowling Brass Band, which had its headquarters in Winkholme. There are now only two surviving members of this band, Mr. John Smith and Mr. Edward Smith of Summerhouse Farm. The conductor of this band was Mr. Simm Redman, also a noted musician in his day. During his residence in Lothersdale, Mr. Smith formed a Brass Band, of which he was conductor, and on returning to Cowling also formed the present Cowling Temperance Brass Band, which he served as conductor for many years. From early youth Mr. Smith has possessed a remarkable facility for music writing. In the old days he often copied out parts for choirs when printed copies were too expensive to buy, and has done much work in the way of transposing music for brass bands. Some years ago he published a book of hymn-tunes, containing a collection of tunes which he had composed during his life, and this publication has been much in demand. Brass Bands in many parts of the country have played his hymn tunes, and he has had many letters of appreciation of his music, including some from abroad. The first of these tunes called "The Green" was composed on the village green at Cowling Hill when he was 20, and the last, appropriately named "Eventide", he wrote at the age of 80. He gave many of his tunes attractive titles derived from local place names, such as "Cowling", "Wood House", "Scar View", "West View", and "Gill Top".

Cranham Brass Band - Gloucestershire

Active in 1871. Extracts from MR J D Birchall's Diary referring to a Cranham band (Mr Birchall was one of the two Lords of the Manor to the village he lived nearby at Bowden Hall in Upton St Leonards). "April 7th 1874 (Tuesday) - Invited 180 school children to tea and an entertainment in the grounds nothing could be more successful we obtained the service of the Cranham band. We had incalculable quantities of cake and bread and butter. (Cranham children were included)". "December 26th 1874 (Saturday) - Most Brilliant day we had the Cranham band to enliven us whilst we skated." Active in 1895, conducted by Mr Gilbanks. From a village memoir: "Mr Clash one time publican at the Black Horse in the 1920's. His band used to provide music for the regular dances held at the Institute in the village. The instruments were stored in his garage. However on one occasion a fight broke out and the instruments were used as weapons of war, most were so twisted or damaged that it was the end of the band, and thereafter bands from outside the village had to be brought in." There has been a regular feast in Cranham for very early times. Since before the First World War the feast became associated with the Holloway Society. The marching brass bands that accompanied the boundary beaters usually came from surrounding villages. This marching was later reduced and became a march through the village playing at stops on the way to the church for a service. Slowly this is a feature that has been lost due to the difficulty of getting a marching band. Today the Salvation Army band just comes to play at the service.

It can trace its origins back to the middle of the nineteenth-century and it is quite possible that it functioned before then. It was active in 1862. Its fortunes were somewhat sporadic and lapsed, probably around the Great War. For most of the inter war period it was headquartered at the King's Arms and used the Inn for practice. In those days the bandmaster was Mr J Bennellick. It was subsidised by a small grant from the Urban District Council and in return they were required to play at a certain number of events each year. They gave regular concerts in Newcombes Meadow roughly where the St. Boniface Statue now stands. In the 1930s there were rows of wooden seats built into the hillside. Ron Hamlin remembers that it was a very cold spot, and some evenings they would play to an audience that consisted purely of one or two friends and relatives of the Band. They also used to play in the High Street and each year lead the Carnival and Armistice Day processions. It experienced a great revival in the 1930s, when it became the tradition for the band to play at the April Great Market when drovers brought their cattle into the High Street for sale. In 1950 players started to go to other bands, and there was bad feeling among the members. The minutes for a meeting in 1954 record that: "The bandmaster Mr S W Setter thanked the Band for their support in the past and expressed the hope for renewed enthusiasm and full practices in the future. Without good practices the Band can do nothing, with such a small party we must be all in". In fact the Band continued until 1963 but with very limited support. A successor band was formed in 1983.

He gave up 2 evenings a week and a Sunday afternoon for band practice. Highly successful, the band won many prizes in festivals and competitions. Still active in 1935

Crossley's Carpet Works Band - Halifax, Yorkshire (West Riding)

Formed in 1950, wound up in 1969. Records of the band 1950-1969 held in Halifax Public Library. Tim Mutum recorded: The origins of the band date back to December 1949 when fifteen workers at the Crossley factory near Halifax and two others, provided the music for the firm's works carol service. From that nucleus the band quickly became established aided by generous support from the company, winning its first contest in 1951 - the Fourth Section Area contest.

Like many a band it secured a quality conductor, this time in the shape of John Harrison who joined in 1952, and who became the driving force behind the band's subsequent successes. Harrison had conducted Brighouse and Rastrick although he was only musical director for a year, whilst his major playing success had been with Cresswell Colliery where he played cornet and soprano. He left Crossley in 1955 but returned in 1958. During the 1960s he continued to conduct Crossley until its demise, and from 1964, was also professional conductor for a time at Cory, commuting from Halifax. There was to be no further lower section Area titles for the band, but promotion through the sections meant that by 1953 they were competing in the Championship Section against the likes of Black Dyke and Brighouse. In 1955 Crossley Carpet Works Band were competing in the Nationals at the Royal Albert Hall, courtesy of coming runner up at the Yorkshire Area. Harrison, having left earlier in the year after the Area success, Willie Wood took them to the Final. It was the sign that the band had arrived in the 'big time', and help retain. Their new found status quality players such as Bernard Bygraves, previously of Brighouse and Black Dyke (and Ferodo as mentioned previously) were persuaded to join. Eventually, this led to a large reduction in the number of players employed by Crossleys, and by the early 1960s only about 20% of the band were employed by the company. Crossley was now a force in Yorkshire, coming third at the Area in 1959 and 1961, winning the title in 1962 and coming runner up in 1964. They were placed third at the Nationals in 1961, and in 1962 went one better finishing second to CWS (Manchester), beaten only by one of the truly great contest winning performances on Verdi's overture 'The Force of Destiny'. Their last appearance at London in 1964 saw them drawn 16 on 'Variations on a Ninth' - coming out of the prizes. Their first appearance at the British Open came in 1956, although the band had failed to win the Grand Shield in the previous few years. The 'one off' appearance under Willie Wood saw them finish out of the prizes, but they returned in 1962 (following their Area win) and were placed fourth. The band continued to appear at Belle Vue until 1968, but never again came in the prizes. By 1969 the band had ceased contesting. It was overdrawn at the bank by £1,000 and only a few of the players worked for Crossleys. Furthermore, the parent - company at that time was in critical talks for a merger with a major rival. In its edition of 28th June 1969, British Bandsman reported that the band had been wound up by the directors who, through company press officer Willa Mooje, also stated that it was not company policy to create work for musicians. Crowborough Beacon Brass Band - Sussex

Active from the early 1890s to the late 1950s. Conductor A. Smith and S.H. Simmonds in 1902. It won the silver challenge cup won at the Southern Counties contest at Dorking in 1908, conductor, Mr Tommy Briggs. The bandsmen at that time were L Walters, G Stiller, A Arnold, E Berry, W Mackellow, A Jacques, A Smith, W Bassett, A Stiller, E Piper, E Brooks, F Standen, C Smith, T Brooks, A Mackellow, P Mackellow, A Staples, B Blackford, G Smith, S Pollington, and bandmaster A Smith. The band had to leave for home before the final results were announced. When they reached Crowborough, a message was waiting for them. They had won first prize in the selection class and had placed third in the march section against competition from 13 other bands. Not bad for amateur musicians. Their prizes, a challenge cup, a cornet, and medals for each of the bandsmen, arrived by train a week or two later to the applause of a large crowd of supporters. Mrs Bowen, the wife of the band's president, presented the prizes at a ceremony at Crowborough cricket ground on Monday, June 22. During the evening the band played the contest test pieces, a selection of songs by Handel, and a march, "The Life Guards", by J Jubb. Mr Bowen told the applauding audience that Sir Arthur Conan Doyle and Mr HE Sheppard, a county councillor, magistrate, and prominent Crowborough resident, had agreed to become vice-presidents, and such assistance should help to further the interests of the band. In future, he said, the band would play every Wednesday and Sunday. Once a month, on Wednesdays, they would play in that field, and on the other Wednesdays they would play at the residences of the subscribers. The 1909 Southern Counties contest was held at Sutton, and the band took second place in the selection class and fourth prize in the march section. By 1910, the brass band had become Crowborough Silver Band. At Whitsun the country was mourning King Edward VII, and instead of taking part in a contest the band played at a memorial service at All Saints' Church. The Southern Counties event was held at Crowborough in 1911 and again in 1913 when, in spite of the rain large crowds gathered in the Broadway to witness the march section of the competition. The selection class was held in the grounds of The Grange on Crowborough Beacon, the home of Mr Frank Gresson, who was president of the event. Twenty bands took part, and Mr Briggs and his merry men took joint-third place. On Whit Monday, 1914, the band played a special programme of dance music at a Scout rally.

Cuddington Brass Band - Buckinghamshire

Active in 1893. Disbanded in 1939. Conductor in 1904 was George Watson, John Frost 1907-1911, J. Cremer Clarke in 1911, H. Smith in 1930, George Watson (village thatcher) in the 1930s. Also known as the Cuddington Robin Hood Brass Band in the 1910s, with uniforms of red and green. The instruments and uniform were provided by Colonel Bernard who lived in Winchendon House. These uniforms were originally Bavarian in cut and appearance. However, the anti-German sentiment engendered by the First World War resulted in a change of style, but not colours. The new uniforms were made by Albert Woodford, nicknamed "Needle", who was a skilled tailor as well as landlord of "The Crown". It was a tradition that the bandsmen walked round the village on the first Sunday in August before attending church and then ran through their repertoire on the Upper Green in the evening. Another pleasant custom which developed was the preparation and serving of meals – including Aylesbury ducks – by the bandsmen's wives at village feasts. The band held its weekly practices at Vulcan Hall. Members included "Sonny" Rose who played the euphonium and the two Orchard brothers.

Cyfarthfa Brass Band - Merthyr Tydfil, Glamorgan

Founded in 1838 by iron magnate Robert Thompson Crawshay, whose father owned the huge Cyfarthfa Works at Merthyr Tydfil. The original 1838 band was quickly disbanded as the players, who were mainly local, did not live up to the Crawshays' expectations. Conductor T. Graham in 1844. Professional, mainly English, players were imported and formed the basis of what was the arguably the first virtuoso brass band. It went on to great success in the contest field. "Christ Church, in Georgetown, Merthyr Tydfil, was completed in 1857, and consecrated on April 30th of that year. The Sunday of the consecration was a great day and many were invited to the Crawshay Castle for lunch. The famous Cyfarthfa Works Band, which had played at the great opening of the Crystal Palace in London (1851) played the services as there was no organ." The band won the Crystal Place Contest in 1860, playing Nabucco, conductor R. Livesey. Whilst they competed rarely, they still won the Welsh National Eisteddfod held in their home town in 1881. Conductor George Livesey in 1884-1897. Some of the music and instruments from the band still exist, the instruments and pieces, in their original bound folios, are displayed at Cyfarthfa Castle. One such piece is the 'Tydfil Overture' written by the great Joseph Parry (he of Myfanwy fame) and probably the first specific, original brass band work. Following Crawshay's death in 1879, and the passing of the age of iron, the band declined. With no formal support the band limped on until 1908, when the local authority took over the band with a strict set of guidelines. It became the Cyfarthfa and Merthyr Municipal Band, which survived until 1928. George Carlile Bawden played with the band and also composed music for them.

Dalton Amateur Brass Band - Dalton-in-Furness, Lancashire

In January 1897 the annual meeting of the Dalton Town Band was held at the Wellington Hotel. Very soon after this meeting had taken place, there was some disagreement among the members of the band which made some of them terminate their association with the town band and start a band of their own. This was officially formed as the Amateur Brass Band at a meeting held in the Wellington Hotel in March 1897. Mr. A. Baker was appointed as conductor of the new band which survived for many years, and frequently performed at concerts, parades, etc. A. Baker later went on to conduct the Brotton Old Band, the Anaconda Copper Mines Band (U.S.A.), then to the Barrow Iron and Steel Works Band in 1921.

Darley Dale Brass Band (1) - Derbyshire

Formed on the 16th August 1880 and rehearsed in Wensley. Secretary A. Fawley in 1899. The band was a typical village brass band, taking part in local traditions and events. Apart from a break during the Second World War, it continued until the early 1960's when the numbers in the band began to dwindle, and in 1965, the band admitted defeat and ceased to exist, selling all the instruments to the County Education Authority along with the music and all other equipment. A successor band was formed in 1984.

Darley Dale Brass Band (2) - Derbyshire

[current band] - Founded in 1984

Darley Silver Band - Yorkshire (West Riding)

Formed in 1901 as Darley Temperance Band. Seven of its members were of the Skaife family and five others were Housemans. Their first conductor was Redford Procter from Dacre, was in demand for agricultural shows around the district, for which in the early days it was necessary to hire a wagonette and horses for the journey. They played at annual village school fetes, and at the Darley Hospital Sunday Event on Stocks Green, local hospitals benefiting from collections at this event and others at churches and chapels. They led the procession through Darley at the Annual Rechabite Band of Hope Festival on Whit Monday, and were involved locally whenever there were national festivals, coronations, peace celebrations etc, and at many other local events, performing in their uniform of blue, red and gold. From 1932, the band rented a room in Wall Square for their weekly practices. They kept going when many such bands disbanded, two members, Joe Furniss and J R Houseman, completing forty-five and thirty-eight years service respectively. Rename Darley Silver Band by the 1940s. When it was in a low period in 1936 Walter Aldon bought new uniforms to boost the morale. As with all the other bands it ceased to function during the war but re-formed in time to play for the opening of the Memorial Hall in 1947. The band merged with Summerbridge and Dacre Band in 1959. From a newspaper report in 1862 - "Darlington Total Abstinence Society sponsored a new water fountain and it was ready for opening on June 10, 1862. Led by Dr Fothergill's successor as president, William Thompson, and the Darlington Sax Horn Band, the abstainers paraded from the Mechanics Institute, in Skinnergate, along Blackwellgate and High Row and up Bondgate to the fountain. There Mr Thompson, whose bankruptcy in the late 1870s allowed Darlington to acquire a vast chunk of South Park very cheaply, ceremonially drank the first glass of water from the fountain." The band was also known as Darlington Catholic Band and played sacred music exclusively.

Darwen Temperance Band - Lancashire

Formed in January 1840 on strict teetotal principles. James Varley (d. February 1870) was a founder member. In the event of breaking a pledge of abstinence a member had to pay a fine of 2s, 6d, for the first offence, for the second offence he would pay 5s and the third time he was expelled. It is believed that a couple of the founder members had to re-mortgage their own houses in order to buy their instruments. At first the band had no rehearsal room and therefore they had to practise in various member's houses. Finally they were able to move to a bandroom in Foundry Street, Darwen. Conductor J. Briggs, leader T. Hindle in 1860. In 1870 it was noted that the band's original instruments were valued at £18, and now, in 1870 were valued at £190. The band took part in the British Open contest in 1872. Conductor Isaac Marsden in 1876-1877. Secretary F.B. Ashworth in 1887. In 1901 the band changed from the Darwen Temperance Band to Darwen Borough Band. The band struggled to survive due to the effects of World War I. Local rivals Pickup Bank Band gained the upper hand, partly due to backing from local firm Carus Mills. Following World War II Hoddlesden also struggled to find players. In 1950 It was requested that both bands have a joint committee meeting to discuss the shortage of players. The conclusion was that both bands amalgamated to form the Darwen and Hoddlesden Silver Band.

Daubhill Temperance Band (2) - Lancashire

Formed in 1924, the band packed up when most of the lads joined the forces in 1939. Three of the bandsmen, Billy Holt, Walter Price and Ralph McCarthy were killed in Japanese POW camps. It competed in the Senior Cup contest in 1937. From the Coventry Evening Telegraph, of March, 1954: "The brass band associations of the Evans family began many years ago in Bolton, where John Evans and his two brothers, all keen bandsmen, decided to form a brass band of their own. Under the title Daubhill Temperance Band, the Evans brothers gathered together a group of brass instrument players, several of them relatives. As time passed, the membership of the band became more and more predominantly Evans, until eventually all its 24 players had either been born in, or married into, the family. Then, in 1936, John Evans' oldest son decided to move south from Lancashire to try his hand at a job in Coventry. He settled there with his family. Gradually, on his recommendation, other members of the family followed, until Bolton's Daubhill Temperance Band had to be abandoned due to lack of (Evans) membership. The pioneer of the family, who first came to Coventry, was killed during the war, but three of his brothers are still active players with Coventry Silver Band" One tale of this band is while carrying out an engagement in Rufford, the band was marching down a narrow country lane when a car came up behind the band and could not pass. After a while Mr J Evans signalled to the band to move to the side of the road, unfortunately the driver mistook this as a signal to pass and ended up with the drummer seated on the bonnet of his car! Mr Evans noted with a smile that the drummer never broke his beat!

Mr Watts was the manager of the Adelphi Cotton Mill in Deanston, where most, if not all, of the band were employed. The mill was the first in Britain to produce its own coins and paper money for issue to its workers. This was designed to overcome a shortage of currency in circulation at the time (the late 1700s). When the mill closed it was converted into a whisky distillery. In 1858, a young boy named Daniel McDonald, who was a drummer in the band, lost an arm in an accident at the mill where he worked. Denton and Haughton Brass Band - Lancashire

Formed in 1818 and began playing in public for various celebrations. The townspeople, and especially the hatter Joseph Howard, had subscribed generously to the appeal for funds. They were able to buy a set of instruments, music paper and instruction books for a grand total of £210. The big drum was duly painted with the title 'Haughton & Denton Band'. Haughton, however, was at that time, a separate town and the Dentonians, who outnumbered the Haughtonians, objected to this and so the name was eventually changed to 'Denton & Haughton Band'. It was very popular and played for many years. Up until 1869, it led the Saint Lawrence's Sunday School Scholars' Walk at Whitsuntide.

Denton Original Band - Lancashire

The Earl of Wilton persuaded Thomas Baxendale to introduce the cotton trade into Denton, and as an inducement gave the land on which Mr Baxendale built in 1862 the Alpha Mill - so called because it was the first cotton mill in Denton. His generosity to the town, particularly to the United Methodist Church, was great. He formed a brass band at his works, which was known for a time as Baxendale's Band, but afterwards became the Denton Original Band. He built 47 houses opposite his mill, which he named Alpha Terrace. The Denton Original Band began its existence in 1859, its promoters receiving the generous support of some of the hat manufacturers and local gentry. The first headquarters were at Baxendale's, at the top of Taylor Lane, but after a short time they were removed to a room behind the Bowling Green Inn. The band has a wonderful record, the crowning triumph coming in London in 1900 when the Denton Band won the thousand guinea cup which was open to Great Britain and the Colonies. There were great rejoicings in Denton when the result of the Crystal Palace contest became known. The magnificent cup was kept at Denton Town Hall and security of 1,000 pounds had to be given for its custody. After this the band ranked with the highest class bands in the country and was in great demand in all parts. John Locker played trombone in 1900 and was bandmaster in 1901. J. Jennings played euphonium in 1901. During the twentieth century the band maintained its reputation as one of the leading bands of the Manchester district. Following a fire in the Denton band room the band folded (according to a relative of a band member the band room may have been bombed in the second world war). Some items of the band are still in existence. The mace is still held by a former member - it is in the form of a solid silver bowler hat at the end of the mace to signify that the band was the hatters band (Denton being a hat making town). The Denton "B" Band ultimately broke away from Denton Original and became Crown Point Brass, later Denton Brass. The band's agenda papers, notices and general correspondence (1900-1981) are held in the Tameside Local Studies and Archives

Desford Colliery Band - Leicestershire

[current band] - Founded in 1898 - Former names: Ibstock United Band (to 1956). In 1912 the band engaged its first professional musical director Mr Albert Lawson, who made the twice-weekly trip to their rehearsal base in Leicester by horse and trap. The band steadily flourished until the outbreak of the First World War in 1914 when the musicians were sent to the trenches. They regrouped at the end of the war to win a host of gold medals and become the most successful band in the Midlands. The Second World War again called a halt to their activities. When the band reformed they were faced with an urgent need to replace dilapidated instruments and in 1956 the band was assisted by the Coal Industry Social Welfare Organisation. Because of this and the fact that at the time the majority of musicians were miners, the band was renamed the Desford Colliery Band. Progress continued under various conductors and to date the band has enjoyed legendary success winning no less than thirty-five championship titles. [Further information - see: Anon - Desford Colliery Welfare Band 1898-1978]

Deudraeth Brass Band (1) - Merioneth

Active from the 1860s. The band was refused the right to bear the title "Royal" in 1923. The band was managed for 50 years by local committees elected at public meetings. In 1936, Alderman Joseph Humphreys, the band secretary, decided in view of the heavy debt on the instruments, to hand the instruments to the Parish Council and this was agreed to by his committee and the parishioners at a Parish Meeting. The band carried on up to the outbreak of war under the conductorship of Mr. Albert Humphreys, but in 1940, the band broke up and the instruments had to be stored for safety. A successor band was formed in 1946

Didcot and Northbourne Silver Band - Berkshire

Formed in the early 1920s, probably disbanded in the late 1960s. The area around the Didcot railway station in Station Road was truly the social - and commercial - centre of Didcot and Northbourne in the early twenties. This is where everybody met. The Red Triangle club and the area around it were known colloquially as the Wangle. Many activities were staged there, and it was open several days of the week; and run by a committee, composed mainly of railwaymen and their wives. In January 1925, a report issued by the Committee stated that it was... a hall let to all kinds of organisations; home to the Didcot Band..... The club was soon renamed the Didcot and Northbourne Social Club. In the early days as it was closely linked to the GWR, its twice-weekly dances were often to the music of the Swindon GWR Concert Band; they also gave concerts. The costs of hiring this and other bands, especially from Oxford, led eventually to the setting up of the Didcot and Northbourne Silver Band; Bandmasters were A.R. Faraday and Harold Bellamy. Members in the early 1920s included: Harold Taylor, Mr Giles, Mr Faraday, Harry Wells, Mr Whitbread, George Giles, B. Hancock, B. Giles, Mr Eggleton, Mr Timms, Sid Taylor, Mr Haynes, Mr Gasson, Mr Cannings, Les Timms, Eric Tolley, William George Taylor (bandmaster)

Donnington Wood Institute Band (1) - Shropshire

Presumed to have been formed in the 1890s and folding before 1900. A successor band was formed in 1902

Donnington Wood Institute Band (2) - Shropshire

Founded in late 1902 by William Lawrence, a talented euphonium and violin player already with an excellent reputation. He resurrected what was left of the previous Donnington Wood Institute Band. He became bandmaster and in September 1904 the band won the Quickstep contest at St Georges Wakes. They entered more competitions during the next few years, achieving several placings but never a first. In 1907 the band was catastrophically unplaced in a competition at Shrewsbury which led to William Lawrence appealing to his band to 'think musically'. They did. In June 1908 they won the County Championship and arrived home very late. The people of Donnington Wood were woken up by the band playing 'See the conquering hero comes!' as they strolled along the dark lanes back to The Bell. The band went on to win more competitions, including the County Championship an unprecedented four times in succession. St Georges Temperance Band made an official objection to the result of the 1910 competition but their appeal was rejected; in an act of mischievous jubilation, the Donnington Wood Band gave an impromptu performance at the crossroads in St Georges, rubbing salt into a very open wound. The rivalry between the (by that time) three St Georges bands and the Donnington Wood Brass Band continued for several years. The outbreak of the First World War brought an end to the Donnington Wood Brass Band. Many of its members perished during the war. The band was revived for a short time in 1924, again under the leadership of William Lawrence. He died in December that year and was buried in St Matthew's Churchyard. The band played him out. William's son, also named William, took up the reins of office and, despite another ten years or so of public appearances, things were never the same and the band eventually ceased to function. A last attempt to resurrect failing fortunes occurred during the 1940s under the leadership of Tom Dodd, without success.

The band carried out a number of public concerts and garden fetes outside of the school remit. The school band conductor was Derrick Ball.

Dorking Brass Band (2) - Surrey

Active from 1886 to 1956. Conductor George Snelling in 1887-1888. In the Dorking Town Museum archives documents mention the band at an entertainment in 1882, open air concerts at the Rotunda, South Street and at Milton Heath, appearance in Dorking Town Day in 1956. The band played weekly in the bandstand in Dorking in the early part of the 20th century. There are also the "Recollections of Dorking Town Band pre 1939" by Jim Aslett, who joined the band in 1933 aged 18. In the book "Dickens' Christmas", a collection of articles either by Dickens himself or writers of the same generation, there is an item 'Singers from Afar' by Charles Rose and is headed 'This recollection of Charles Rose, a draper from Dorking in Surrey, who was born in 1818 and died in 1879, was published in book form in 1878 and looks back to a time ranging from the days of George the 4th to the earliest days of Victoria's reign (1830s)'.

Included in the article is this 'The Dorking Town Band, which at that time favourably compared with the bands of the neighbouring places, heralded the season by playing for some nights previous to Christmas in front of the residences of the principal inhabitants.' and 'Christmas Day was ushered in by the ringing of the church bells and the strains of the band. The tunes of the latter were usually of a sacred character, but I remember the band playing on one or two Christmas mornings, forty or forty five years ago (1835?) the tune 'Get up! Get up! And put the Pudding in the Pot'. The band in 1895 consisted of: J. Blackledge (conductor), A. Heselgrave, G. Heselgrave, C. Dudley, E. Moore, C. Boorer, G. Snelling, J. Black, G. Fuller, W. Jackson, W. Lynn, A. Duck, W. Boswell, T. Huggett, C. Stonestreet, J. Ellis, A. Issivens

Dorking Coffee Room Brass Band - Surrey

Founded in the late 1870s by E.M. Denny after he bought the Coffee Room from Elizabeth Cotton (who had established it as an experiment around 1871, working among the poor of Dorking) when she married Admiral Sir James Hope. Active in June 1880, attached to the Dorking Coffee and Refreshment Rooms, which were a centre for various temperance activities and societies. Still active in 1884. In July 1880 the band accompanied an excursion to Ramsgate and Margate which was marred by the weather and the conduct of the band, which, on the return journey was disgraceful in the extreme, and but one inference can be drawn, viz., that more or less they were all intoxicated.

The band was involved in many occasions including the return of 1916 prisoners to Dundalk in 1917 and a tribute to the victims of the Dundalk Jail bombing. And in August 1922, they played at the funeral of Michael Collins. In the thirties, Paddy Hughes of Dundalk Urban District Council secured an annual maintenance grant of £30 on the condition that the band gave recitals at St Helena's Park and the Market Square during the summer months. The band led the local defence forces and the Auxiliary Services during the Step Together Parades of 'the Emergency' years that took place on Sundays. During the 1940s they began to promote youth within their club and set up the Junior Emmets. However, by the late 1940s, their golden era was in decline. The use of the band for funerals was common; they also played the Death March during the commemoration of the Edentubber Martyrs in 1997.

East End Harmonic Brass Band - Sunderland, Durham

A number of men from the East End of Sunderland had the idea of forming a brass band and this was achieved in 1887. Active to the 1910s. Probably folded during WW1. Conductor R. Childs in 1888-1894, John G. Mackinstosh in 1898-1904. A concert programme in May 1888 consisted of: Gang Forward (W.T. Harris), Masher Queen (Metcalf), A Night in London (W.T. Harris), Twilight Shadows (W.T. Harris), Scottish Minstrel (Anderson), Christina (Robinson), Pride of Ireland (Metcalf). A concert in August 1904 was: Tendre Baiers (Waldteufel), Memories of the Opera (Rimmer), The Lost Chord (Sullivan), Semper Fidelis (Sousa), Hohenlinden (Cooke), Wagner's Works (Round), Plantation Melodies (P. Chambers), Dinah's Holiday (Hiram Eden). Many of the East End Prize Band were paying members but did not play instruments, they did, however, play football. The officials knew that by keeping the men together their interest in the band would be maintained. Therefore, they helped them form a football club: East End Black Watch. The title Black Watch did not have a local connection, a committee man thought "the name would encourage the players to succeed as had the famous Highland regiment." On April 19th, 1893 a game was played on the Town Moor between Black Watch and the East End Brass Band, with the referee in Chinese costume. A collection was taken during the match for the benefit of the band.

East Stour Brass Band - Dorset

Founded around 1860 and disbanded around 1900, active for 40 years. Also known as "Stower Brass Band". It was formed by Thomas James Maidment, who was a fine cornet player, and who was the bandmaster all through the band's existence. In the 1870s, members of the East Stour Band played around the district and at Christmas, performed carols. They would walk to Inwood House and play to Mr. Merthyr Guest. It was the custom of the butler to enquire who they were and the reply would come, 'East Stour Band', and for this they received half a sovereign. Four days later, they would pop down to the house again and this time the answer would be 'West Stour Band' for which they received another half sovereign. It was only a little white lie, if you remember that about a dozen members had walked ten miles to earn their coins! Also known as (East) Stower Band

Ecclesfield Old Band - Yorkshire (West Riding)

Active in 1849, playing for the Stannington Whit Monday procession. Played a selection of their favourite quadrilles and airs at the Ecclesfield United Cricket Club opening match in 1860, conductor T. Brown. Mr Jubb was the conductor in 1871, playing at the Grenoside Flower Show in August and also in 1879 at the Chapeltown Floral and Horticultural Show, and also in 1884. Also known as Ecclesfield Old Band in 1872. They folded around 1985. Moses Nelson was a band member when he died in 1890, aged 39. "July 1872 - Discord amongst Ecclesfield musicians": Thomas Jubb, file cutter, of Ecclesfield, was summoned for doing wilful damage to a drum, the property of Wm. Butterworth; moulder, of Ecclesfield, and others. John Jubb Sen., Wm. Joseph and John Jubb, George Hobson, and Samuel Bayles, all of the same place, were summoned for aiding and abetting. The defendants were also charged with committing a breach of the peace. Mr. Binney appeared in support of the information, and Mr Clegg defended. The complainant is the bandmaster of the Ecclesfield brass band, and some time ago a dispute took place between the members, which led to a certain number of them, including the defendants Jubb (father and sons), resigning and organising another band. The drum belonging to the band was in the possession of Jubb, senior, but was given up to the complainant on application. Considerable ill feeling existed between the rival bands. On Saturday, 22nd June, the complainant; with the other members of his band, were practising at the Travellers Inn, Ecclesfield common. They afterwards came outside the house, played several tunes, and then marched down the road. While near the door the defendants came up, and John Jubb was heard to ask Hobson if he would "jump on the drum." Thomas and William Jubb were observed to go along the hedge side, and when the band had gone a short distance a witness, named John Briggs, saw the defendant, Thomas Jubb, throw a stone at the drum, making a hole through one side of the parchment and cracking the other. The damage done was estimated at £2 15s. A row ensued, and several of the other defendants came up and, committed assaults upon two or three members of the band, and a most disgraceful scene followed... Twelve witnesses were examined for the complainant in support of these facts... For the defence it was contended that the drum did not belong to the complainant, as it was bought by subscription in 1858, in answer to the following appeal: "The Ecclesfield band of musicians are wishful to improve the practice of their music by giving a right effect to their musical strains, and in order to accomplish this object they are obliged to make an appeal to the gentry," etc. It was also stated that John Jubb, sen., had as much right as any one to the "musical instrument" as he had paid over the money and obtained the receipt from the maker. Several witnesses were called who swore that they did not see Thomas Jubb throw a stone.... At half-past three Mr. Clegg said he had nine other witnesses.... The Bench said they should not sit later than four o'clock, and as Mr. Clegg was of opinion that he could not finish the defence for the second part of the case in that time, an adjournment -until next Tuesday was agreed to.... Previous to this Mr. Binney withdrew the charge of aiding and abetting..... Mr. Atkinson hoped the retaining fee of the professional gentlemen in the case had been heavy, for they had been detained a very long time..... Mr. Chambers, who had been waiting all the forenoon in another case, said the fees of the other professional gentleman would require also to be very heavy.... Two cross-summons have been taken out, and will be heard next court day. The following week it was reported: Mr. Clegg now stated that two friends had met two friends from each party, and had proposed terms of settlement, which his clients were ready to accept, but the other side were not willing. Mr. Binney said the proposals were unreasonable, and his clients could not accede to them. Mr. Atkinson suggested terms of arrangement, and ultimately the summonses were all withdrawn on the defendants paying 25s., being one half the estimated amount of the cost of repairing the drum.

Edge Hill (British Railways) Band - Liverpool, Lancashire

Formed in 1879 as the Edge Hill Steam Sheds Band. Active to the mid-1990s. Bandmaster Mr Goddard in 1881, M. O'Callaghan in 1884, conductor W.J. Williams. The band in 1930 consisted of Harold Yates (Bandmaster), Arthur Barber (treasurer), Thomas Wallace (secretary), Alwyn Teasdale, Norman Jones, William Edwards, William Yates, Fred Coffey, Thomas Potter, Ernest Percy, Harold Abram, Fred Oppolli, Master G.V. White, James Coffey, William Pendleton, Frederick Wallace, George Brownbill, William Tinsley, William Kenyon, James Bramhill, William Hughes, Arthur Sadler, Thomas Holden, William Young and Edward Scott. Thomas Wallace related the brief history of the band at their jubilee celebrations in 1930: "The first railway employees' Brass Band at Edge Hill was known as the 'Shed Band'. It was founded in 1879) and made its first public appearance in 1880. From 1884 until the amalgamation of the various Railways it was known as the Edge Hill L. & N.W.R. Traffic Band, and from this period onwards it took its present name. Its first success in competition was at Colwyn Bay, New Year's Day, 1912. It was making great progress from that time until the outbreak of War, when many of its members were called up for military service. On the Band's first appearance at Belle Vue Contest (Manchester) in May, 1924, they were awarded 1st Prize (twenty-three bands competing), following this up with winning 1st prize at Haydock in the same year. The Band went from success to success winning Belle Vue July Championship in the following year. Among the recent successes are the R.J. Ward Challenge Shield 1924-25 and 1928-29; Westhoughton and Hawarden, 1928. At the recent Royal National Eisteddfod of Wales, held in Sefton Park, Liverpool, they were awarded 2nd Prize, gaining 94 points against the winners 96 points. Space does not permit for the mention of sacrifices made by the members to build up the Band to its present high standard, all having served faithfully and well. The Band has already decided to compete in the National Brass Band Festival to be held at Crystal Palace in the coming year." Mike Hughes reports: "I conducted the band from 1970 until 1975. We gained 4th in the Championship Section in 1972 and won the area contest for WD and HO Wills in 1971. For many years the principal cornet player was Ken Tinsley who was cornet champion of Great Britain I think 3 times and solo champion once. The band quartet was champion of Great Britain in 1963 and came 2nd in 1971, 3rd 1972 and 4th 1973. Bill Yates conducted the band for many years and conducted them at the Albert Hall in 1961 and 1963 after gaining third place in the Area contest at the Free Trade Hall Manchester". Malcolm Looby reports: "I joined Edge Hill (BR) Band in 1976. The band rehearsed in one of the sheds in the sidings at Edge Hill, Liverpool on the corner of Combermere Street and Picton Road two nights a week and more (much more) often when approaching the date of a contest. It was a championship section band at the time and the band room had a few framed certificates on the wall - a big one I recall was from having played in the Championship Finals in 1966 I think, and another was a solo cornet certificate from the soloists competition at or around the same time. When I joined, the band had strong links with a couple of other 'local' bands (Camel Lairds which had folded a few years before and Fodens) with several ex-players of these bands coming to play with Edge Hill, and probably because of these connections we also had a couple of 'guest' conductors coming to rehearse the band occasionally - James Scott and Rex Mortimer. The conductor throughout my time with Edge Hill (BR) Band was Bob Dean. He had played with both Camel Lairds and Fodens. The band played in quite a number of championship contests - best placing was 8th a couple of times in the Areas at Preston Guild Hall. We didn't play in enough though, and it has to be said that we weren't quite good enough to stay in the top section - so the inevitable happened and we were relegated to the second section probably about 1980. We did OK in the second section, winning the last ever 2nd section contest at the Kings Hall, Belle View, and the same contest a year later (or a year before!) at Bolton Town Hall before it burnt down. We qualified for the Pontins finals in North Wales I recall also. With the break up of British Rail the band lost the little sponsorship it had and had to begin paying for rehearsal rooms. We had moved out of the sidings into what was a 'mothballed' hotel attached to Lime Street Station, and when that was made into a hotel again we went to rehearse in schools, the band then withered away." Stephen Roughley reports: "I played in the band from around about 1988-1992, eventually becoming principle cornet player with the band. By this time, it was no longer a contest band, but was still conducted by Bob Dean, with Roy Eaves (I think ex-Fodens) on euphonium or trombone. Many of the players at this stage were also from the Liverpool Schools Senior Brass Band. The band was meeting for rehearsals in Rail House, an office block to the side of Lime Street Station, in Liverpool. I think the band folded a few years later, and possibly was merged into the St Margarets school band, which Bob also ran."

Edgeley Brass Band - Cheshire

Formed in 1870. Conductor George Needham in 1902. Active until 1954, when it merged with the Cheshire Yeomanry (Stockport) Band to form the current Stockport Silver Band. Some memories from a player: "The band has had a varied career and many different Band rooms or practice rooms. The first one that I knew was behind the Britannia Inn a pub long since gone, it was in church gate just higher up than the old church and on the opposite side. The bandmaster in those days was Jack Hargreaves a very good musician and also well known as a baker in Portwood. He had a son Jack who was a very good cornet player, he also followed his father in the bakery business and had a stall in the market. I only knew two other players of the post 1914 war band. One named Eckersley a cornet player who ended his days in the Reddish district. The other was a man named Swain who either lived in Emperor Street or round the corner in Hersey Street, he was a bass player. When the Band left the Britannia, they went for a short time to a pub under the viaducts, the Gardeners and from there they went to another defunct pub, the Commercial. By then the band had another conductor, Harold Bennett, and to him more than to any does the present band owe its existence. At one time it was jokingly called Bennett's Band because his father played the bass drum, another brother the trombone and euphonium and another was drum major. Harold's son Jack also played cornet. Besides being conductor Harold was the general factotum, he repaired music, was librarian, errand boy. He had the Band for at least fifty years. The Cheshire Yeomanry Band used to practise at the Pineapple in Heaton Lane, they had a hut at the side, their conductor was Mr J Seddon and he had them for many years. In fact I think he was still their Bandmaster when he died. His death brought about a crisis for the Band because whether by accident or not they had to leave their Band room. not safe was the excuse given and it put them in a fix, so they came to us (Edgeley) and proposed a merger, both Bands were in a poor state member wise and committees of both Bands decided to adopt the idea and the Stockport Silver was born. Elswick Hopper Brass Band - Barton-on-Humber, Lincolnshire

Active in 1893 and the early 1900s. Richard Weston, a member of Kettering Rifles Band, moved to Barton and joined the Elswick Hopper Brass Band playing Tuba. He worked for Elswick Hopper cycle manufacturer at Barton-on-Humber as a labourer in tube and sheet-metal working and brazing. In 1880 Fred Hopper had established a cycle repair business in a former blacksmith's shop in Brigg Road, Barton-upon-Humber. He went on from repairing cycles to manufacturing them. The business flourished and by 1905 it employed over 400 people. As the business grew it moved to larger premises on Marsh Lane. F. Hopper and Co. also had a large three storied building built on the corner of Holydyke and Brigg Road for offices. The wrapping and packing was done on Brigg Road ready for export. Early pictures of the office had the words "The Butterfly Cycle Company" emblazoned on the wall. The company had started exporting to places such as Australia, Japan, India and South Africa by 1912. Around 1913 the company acquired the Elswick Cycle company and the company became Elswick Hopper Cycle and Motor Company. In 1936 Elswick Hopper was quoted on the London Stock Exchange.

Epping Town Brass Band - Essex

Founded in 1894 by R.E. Rutland, an engine driver for the Great Eastern Railway, who resided in St John's Road. The band initially rehearsed in the Church Room on Wednesday evenings. Many original bandsmen were railway workers based at Stratford and the first bandmaster was Tom Smith, another railway worker, whose two sons both played in the band. The first secretary and treasurer was Charlie Hills whose son Sydney still lives in Epping and is a well known local historian. The bandsmen each paid an entry fee of one shilling and subscriptions of threepence a week towards purchase of music. Monies earned by the band were either divided among the bandsmen or put towards uniform purchase. Engagements were many and varied at this time and included playing at the local cycling and athletic club sports meetings, football matches and on the stage of the old town hall when it was used for roller skating. One of the most memorable engagements was an ice carnival on the lake at Coopersale House in February 1895 when the lake was illuminated by small fairy lamps and Chinese lanterns. Hundreds of skaters were entertained by the lady of the House, Miss Archer-Houblon and the carnival was enlivened by the band's music and a firework display. Other celebrations included frequent concerts in the market place and the two days of celebrations for Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee in June 1897. The Epping Band folded in the early 1920s. A successor band (Epping Silver Band) was formed in 1935.

Formed in November 1903 by George Churchman (bandmaster), C.T. Powell (treasurer), A. Tozer (secretary), instruments provided by A.J. Palmer (of the Reading biscuit firm). Folded in January 2009 - some of the band's instruments, including the original bass drum from 1903, and some of their trophies, were handed over to the Fairford Historical Society. "In 1903 the vicar of Fairford approached Mr George Churchman about the formation of a brass for Fairford, and promised that the necessary money would be forthcoming for the purchase of instruments and drums. Mr Churchman was the only person in Fairford at that time who could play a brass instrument, and to undertake the formation of a band was no light task. Mr. Churchman promised the vicar that he would see what could be done, and eventually he got together a number of young men who expressed willingness to be taught the mysteries of brass instrument music. As soon as it was seen that Mr Churchman and the young men who had gathered around him were in earnest, the vicar disclosed the name of the person who would provide the instruments, and this was no less a personage than Mr A.J. Palmer, J.P. of Fairford Park, and of Reading biscuit fame, and the instruments were immediately provided."

The band had its beginnings in the Ashdown Forest Temperance Band, founded by Frank T Ridley, who started a garage business in Nutley. It was based in the specially built bandroom in Old Forge Lane, Horney Common. The band was supported by Count Munster, owner of Maresfield Park estate from 1898 to 1914. The band split in 1911 when the Nutley members started their own band. After the War the band was started up again by mainly Fairwarp members, backed by Ventura P Misa, the then owner of Oldlands estate, and by the subsequent owner, Sir Bernard Eckstein. Eckstein established a trust, which enabled the band to purchase new uniforms and silver instruments. Previously called the Fairwarp Brass Band, the band seems to have been commonly known as Fairwarp Silver Band from this time. Many of the players were employed on the Oldlands estate. Records of the band, from 1905-1982, are held at the East Sussex Record Office

Falkirk Trades Band - Stirlingshire

Founded in early 1905, receiving its new 24 instruments, costing £324, in April 1905. In a photograph of 1908 the title is "International Champions". This was quite a feat for the band as it was probably only in the second section at the time. One of several brass bands in the area, Falkirk Trades first appears in the Scottish Amateur Brass Band Association records in 1905 when it took second place in the third section contest. They filled the same spot in 1906 and three years later took fourth spot in the second section; were third in 1913; and won it in 1919. That was the last listing. On June 8, 1910 a meeting of the sub-committee appointed by the Town Council to confer with three members each of the Falkirk

Burgh Military Band and the Falkirk Trades Band on the question of amalgamation was held on Tuesday evening in the Burgh Buildings. Councillor Muirhead (convener) presided, and the other members of the sub-committee, Treasurer Wallace and Councillor Sinclair, were also present. After a lengthy discussion, which mainly went to show that an amalgamation of the two bands was unpracticable and unnecessary, the meeting closed without coming to any finding on this subject.

Fawr Silver Band - Waun Fawr, Cardiganshire

Founded in the 1870s. Its first bandmaster was Evan Davies, who had had previous experience with bands in South Wales. Evan Davies suffered from pains in his thigh, and he walked with a limp. When teaching the band to march he used to hobble along the schoolroom floor with one hand cupped round his lips, singing 'Tara-ra-ra' like a cornet. When the pain occurred he would stop suddenly and cry out, "O, my thigh!!" and so it went on: "Ta-ra-ra-ra - O, MY THIGH!". The Waun Fawr band was one of the ten that competed at Pw!then in 1898 when a near riot broke out. Each band was to start from the Crown Hotel and march to the White Hall where they were to form a circle and play the march right through again so thin the adjudicator, who was seated by an open window above them, could hear. Probably through faulty timing, the second band arrived at the White Hall before the first hand had finished. Other bands followed closely, and soon there were five bands blowing furiously and creating a deafening noise as they tried to drown each other. A free fight followed and the instruments became weapons. Nobody won the competition as it was declared void.

The Featherstone Road School Band was started in 1948 by Hubert Osgood with the help of Mr Downs, the Headmaster, borrowing some brass instruments from the local Salvation Army. In 1950 Mr K. Cook joined the school and in 1953 the band's first concert tour abroad to Norway and Sweden. Mr Alexander Mitchell took over the band in 1958 and, under his baton, the band toured Germany in 1962, the USA and Canada in 1964 and 1967, and Scandinavia in 1968. In 1970 the band entered the British Youth Brass Band Competition held in Liverpool, winning the Schools Commemorative Shield, as the highest placed School Band. This they repeated in 1971, winning the contest outright in 1972. Easter 1972 found the band in Austria. After another tour of Canada in 1974 the band became Featherstone Youth Brass Band so that former members could help the up and coming players. Paul Harris became conductor in 1975. Another tour of Norway 1976 and started recording. West Germany 1977, USA and Canada in 1979. In 1980 Greg Hayes, who had been trained in the band, took over as bandmaster. Ferodo Works Band - Chapel-en-le-Frith, Derbyshire

Formed in 1951 at the behest of the management of the local Ferodo factory in Chapel-en-le-Firth. The founding members included the conductor Frank Moss (also conductor of the Chapel-en-le-Firth Band), Jack Allcock, Sam Allcock, Charlie Brindley, Bernard Bygrave, Solomon Clayton, Bill Fletcher, Alf Garlic, Jimmy Gregson, Harold Hill, Ted Holland, Jack Holmes, Jim Hulley, Alan Jackson, Jimmy Mycock, Jack Osborne, Walter Pearson, Norman Ringham and Alf Sellars. George Hespe, formerly of Sheffield Transport Band, became musical director in 1953 and led the band to victory at the British Open in 1955. The band folded in 1958 following the withdrawal of support from Ferodo. Tim Mutum recorded: An entrepreneur with the rather spectacular name of Herbert Froid formed the Ferodo Company in 1897. In need of a catchy brand name to move the company forward he rearranged the letters of his surname to coin the word 'Ferodo' and soon set about building his company organisation in Chapel-en-le-Frith in the Peak District of Derbyshire, by inventing everything from asbestos brake pads to the first bullet proof clothing. In 1951, at the behest of the management at the factory, a band was established - the Ferodo Works Band. The late Bill Skelton, one of the best horn players of his day, and who first went to Belle Vue in 1927, was one of the 'name' players in the band. He later said it was one of the happiest bands he played with. The company offered generous retainers and therefore attracted good players. In addition to Skelton, two former Black Dyke principals, Willie Lang and Bernard Bygraves joined the ranks, and Ferodo made its contest debut in Nottingham in 1952 under the direction of Fred Mortimer. That the management wanted the band to succeed became apparent with the appointment of George Hesse as Musical Director in 1953. Hesse was aged 53 at the time, and had served in the Army as band boy and bandmaster between 1914 and 1933. He then turned his hand to conducting brass bands and for a time he also played tuba in the BBC Northern and Hallé orchestras. Hesse's compositions included the march, 'Kinderscout', the trombone solo 'Melodie et Caprice' (sometimes anglicised to 'Melody and Caprice') and, most notably, the suite, 'The Three Musketeers', adopted as the test piece for the Belle Vue Championship in 1953. His impact was immediate - the band winning the Leicester Band Festival on Easter Monday. Bill Skelton recalled his impressions of Hesse: "He was a marvellous, considerate man with the welfare of all his bandsmen at heart. Everything was perfection. We were the busiest band in the country. When we toured the accommodation was all first class. It was a young band - I was one of the oldest in it - and we were very adaptable, we could play anything. Ferodo's contesting victories at the highest level were spectacular given the short life of the band itself. The band came 3rd at the Grand Shield in 1953, and went on to come runner up at the British Open the following year. The band qualified for the National Finals in 1954 too (after coming runner up at the Midland Regional) - coming 6th off the number 2 draw on 'Sovereign Heritage'. It was their only appearance at London. The startling success of their Open victory of 1955 seemingly heralded a new major contesting force, as in 1956 they added the prestigious Edinburgh Festival title. That was the high water mark though - fourth place at Belle Vue later that year was followed by their last appearance in Manchester in 1957 when they came out of the prizes. They were never seen at the contest again, although their winning performance of 1955 was later recorded. There is one other small story to relate about Ferodo's. Again it comes from Bill Skelton, who told of the night Mr Hesse couldn't make a rehearsal. "Young Elgar Howarth turned up. He was what you might call a whizz kid. I remember he asked me if I could give him a bit more - I always reckoned I had a big tone, you know, and he wanted more, so I really let rip. Startled the life out of him it did. The year was 1957. A year later the company disbanded the band for what was termed 'economic reasons'. The company had worked out that in seven years they had spent £70,000 more than the band had earned.

First City Brass - Colindale, Middlesex

Founded by MD Jeremy Wise in November 1997, folded in 2002. First City were formed in November 1997 and were immediately graded as a Championship Section Band due to the quality of the players who had decided to join Jeremy Wise on what was seen as perhaps the most exciting brass band project to come out of the capital city. With their distinctive dress sense - they didn't have uniforms as such but performed in a series of multi coloured fashion shirts - the band quickly made an impression. The demise of the band however had been forecast by many right from the start as it was said at the time of the bands first contest that they were only able to compete due to they themselves "poaching" players from other established bands in the London Area such as the once powerful John Laing (Hendon) Band.

Flamborough United Brass Band - Yorkshire (East Riding)

Founded around the 1890s (perhaps when the old Artillery Band or village band ceased to function), and it was certainly still in existence in 1908, a time when Flamborough still had to rely on itself for most things including amusement and recreation. Also known as Flamborough Fishermen's Band. The new band was to have a life, with interruptions, of half a century or more and early members included Matthew Major, Mark Major senior and junior, Tanton Fell, Harold Marshall Jack Cowling (who with Matt. Bailey was among the first conductors), and G. Waud, not to mention Tom Woodhouse senior, an obvious choice for the bass drum being, I understand, built on even more massive lines than his famous son. Bandmaster in 1909 was A. Gibbon. Like its predecessor the band practised in the old Drill Hall (now Smith's Coal Depot), and it soon began to make itself useful in village concerts, socials, processions etc. It had its ups and downs of course even from the beginning, finance being always a problem for it had no wealthy patrons and so had to make its own way. Instruments and uniforms were a heavy charge on the funds and the minute books record a long succession of dances, concerts, and jumble sales held to raise money. More than once major items had to be bought on the instalment plan, and it must have been a happy moment when, at the Annual General Meeting in 1939, the treasurer, Mr. H. C. Marshall was able to report a balance in hand of over £10. Unfortunately he was obliged to announce his resignation at the same time owing to the nature of his work which would take him away from the village in the near future. A sad blow this, as Mr. Marshall had served the band well both as treasurer and player over a number of years. It was the custom, as another way of raising funds, for the band to tour the village at Christmas time, and the records refer to the purchase of music suitable for this purpose. Later it was decided to install electric light in the practice room, "provided that the owner of the building, Mr. Smith, had no objection and that payment could be made at the rate of 8d. per unit, all the members agreeing to contribute a penny per week to meet the cost.

Fochriw Brass Band (1) - near Merthyr Tydfil, Glamorgan

Formed in 1886, conductor David Williams. Disbanded in 1928. Conductor W. Berry in 1892. The first mention of Fochriw Brass Band was in Merthyr Express newspaper cuttings of 1887 when it was advised that, on 20 August 1887, the Fochriw Brass Band led the Fochriw Church Sunday School procession and played very well considering that they had only been practicing for 12 months. Therefore it may be assumed that it was formed in 1886. The band which competed in the Merthyr Contest in July 1892 was: Conductor W. Berry, C. Shankland, J. Pugh, T. Edwards, W. Evans, D. Jones, Jem Thomas, John Prosser, D.J. James, W. Mantle, W.J. Powell, D. Rowlands, W. Thomas, A. Shankland, D. Jenkins, T.J. Jenkins, J. Davies, A. Berry, E. Jones, W. Lewis, T.J. Mantle. As a child in the 1950's I can recall the band coming around the streets of Fochriw on a Christmas Day and being told that after its disbandment, the instruments were kept under the New Hall stage. The newspaper reports are from 1887 to 1904 and it would appear that many honours such as 1sts and 2nds and gold and silver places were won by the band at eisteddfodau across the length and breadth of Wales. July 1893 - South Wales and Monmouthshire Brass Band Association, 3rd Annual Contest, Penydarren Park, Merthyr Tydfil - 2nd prize in second of two sections. 1894 - Caerphilly - Chief prize 1894 - Bridgend Eisteddfod (16 bands competing) - 2nd prize and Silver Medal 1895 - Welshpool Eisteddfod - 2nd prize in the selection section 1896 - Merthyr Tydfil - 1st in the selection section, shared 1st in the march. Report: "During last 2 months band had won 7 prizes - 6 firsts" 26 August 1899 - Machen - 1st in marching section, 3rd in selection section, conductor W.R. Dawson. 30 August 1902 - At the Dowlais Miner's Federation Demonstration, led by Keir Hardie MP, the Fochriw Band led the procession. The Demonstration was about the struggle over the sliding scale and 8 hour day for miners. 25 April 1903 - Abergavenny and East Monmouthshire Competition (9 bands competing) - 3rd in first section, 4th in second section 3 October 1903 - Report on year's performance to date. Prizes at: Cardiff, Abergavenny (2), Senghenydd, Rhymney, Pentre, Mountain Ash, New Tredegar (2), Merthyr Vale, Pontllytyn and Caerphilly. Although a class C band, they had taken prizes in all A, B and C classes. Mr David Phillips of Pontllytyn was the bandmaster in November 1887; Mr Dawson conducted the band at Machen on 26 August 1899; In March 1903 the conductor was Mr William Powell when the band was practicing for the forthcoming Abergavenny and Senghenydd contests. From the Merthyr Express, 26 March 1904, Presentation: Through the departure of Mr. David Jones for Rhymney, the Fochriw Brass Band has lost a most capable secretary. About two years ago, the Band was on the point of being disbanded. Then Mr. Jones was prevailed upon to undertake the duties of secretary, and so ably did he discharge his work that band was again, in a very short time, on a sound basis. Indeed, more contests were attended during the season, than in many other similar periods of the band's existence, and the numerous prizes captured have placed the band once more in an honourable position. A few weeks ago, a presentation committee was formed with Mr. Charles Payne as chairman, Mr. Daniel Jenkins as treasurer, and Mr. J. Pugh as secretary. On Friday evening last, a smoker was held, at which Mr. Jones was made the recipient of a handsome marble clock supplied by Messrs. Mappin and Webb. It bore the following inscription: "Presented to Mr. David Jones by the committee and members of the Fochriw Brass Band for services rendered as secretary, March 18th, 1904." The chair was taken by Mr. J. H. Jones, M.E., the genial president of the band. After a rousing song by Mr. Charles Payne, Councillor Thomas, in the course of an able speech, attributed the success of the past season largely to the interest taken in his work by the secretary. Two capital songs having been rendered by Messrs. W. S. Williams and T. Davies, the chairman, in a witty speech, made the presentation. Mr Jones suitably responded. Mr. W. J. Powell, the popular conductor, then spoke in eulogistic terms of Mr. Jones' services, and he was followed by Councillor Jones. A splendid programme of songs was now contributed to by Messrs. T. Shankland, J. Payne, J. Edwards, D. Jones, and W. S. Williams, whilst stirring speeches were delivered by Messrs. H. Evans, Brook House, and T.

Roberts. Among the former officials of the band present were Messrs. James Evans, Howell Thomas and Jacob Jones. After the usual votes of thanks, a very enjoyable evening was brought to a close by the singing of "He's a jolly good fellow." In August 1920 the conductor was Mr Hanney, and in June 1921 Mr Albert Mantle. A successor band was formed in 1931. [Further information - see: Holley, T. Fochriw Brass Band (2) - near Merthyr Tydfil, Glamorgan

Founded in 1931 by Albert Mantle as Fochriw Silver Band. Disbanded in the late 1940s. New silver instruments were purchased in 1932, followed by new uniforms in 1934 - A concert was held at the New Hall on Sunday evening under the auspices of the Fochriw Silver Band. The bandsmen appeared in their new uniforms. The chairman was Mr. Willie Adams Jones. The Band, under their conductor Mr. Albert Mantle, played the following selections: "The Typhoon," "Dawn of Spring," "Country Life," "Echoes of Spring," "Royal Artillery," "Eventide." The band was assisted by Mrs. Marjory Humphreys, Pontlottyn, soprano; Mr. James John Lewis, Fochriw, tenor; Miss Megan Jones, Pontlottyn, elocutionist; accompanist, Mr. Thomas Walters. A successor band was formed in 1951. [Further information - see: Holley, T. F. - Fochriw, Pontlottyn and Rhymney Brass Bands - Gelligaer, Vol. 16 (2007), pp. 50-74]

Fordell Brass Band - Fife

Active in the 1850s. Still active in 1896. Conductor in 1856 was Mr Wood. His son, William Wood learned the cornet and remained with the band for over 20 years. For many years the band was known as the Herring Band, from an incident that took place when the band was at the height of its popularity. Returning from an engagement, a number of the players were getting a lift home on a herring cadger's cart, and pranks were being played amongst the men, and the placing of herring into the instruments was the commencement of a battle royal with herring. The cart was stopped, and the fish were thrown around as missiles of warfare. The band was the favoured one for the annual engagement for Leith carters' picnic, and before the Forth Bridge was built or the ferry service commenced the band was taken across the wide Forth in rowing boats. It is stated that the drummer was, though a small man, a great enthusiast, so much so that one day on the march he kept marching on, not knowing that the band had turned up a side street, and on he went to the usual stopping place of the band, when he discovered he was alone, and turning to some people nearby he asked, "Have you seen a band onywey?"

Later in the same geographical area was Forest Lane End Brass Band in operation in 1877. Then further reference is made to Illogan Broad Lane Band in 1889. There could have been bandsmen from any of these bands when the Illogan Military band was formed because it is on record that that band was started with men from the area that could already play.

Forest Gate Industrial School Brass Band - Essex

Active from the late 1860s to the 1910s. Conductor Mr Duncan in 1875. The band was revived in 1897. The building in Forest Lane was initially constructed to provide a school for boys some distance from the choked inner districts of East London. It was used as an Industrial school from 1854 to 1906, formally becoming part of the Forest Gate School District in 1868. A disastrous fire in 1890 claimed the lives of 26 boys. From 1898 to 1906 it was taken over by the Poplar Union and known as the Poor Law School or Poplar Training School. The bandmaster in 1900 was S.T. Webber

Fownhope Brass Band - Herefordshire

Fownhope children learnt to sing in school where the head was also church choirmaster and organist, but there was little opportunity to learn to play instruments. The club walk, established by 1839, was led by a brass band but in the early years this was always a band from Hereford. Mr Ribbon's band played in 1843, but more often it was a military band from Hereford. The Fownhope Band was formed in 1866 in September 1866, by E.J. Cooke, bandmaster William Cooke, instruction also given by Albert Jones of Hereford, with instruments costing £40. The band played at the fund-raising event for the new school in 1867, when the leader was A. Jones, and also for the Foresters Club-walk that year, and gave active support to Joseph Arch's campaign for better pay and hours for farm-workers. They provided the music in August 1873 when the union marched from St Weonards to Broad Oak which drew 500, and played to a crowds of 500 to 600 when Joseph Arch addressed a rally at Pow Green in October 1874. The Band played for the Queen's Jubilee celebrations in 1887. There were 11 men in the Band in 1890, most of them working men. These were

William Roberts a cobbler from Common Hill, Tom Jones a tailor on the Nash, William Slade from Nupend, John Bailey the blacksmith and publican at the New Inn, George Clark, Arthur Jones, S. Alford, Bill Pugh, Tom Hyde, Tom Marley (drummer) and Fred Jones, assistant overseer at Alpha. The Band was still active in 1897 but may have wound up soon after as the bands from Brockhampton , Drybrook and Withington feature in club walks after 1900 in the village.

Formed about 1896 and kept this title until 1909 when they adopted the name Foxhole Temperance Band. This carried on through to 1920 when they made the slight, but no doubt important change brought about by a slight feeling of hypocrisy, to Foxhole Silver Band. They started contesting in 1908 and whilst never rising above 2nd section, their results were quite impressive. From 1926 it appears that the only Cornish contest they entered was that at Bugle, and their best achievement was in 1934 when they took 2nd in Class B. John Morcom was their first conductor in 1896. He handed over (and stayed on as a player) to William H Juleff, who himself left in 1906 to take over the St Dennis Band. At this point there was a slight hiccup and the band ceased operations until John Morcom helped reform the band in 1908. He stayed in control until 1929 when the duties went to Albert John Morcom who carried on to the band's demise in the early 50's. The band's instruments and music were loaned to the Cornwall Education Authority. A successor band was formed in 1971

Formed in 1971 by Harold Trethewey, using the instruments and music of the previous band. It was only short lived, and the final bell was sounded in 1973.

Formed in 1910, this band kept its title until 1920 when it became the Fraddon Temperance Band. Its last recorded public appearance was in 1922. During its short lifetime it contested frequently, eleven appearances taking place from 1920 to 1922. The first conductor was A Bullock who was also involved with the Indian Queens Band. Then came William H Juleff who was also principal cornet of the St Dennis Band, and upon his moving on, the next, and last, was W Weedall.

Active in 1849 and through to WW1, having some 20 players by around 1910. Conductor in 1851 and 1882 was S.W. Wright, C.A. Wright in 1894-1895. Their uniforms were a dark coloured high collared tunic with a single row of buttons and little, if any, gold braiding but with, 'wing epaulettes'. The Bandmaster's tunic was similar but with braiding around the collar and, unusually, tassels hanging from the epaulettes. They all wore Australian type bush hats which, again, was an unusual form of headgear. A successor band was formed in 1919

Framlingham Rifles Brass Band - Suffolk

Active in 1878, bandmaster S.W. Wright. The band of the 2nd Suffolk Rifle Volunteers

Framlingham Town Band - Suffolk

Established around 1919 and continued until 1939. Apart from special events such as the annual Gala, and going round the streets playing carols at Christmas; they played on Saturday afternoons on Market Hill during the summer and on some Sunday evenings on Castle Meadow. They used to rehearse in a barn at the back of the Castle Inn. In the Oct/Nov issue of 'The Advertiser' in the 1950's there was a headline 'Can the Old Framlingham Town Band be Revived?' Apparently not as it never was - the instruments which had been stored in their practice room had mysteriously disappeared, and they couldn't afford to get more.

Friary Silver Band - Guildford, Surrey

Competed in the Crystal Palace Championships in the 1930s. Was the works band of the Friary, Holroyd and Healy's Brewery, from Guildford. It was formed and financed back in 1922 by Friary's then head brewer, J.W. Huxley. He had noticed that there were employees who were lovers of music and with an ability to play. He therefore secured for them a set of second-hand instruments. Realising the popularity of the band and its potential, the directors then bought for the players a new set of silver instruments and new uniforms, and the services of a qualified bandmaster were secured. It soon established itself as a band of quality performances. Along with other works brass bands from up and down the country, the Friary Silver Band featured in regular monthly broadcasts by the BBC. The brewery owners no doubt saw this as some very useful national and, what's more, free advertising! During the summer months the band played regularly in Guildford's Castle Grounds while also providing the music there for Armistice Day services. It could also be seen and heard playing at garden parties at large houses in the area, generally to invited guests in the afternoon and then in the evening local people were invited to come and dance on the lawns. The band also played in London parks. Its best competition result came in 1936 at the National Finals held at the Royal Albert Hall, when it was placed third behind the Black Dyke and Foden bands. The musicians' uniform was navy blue with red and gold trim. For a number of years the bandmaster was David Aspinall, but in the late 1930s he was "poached" by Ransome and Miles Ball Bearings Ltd, to become bandmaster of their band. It's said that when he left he took some of the Friary Silver Band's best musicians with him. The Second World War was not far off, and when it came the band members went their separate ways and the band disbanded.

Gainsborough Britannia Works Band - Lincolnshire

Formed in 1878 at Messrs. Marshalls Ironworks, by John F. Cook and J. Vickers. At first it only numbered 8 or 9 members but quickly grew to 24 by 1882 when they entered their first contest at Droylsden. Hugh Whitham of Cleckheaton was appointed conductor and, together with new instruments bought through a subscription list, the band made their first inroads into the prizes. Conductor Mr Crabtree in 1887. Secretary J. Mason in 1891, William Pycock in 1902. It competed in the Crystal Palace Championships in the 1930s. Around 1950 the Band of Britannia Works, Gainsborough, became the new Lincolnshire champions in the annual brass band contest at Cleethorpes, beating Brigg Town Silver Band, runners-up for the last two years to the Grimsby Band, by four points. Grimsby was unplaced. Other bands taking part were from Cleethorpes, Horncastle, Kirton and Lincoln. When the sponsorship from Marshalls ceased in 1972, the band sought a new home, finding it at Spillers Ltd, in Carr Lane. It officially became the Spillers (Gainsborough) Band in 1973, and won the National Championships (Second section) in 1974. John Golland, the famous brass band composer, took up the conductorship of the band in 1976. The band folded in 1980 following the withdrawal of support from Spillers. In 1902 the band led the procession for the annual Band of Hope Festival in Long Preston - "The band played lively march music as the gatherers paraded through the village singing about the virtues of temperance." In some reminiscences of "Christmas in the Dales" there appears the following report - "...Brass bands toured the farms, with the bandsmen growing increasingly unsteady on their legs as they imbibed proffered drinks. The Giggleswick band travelled by train to Clapham station, from where they trudged through snow on a tour of villages and farms. By now, sozzled, they could not hold their instruments, let alone play. Instead, the bandsmen burst into song. Another time, bandsmen sipped hot punch at the Flying Horse Shoe, just across the road from Clapham railway station. Some punch remained when they departed for the one-and-a-half mile walk to the village, so they poured it into a trombone and supped on t'road."

Active from the 1850s. In 1861 they were engaged by the Gillingham Total Abstinence Society at a cost of 20 shillings plus tea. The Band was popular at the local Club days when the Friendly Societies, which were usually based at a Pub, held their annual parties called 'Club Days'. The largest one in Gillingham was the 'Red Lion Club.' They held their 'Do' on the second Wednesday in May and it was a tradition that all members planted their runner beans before going out. The Gillingham Town Band played an important part in the proceedings. They started out at the top of Wyke, outside the Brewery at 10am. To open the proceedings, the Brewery brought out beer in wooden buckets. Those that didn't have mugs knelt down on the ground and drank out of the buckets! The Band then led a procession through the town, all the members carrying garlands of flowers. They were expected to play all day, and later for dancing in the evening. Conductor Mr Harris in 1894, Mr Maloney in 1896. The band folded prior to or during WW1. A successor band was formed in 1928

A report in the Bury Free Press: August 4th 1894, Letters to the Editor - Sir, I have been looking at the bill concerning the Horticultural Show at Glemsford and am surprised to find Haverhill band has been engaged instead of preference to our own band , etc etc. As the matter stands now the money will be given to "foreigners" who neither know or care whether the men are starving or not. Glemsford band is comprised of hard working men, just now most of the men have been working short time and the money which is their lawful right would come as a great boon to them, etc etc. Yours truly, Pro Bono Publico. Then later in the year: November 24th 1894 - On Friday evening a public tea organized by the Glemsford Band took place at the Plough Inn, Glemsford when about 61 people responded to invitations, after full justice was done to "good things" a "free and easy" meeting took place. 1st item on the programme was an overture entitled "the sleep of Dianna" given by the Band in a pleasing style, Mr Lawrence gave a song "muddled and mixed", Mr Leggett gave "after the fall", G.Crick gave "simple little pimple", David Ward of Foxearth gave the "educated bloke" "Bush Ranger in Ausrtralia" by C. Twinn, a duet by Middleditch and Twinn "old miller", C.Sore "mona, Miss M. Twinn "a soldier minstrel", E. Sore gave "swinging to and fro", the chairman "strolling in the sands" and "mother kissed me", Mr E. Game, "the club house", Mr W. Farrance "e dunno where ee are", Mr Eli Watkinson "when Jone's ale was new", Mr Sore gave "success to the football club". The band played the National Anthem and all dispersed home. On 19th December 1901, in a letter to her friend Minnie, Emma Savage wrote: "The Glemsford band came the other night 10.30 we were all in bed we did not get up - they were so spiteful they banged on the knocker four times Nell barked but we refused to turn out of bed".

Glodwick Brass Band - Lancashire

Formed in 1873, dwindled somewhat in the early 1900s, but arose again in 1935 as the Glodwick Prize Band. During this time they became known as the Shamrock Band for a while, following an incident at a St Patrick's Day celebration at the Free Trade Hall together with the Besses o' th' Barn Band, they mistook the shamrock laid on the tables as decoration for water cress and proceeded to eat it, much to everyone's amusement. The Glodwick Band Club was raided by the police in 1949, presumably for drinking after hours, and the band had to sell the instruments to pay the fine. Through a house to house collection and other public subscriptions the band managed to buy back the instruments from Thomas Reynolds and Sons (Manchester) and in recognition changed their name to the Glodwick Public Prize Brass Band in 1950. The band was renamed again in 1955 to become the Lees and Glodwick Band. It amalgamated with the Cobden Chadwick Band (formerly Zion Methodists Band from Lees in Oldham) to form Oldham Brass 97, in 1997.

Whilst the mill complex was in existence for about two centuries the band was formed in 1942. Conductors of the band have included Frank Braithwaite, R. Nevin, Norman Hudson, L.Scott, J.Hewitt, J. Walker, Harold Kemp and Luther Dyson. He had a notable contest success with the band in 1945 at the May Belle Vue contest Manchester when the band was placed 2nd in the class B section. The band's most notable contest win was in 1949 when it was awarded 1st prize at the Daily Herald fourth section finals at Belle Vue and a 1st prize in the 3rd section at the Filey Summer Festival the same year. At the concert following this festival the youngest player 8 year old Peter Teal played a cornet duet with the legendary cornet player Willie Lang of Black Dyke Mills Band. Whilst the band was up and down from the fourth and third sections it did have a purple patch during the 1970s when it was promoted to the second section. However, by 1979 it was in the fourth section. The band's last appearance at a contest appears from available research sources to have been at the 1979 Yorkshire area National Finals, St. George's Hall Bradford. A poor result followed and it would appear that the band folded the following year.

Goodwick Brass Band (1) - Pembrokeshire

Formed in 1911, disbanded around the start of World War 2. From memories of Dai Miles - "Once upon a time, at the turn of the 20th century, in a small community in West Wales called Goodwick, there was a brass band. This group of stalwarts, many of whom had come to the area from Neyland when the Harbour was built, was in the charge of Mr Lake, the headmaster of the local school. Mr Lake and his brother worked in Emlyn Colliery in Ammanford and he played solo cornet in the Colliery Band. He first came here to work in Puncteston School and then became headmaster of the newly built Goodwick School and either took over, or formed the Band. Practices were held in a corrugated zinc hut at the old laundry cottages (long since gone) in Dyffryn . There was no electricity then and the hut was lit by oil lamps on the walls. If the practice was really good the flames would shoot up high and the euphoniums could easily put all the lamps out! Sometimes they used battery lamps but they cost 4s. 6d. each and 4d. for the batteries so there wasn't too much practice in winter! Mr Lake was a hard taskmaster and he would continually admonish them - "you play like a circus band"! The instruments were old, needed new corks, and "clicked" as they were played. "You're banging your instruments against your buttons again!" - a reference to their uniform, which was the G.W.R. jacket and a white paper band put round the hat. In 1914, when War broke out, the Band held a meeting and decided that those of the right age should join up as a Band. They did this and from Kinwell Park in North Wales they were transferred to France, back from the Front Line, where they were used as escorts. One particular day, it seems, they were having a quiet smoke between duties, when an open car came along with an officer and his driver. "Put your instruments in the car and come with me" the officer said. He gave them each a rifle and marched them away. They were scattered then to different regiments. At home the members left behind continued the practices and the Band re-formed after the War. Dai Miles, an old Band member, the source of all these tales, joined the Band in the 1920's and bought his cornet in a pawn shop in Bute Street, Cardiff for £1. Billy Jeff and Jack Evans did the repair work on the instruments. Vincent Johns was President of the Band. At Christmastime the Bandsmen would love to play outside his house. They would have beer brought out to them whilst Mr Lake would be invited in for a swig of something stronger. Vincent Johns would give £1 or £2 for the Band and would then ask them to play "one more piece and give it some drum"! The Band played everywhere. There were lots of sports and carnivals and there were ox roasts in the football field. One year at the ox roasting, they were raising money for St. Mary's Church Hall, which was being built then and they were paid £24.0.0. Then they played at Lower Town Carnival and Sports and were paid £24.0.0 for that as well! There used to be Carnival and Sports at the top of Stop and Call Hill. The Band would form by the Cunard (the fish and chip shop now) and would march up the hill, and then, despite exhausted lungs, would play for a while at the top. John Clement Bowen played the big drum for a bit. But he wasn't very tall and couldn't see over the top too well. One day they were leading the Carnival up Cambria Square to play there for a while, but John Clement Bowen went down Main Street instead, beating the drum as he went and someone had to run after him and haul him back. Their favourite march was the "Washington Greys" and they knew "The Chieftain" so well they could nearly play it without music! In fact, that was the piece they played the last time they ever marched in Goodwick - and also the piece the present Band played the first time they marched through Goodwick. They were great on dance music. They played waltzes, foxtrots, you name it, for the dances in the drill hall and the dances held on the green by the tennis courts on the Parrog on summer evenings. In 1935 they were practising day and night to get ready for the National Eisteddfod that was coming to Fishguard in 1936. They were to lead the Bards and Druids and Danny Jones, a cornet player, was to play the long trumpet. The snag was, he had to ride a horse whilst playing the trumpet. Llewellyn, the Grocer's horse - of a fearsome reputation - was elected to be the trusty steed! Danny Jones, clad in a green suit and boots and blowing the long trumpet, could not ride a horse and so was very frightened, Lewis Rennish who was leading the horse, in spite of a wide vocabulary and a big stick, could not control the poor terrified creature. "

Goole Borough Band - Yorkshire (West Riding)

Active in 1879 as Goole Town Band and Goole Brass Band. Conductors G. Duprey & J. Elliott in 1889. Goole Times - Friday, September 7, 1951: "With its traditions reaching almost 70 years into the past, Goole Borough Band, facing an uncertain future, is making a determined effort to recapture its past glories and to add more successes to its championship achievements which began in 1903 and ended in 1920 with a list of 45 prizes, 34 medals and four challenge cups." The band was "revived" in 1898, according to a note in the Goole Times of 7th October 1898. It disbanded sometime in the late 1970s early 1980s. Band members in 1920 were: W. Morrill, H. Appleyard, H. Perrett, H. Petman, S. Colbridge, J. Marritt, E. Petman, E. Marritt, J. Denby, G. Gravell, D. Johnson, G. Sanderson, W. Petman, G. Tree, R. Murphy, H. Fish, T. Smith, S. Appleyard, W. Woad, T. Guest, F. Gray, C. Pickard, S. Aske, H. Flatters, R. Wilbe, G. Perrett, J. Haigh, T. Rutter, A. Pettinger, G. Metcalfe and G. Snowden. For many years the conductor was George Perrett of Alexandra Street. The deputy conductor was G. Metcalf of 80 Jackson Street and the band secretary was G. Gravell of 20 Henry Street. Messrs Gravell and Perrett were in partnership as joiners and cabinet makers and had a workshop in Burlington Crescent. Amongst many engagements, the band played at almost every event of the Goole centenary celebrations. The weather was very hot and the players must have been exhausted by the end of the week.

Gosport Silver Band - Hampshire

Formed in 1968 as the brainchild of Alderman John Fairhall, a former Mayor of Gosport. While on holiday in Austria he heard a town band and thought that it would enhance the image of Gosport if it too had a town band. He put this idea to Gosport Borough Council, which supported him unanimously and made available a loan of £5,000 for the purchase of instruments, music and uniforms. The council also provided a rehearsal room. The Band's founder Director of Music was Cecil Brown, a retired Royal Marines Commissioned Bandmaster, who led and directed the Band until 1982. He was succeeded by Albert Hall, also a former Royal Marines Bandmaster. Albert was succeeded as Musical Director in April 2005 by Derek Jones and in September 2007 he was succeeded by Richard Sharp. In its early years the Band pioneered music on the Solent, playing on the Isle of Wight ferries on Sunday afternoons while they cruised from Portsmouth to Southampton Water. It was a feature of the welcoming scene when Princess Alexandria visited the town. When the Golden Jubilee of Gosport attaining borough status was celebrated, the Band shared the platform with the Central Band of the Royal Air Force at a gala garden party. It merged with Solent Concert Band in 2011 to form Gosport Solent Brass.

Grayshott Brass Band - Hampshire

George Bernard Shaw was one of the founders of the Grayshott Brass Band in 1899 which, the Grayshott Magazine remarked, "could be a decided acquisition."

The band continued for some years and regularly performed at the local flower shows, garden parties, Band of Mercy shows and similar events. In a list of the initial subscribers, of whom there were 40 subscribing a total of £40. 17. 6., Shaw appears as giving £10. Whether this Band ever scaled musical heights may be doubted, since, when four years later land was given for the purpose of building a Village Hall, the donor inserted, perhaps in order to protect owners of adjacent property, a restrictive covenant prohibiting any 'band practice' on the land. In 1904 the band were permitted to play at the new recreation ground at the junction of Headley and Crossways Roads, if they so wished, not more than two evenings in any week.

Great Central and Metropolitan Band - London

Founded in 1900. When Gladstone Park opened in 1901, brass bands were enjoying a period of great popularity. The group chosen to play at the park was the Great Central and Metropolitan Railwaymen's Band; a joining together of musicians from one-time rival bands. Initially the Local Government Board in Whitehall would not permit the band to be paid, so for some years the musicians were allowed to charge the public for chairs and programmes. Later the rules were changed and the band got a seasonal fee of £35 for the Sunday recitals, which was increased to a £50 when Thursday (early closing) performances were added by 1909. They retained their right to sell programs and charge for chairs. So popular were the concerts that the Council offered little resistance to the band's suggestion that a proper bandstand should be provided. On 28th February 1905 Robson was instructed to prepare a plan and estimates for a covered bandstand, and the next month his costing of £176 was agreed. The resulting rustic thatched structure, which was placed a little to the east of the baths, had all the hallmarks of a Robson special. In 1912 it was insured for £325 against fire. As early as 1910 the Council was considering providing electric lighting to the bandstand but it was not until 1945 that it was agreed that this should go ahead at a cost of £149. Many special events were supported. In 1911 the band gave a special recital to honour the coronation of George V (for which they were paid £15), a 'massed band concert' was permitted on Sunday 4th June from 3pm to 5pm, and in 1915 they organised dances on one Thursday evening per month during the season. The joint band entered many competitions, such as the annual Crystal Palace contests from 1904 onwards, eventually becoming the 'Great Central and Metropolitan Railwaymen's (Silver) Prize Band'. At the 1923 competition they won second prize. The band were to be regular performers at Gladstone Park until 1920 when they refused the Council's offer of £50 for Sunday concerts for the season and requested £6 6s per performance. The Council did not agree and engaged the National Union of Railwaymen (Neasden No.1 Branch) Orphan Fund Band in their place. In 1924 the Great Central and Metropolitan Silver Prize band were approached again but stated they were not prepared to do Sunday evening performances as they had a contract with London County Council (possibly for appearing in Queen's Park). Perhaps they had become too grand. By 1928 the birds had taken most of the thatch off the bandstand. The Council's Outdoor Committee recommended that it be tiled, as re-thatching costs would be prohibitive. The band provided music at the S. Smith and Sons (M.A.) Limited's Sports at Dollis Hill, Neasden in August 1923, and again in 1925. The band was still active in the early 1960s.

Great Northern Railway Plant Works Band - Doncaster, Yorkshire (West Riding)

Also known as the Doncaster Plant Works Band. Formed in 1856 and conducted by George Birkinshaw (father of the famous Black Dyke cornet player and celebrated by William Rimmer's march "Viva Birkinshaw!"). Its original composition was two sopranos, six cornopeans, two tenor horns, one baritone, three trombones, two ophicleides, one Eb bass bombardon, and percussion. The band won many prizes between 1859 and 1861 and played many arrangements and compositions of marches and waltzes by Birkinshaw. Including 3rd prize at Lincoln on 6 June 1859, and 1st prize, gaining £15, at Peterborough on 5 September 1859 (where the bandsmen had to "defend themselves physically against disappointed rivals afterwards!), and 2nd prize at the contest at the Botanical Gardens in Sheffield in 1860. Renamed Doncaster Volunteer Band in 1859. Birkinshaw introduced his own brass band compositions in concerts given out of doors in the town: Festive Polka, Rouse Polka, the galop Spring Flowers, Pas Redouble, at least one march, a cornet trio and an arrangement for three cornets of "Lift Thine Eyes" from Elijah. In one 1859 Doncaster concert Birkinshaw conducted Jullien's Mary Ann Polka and French Quadrille. Birkinshaw left the band in 1865, but it continued successfully under the batons of J Redfern, S Wilson and Mr Salmon, until it disbanded when the Volunteers were absorbed into the King's Own Yorkshire Light Infantry Regiment in 1908.

Greenhow Hill Victoria Band - Yorkshire (West Riding)

Formed in the early 1860s. It is mentioned by Thomas Blackah in his poem of 1865 about the Feast: "The Nidderdale Rant" - 'And Victoria Band maks under t'tree, A bonny racket.' Used to play in the Greenhow Chapel. When the Chapel got an organ, they could not play, which caused a great deal of trouble. The band was thought to be very good and was much sought after on festive occasions in the area. There were 17 in the band: Joe Mackwell (1st Cornet), John Green (2nd Cornet), Ann Green (Bass), Thomas Blackah (Bass Instrument), Richard Blackah (A horn going right round his body), Jossie Blackah (Bass Instrument), Maw Simpson (Single Bass), Will Green (Big Drum), Thomas Wilkinson Marshall (Little Drum), R Mackwell (A round instrument), Duncan Mackwell (1st Fiddle), Jackie Green (Double Bass), ? (Trombone), 4 others (String Instruments). Nathaniel Grainge ('Natty wey t'stick') was also in the band according to another source. Conductor John Green in 1876. Greensplat Brass Band - Cornwall

Formed in 1913, the circumstances of WW1 interfered somewhat, and the band experienced problems with repayments on the instrument loan and so had to cease activities. Immediately after that little European disagreement was resolved they restarted their band life, which carried on until about 1935.

Situated just outside the village of Bugle, for Greensplat bandmen, contesting was an important activity from 1919 until 1930. R Hancock led the band from its inception to 1920. It is not known, at present, who was resident conductor from this point on but they did continue to contest, once under EJ Williams (sen) three times under a J Bassett (perhaps by coincidence, there was a J Bassett horn player who had finished playing with Foxhole Band - was this the same man?), and a couple of times by a G Attwood but in 1926 Charles H Baker became professional adviser to them, continuing for the next four years, after which Len Manhire took over until their demise. Also known as Greensplat Silver Band.

Grundisburgh Brass Band - Suffolk

The earliest known press report is the Suffolk Standard of August 1892, when the band played at a local show, conducted by W. Blackmore. In June 1893 they played at an open-air concert in the grounds of Grundisburgh Hall, and it was reported that "The programme was interspersed with items by the Grundisburgh Brass band, which shows considerable improvement since last year" Evidently the reporter wasn't a fan! Later that year, at a formal sit-down tea, it was reported that the band had 23 members, and the conductor, G. Walter Blackmore, (the village schoolmaster), and the bandmaster, Richard H Gladwell, were both presented with inscribed marble clocks, so the band must have been going longer than so far confirmed. In September 1892 it played at a Sale of Work at Grundisburgh House, in July 1894 and also in 1896 is entertained visitors to the Wherstead and Belstead Cottagers' Show. July 1898 saw the band in action at the Clopton Flower Show and also the Witnesham Cottagers' Show. In February 1900 it gave a concert for the "Absent-minded Beggar Fund", raising £6 - this fund had been set up by the Daily Mail, using the popular poem by Rudyard Kipling as a focus for charitable fundraising during the Boer War. Conductor E. Savage in 1902. The band was still active after WW1.

Gwaun Cae Gurwen Brass Band (2) - Glamorgan

In 1892 a meeting was held to form a brass band in Gwaun Cae Gurwen. The records show that each founder member had to deposit £5 with Higham & Sons towards the £250 needed to purchase a set of second hand instruments. Furthermore, each band member had to contribute one shilling per week to help clear the balance owed. As the band grew in strength, it was officially decreed on the 11th December 1893 that a society had been formed and henceforth be known as the Gwaun Cae Gurwen Brass Band. It prospered through WW1 and folded in 1932. Obtained new instruments in 1919. Secretary Evan Price in 1893. Tom Rees played soprano cornet in 1900

Gwaun Cae Gurwen Brass Band (3) - Glamorgan

In September 1933 the former bass player Dan Lloyd, who had joined the band in 1901, was invited to form a junior band assisted by a few of the former players. By Whitsun 1934 the newly formed young band was ready for its first contest, success soon followed with the band winning first prize. The same year they qualified to compete at the famous Crystal Palace in London when again the first prize in their section was brought home to Wales. This was the start of a partnership which brought unrivalled success with the local band achieving 28 firsts, 3 seconds and one third prize in the first 32 contests attended between 1933 and 1939. In 1945 they won for the first time the Daily Herald Welsh Area Championship and at the Royal Albert Hall finals shared 7th place with Black Dyke. The band disbanded in 1953.

In 1955 interested local youngsters were gathered together and taught from scratch to play and understand music by Haydn Morris in an endeavour to start another band and by 1956 there was a full compliment aided by five former players. That same year the newly formed band qualified in the Welsh Area Contest held at the Brangwyn Hall, Swansea. This was the much needed incentive and success followed in 1959 when the band qualified for the London Championships where they remained until 1965. In an endeavour to overcome earlier mistakes a junior band had also been formed under the baton of Mr. Ivor Davies. The year 1965 saw for the first time a championship band together with a junior band and later having qualified at Swansea, went on to win the National Youth Championship of Great Britain a great tribute to Ivor who had worked so diligently with the youngsters. The relegation of the main band proved a difficult period and failure to encourage the best young players from the successful junior band to fill vacancies in the senior band caused its eventual collapse in 1967. What had started as a safeguard had conversely through its own success proved the main band's downfall. The junior band continued as a 4th section band from 1967 to become the current Gwaun Cae Gurwen Brass Band. Halliwell Brass Band - Lancashire

Formed in 1858, they originally took the name Jubilee Band, owing to their membership being from St Peter's Jubilee Sunday School. Conductor Paul Gregory in 1868, John Kay in 1905. Some time before 1870 the band severed its ties with St Peter's and took the name Halliwell Band (though still being known also as Halliwell Jubilee Brass Band). In 1873 they played at the opening of the Town Hall. Secretary W. Ashworth in 1902. Halliwell Band disbanded during the First World War as 22 members signed up! Two were killed and three gained the DCM. A record that they were very proud of Sir Knowles Edge JP was a great supporter of the band in the early part of the last century. Evening News, July 21, 1904 - The attendance at the weekly band performance in Queen's Park, Bolton, on Wednesday evening did not reach its usual dimensions. The Halliwell Prize Brass Band occupied the kiosk and the programme was gone through with great credit to themselves. A melancholy interest was attached to the performance owing to the death of Bandmaster Range, late musical director of the concerts, and out of respect to the deceased's memory the band played the Dead March. Jack Wilson, who lived in Bolton from 1936 to 1951, said, "My Dad was conductor of Halliwell Prize Band, and worked until the war at Crossleys, who I believe made ropes and cables. Old man Crossley was chairman of the band, and when the war started most of the players were called up, and Dad went on munitions. The band never really recovered." The band played at church and chapel walking days, Field Days, Garden Parties, Rose Queens and for Christmas Carols. In Bolton there were the Trinity Sunday Walks of the Roman Catholics, the May Day parade of carthorses from the brewers and carriers, and that feast of entertainment the Royal Infirmary Carnival where jazz bands vied with brass bands. The leader in the 1930s was possibly a portly gentleman called Gregory, who lived in Olga Street, and the band met at the Peel Arms on Halliwell Road - whether to practice or drink is not known! At the time it disbanded in the early 1950s it practiced in St Paul's School. Another earlier member of the band was George Kay. He lived at 6 Saturn Street, attended Harvey Street Chapel and worked at Dobson and Barlow. He had three children, one son and two daughters. In February 1917 he enlisted in the North Staffordshire Regiment, sadly he was killed in May 1918, aged 40. The band at some point became the Halliwell Prize Brass Band [before 1904], what prize it won is not known but apparently it was jokingly said to be third prize when there were only three competitors. On Christmas morning they would start playing Hail Smiling Morn at the Ainsworth Arms and travel down Halliwell Road calling at other pubs en route. How far they got before they could no longer play is not recorded. The band latterly was sponsored by Henry Crossley (Packings) Ltd., and it would seem that when the band finished in the early 1950s the uniforms, instruments and music were stored by them, and then sold.

- Haltwhistle Old Silver Band - Northumberland

Formed in 1898. Disbanded August 2004. In its heyday, Haltwhistle Old Silver Band acted like the proud standard bearer for the town. It stood for musical accomplishment and, perhaps more importantly, community spirit. Some men devoted the whole of their adult lives to the band, meeting for rehearsals three times a week and frequently spending a fourth performing at events throughout the region. They were joined by their brothers and followed by their sons. Meanwhile, their wives concentrated on organising fundraising events to help cover the band's costs. So it is with heavy hearts that the last three members of the band have decided to call it a day. It has existed in name only for many years now, kept going by a hand-full of members who could not imagine life without their regular music sessions. Now the writing is truly on the wall, though, because they have decided to put the old Band Room up for sale. Situated at the bottom of Comb Hill, the building has been home to the band since it sounded its first notes. Which is why the last three members * Jonty Bell, Tom Fletcher and Dryden Smith * are determined that the money realised by the sale will provide a lasting legacy in Haltwhistle. They will use it to set up a trust fund, which will be used to foster the musical ambitions of local people. They have requested that Haltwhistle Town Council runs the trust fund, which was unanimously agreed to by councillors during their latest meeting. Along with his fellow councillors, chairman Coun. Alan Sharp paid warm tribute to Jonty for the role he has played in Haltwhistle Old Silver Band for almost 80 years. Jonty was also well known across the district for his leading role in the Singing Waiters over 25 years. "I would just like to thank you on behalf of the town for all the hard work you have put in over the years," said Coun. Sharp. "You were a stalwart of the band. "You have done so much for the town, and I can safely say you are held in high regard for your devotion and commitment. "People have succeeded in bands and singing because of your hard work. "I think the trust will be a good thing for the future of Haltwhistle and for children who are interested in music." Coun. Graham Ridley added: "In the past, the band has done a great deal to bring on youngsters. "A lot of them got their first introduction to music through the band. "If the trust carries on that good work, it will be a good thing for the town. We will all be grateful to you for that." Jonty was just five years old when he was first introduced to band life. "I used to go along with my father * he was the conductor at the time," he said. "The band room was a wreck then. There was flooring in just half the room. "While the band was playing in that half of the room, I used to sit in the other half making pot-pies in the dirt. "I joined the band properly when I was eight years old." Jonty is now 84. His father, who was also called Jonathan, played the euphonium. Jonty played the E-flat bass, while his elder brother, George, played the cornet. It has been Tom Fletcher who has kept the band going in recent years, says Jonty. Known for his skill on the trombone, Tom stepped into the breach when the band needed a conductor. The remaining member of their stalwart group, Dryden, played the double-B bass. "At one time, every village had a band, such as

Haydon Bridge and Bardon Mill," said Jonty. "The 1950s and 1960s were the heyday for us. "We qualified twice for the national finals of a competition run by the Daily Herald, and we travelled down to London. "We travelled all over the country during those days, and family and friends used to come with us. "We had a terrific social life. It was grand. "In the end, though, the interest in bands just fizzled out," The Band Room will be closed at the end of August (2004)

Hamble Valley Brass - Hedge End, Hampshire

[current band] - Founded in 2001, first conceived as an idea by elder members of the Hamble Area Youth Band (formerly the Hamble Area Schools Band). These young people felt that their great times and experiences playing together should continue beyond youth band age. Under the sage baton of their former youth band conductor, a brass ensemble was formed and began rehearsing in a Hedge End church lobby a few Fridays each month. By 2011 membership of the ensemble had boomed, soundscapes shifted and a motivation to practise, play and perform persistantly was set. Hamble Valley Brass had become a full brass band and was ready to immerse itself into its communities in a way only a brass band can.

Hanwell Brass Band - Middlesex

Formed in 1892. In the autumn of 1891 some people had the idea of starting a public brass band and hoped to raise enough funds to purchase instruments. An announcement appeared in the Middlesex County Times on May 7, 1892 stating that a band was being formed and a committee had been formed. Among these was a Mr Williams, who was the bandmaster of the Hanwell Asylum Band. It said the personnel would be mainly professional bandsmen, but a junior band would also be formed. An appeal was made to the 'Gentry and Traders for help to buy the instruments'. The landlord of the Viaduct Inn made a room available for the band's weekly practice, which no doubt was good for business with a few

pints being bought by the thirsty musicians at the close of the evening. The response from the general public was good, new instruments were bought and the band made its first public appearance at Hanwell Broadway under the baton of Mr Williams in 1892. The first full concert took place during evening service at the Union Church in late February 1893. The programme included the Hallelujah Chorus from Handel's Messiah. The band were fortunate to secure the services of Mr W Woods, who was experienced in competition work in the north of England, and so entries were submitted to take part in various brass band competitions. Uniforms were obtained and victories came, so the band changed its name to The Hanwell Prize Band to signal these successes. After winning first prize in a contest at Tottenham in 1913, the name was changed again to The Hanwell Silver Prize Band. During the Great War, many of the bandsmen joined the forces and the band was suspended, but in 1918 steps were taken to restart it under the conductorship of Reg Bravington. Hanwell Urban Council granted the use of Elthorne Park for a Brass Band Festival, which was a great success both musically and financially, for funds raised enabled the band to buy a full set of silver-plated instruments. More wins were secured and the band were invited to broadcast by the BBC, took part in a concert at the Prince of Wales Theatre and appeared with Gracie Fields in the film Look Up and Laugh, which was made at nearby Ealing Studios. The band's proudest boast was that they had entertained 40,000 people at one appearance. This was at a match at Brentford between the home team and Arsenal at Griffin Park, where the band played for two and a half hours. They also took part in the Brentford and Chiswick Carnival in September 1960. The band went on to take part in the national brass band contest at the Royal Albert Hall. The band in 1965 was: MD Eric Bravington, soprano G. Whiting, solo cornets D. Allison, B. Birchall, Miss B. Chew, A. Faraway, repiano G. Lee, flugel T. Williams, 2nd cornets C. Hughes, P. Hyland, 3rd cornets R. Darawalla, S. King, tenor horns L. Butland, F. Bing, D. Jewitt, R. Beesley, baritones J. DuBois, T. Evans, euphoniums J. Luckett, C. Davies, tenor trombones G. Groom, R. Norton, B. Howells, bass trombone J. Hill, Eb basses T. Collins, L. Bryant, Bb basses L. Newstead, G. Howells, A. Howard, percussion B. Thomas. In January 1979, the Middlesex Chronicle announced that a forthcoming concert at Cranford School would be the last under the present name. The band had agreed to sponsorship by the Roneo Vickers Office Equipment Group and it would be renamed the Roneo Vickers Band. The band was also known as the Roneo Alcatel Band during this period and eventually folded around 2001. Some of the players joined Capital Concert Brass, of West London. Harlow Brass Band (2) - Essex

Founded in August 1889, bandmaster Sam Deards, instructor G. Martin, practice nights Tuesdays and Thursdays. Contemporary photographs show the members in full uniforms: high collars lots of buttons and complete with flat caps. This was the village of Harlow, (now Harlow Old Town). The band did not survive the Great War.

Harlow Brass Band (3) - Essex

Around 1959-1960, an ex-army musician, Harry Crossley, had the idea of starting a brass band in Harlow. He invited other ex-army musicians with whom he had contacts to form the nucleus of the band (together with local musicians). They in turn were attracted to the prospect of employment at the factories being built in the New Town. Harlow Council provided a grant for a set of silver and blue concert music folders (which are now in the possession of the current Harlow Brass Band). The band began well and for some while performed in and around Harlow. However, it didn't become fully established, probably because of a shortage of new young players to provide continuity and disbanded in the early 1960s. The current, successor band was formed in 1967

Harpur Hill Piggery Band - Derbyshire

Was formed in the village of Harpur Hill in 1946, first marching in the Victory parades. It was a "comic" brass band, numbering at its greatest up to 40 musicians, most of whom seemed to have been very talented bandsman from top-section bands, like Fairy's, Ferodo, Cresswell Colliery etc. having retired from full time banding. It was led by Ike Dunn and folded soon after his death in 1951. They played for dancing, gave concerts and marched in a miscellany of parades in Derbyshire, Cheshire and Staffordshire.

Harpur Hill Silver Band - Derbyshire

Active in 1891. Henry Pickford was a member in the 1890s. It finally folded in the early 1960's. Its conductor at that time was Roy Orritt, who took over the baton from his father, Harry Orritt. Harry was a noteworthy soprano player, before taking up the baton and he returned to the cornet ranks when he handed over to his son. The soprano player by then was Jimmy Bossley. Some players played with more than one band. e.g. Tom Pickford who was the best double bass player in the Peak District and who played with Harpur Hill, his village of domicile and also Dove Holes for many years. He also played with the Harpur Hill Piggery Band. Similarly, Jimmy Bossley also played with the Piggery Band. They were provided with free practice room facilities, as was also Peak Dale Band, by the principal employer in the district, I.C.I. (Lime Division). The grave footstone of Harry Orritt d. 18 March 1955, aged 63, reads: "In memory of Harry Orritt who gave faithful service to Harpur Hill Band for many years. Harpurhey and Moston Silver Band - Lancashire

Founded as the Harpurhey and Moston Public Subscription Band in the early 1890s. The Bevan name became associated with the Band when Reece Bevan joined in 1905 as a euphonium player. The band disbanded at the outbreak of the 1914 war and was reformed in 1919 by Reece Bevan, who became its leader, bandmaster and Drum Major. It was formed as a private company by 10 members who donated 10 pounds each from their services gratuities to purchase instruments etc.. It had a strict rule that all shareholders must take an active role in the Band either as a player or official. The Band included five of Reece Bevan's sons. In 1930 the Band purchased the bandroom in Factory Lane, Harpurhey. Reece Bevan was Secretary of the Manchester and Districts Amateur Brass Band Association for over 20 years, and was a pioneer of the Brass Bands Association. Reece Bevan lived at 31 Leyland Street, Harpurhey. At the time of his retirement from the band at the age 74, Reece's five sons plus four grandsons were active members of the Band, together with a further 20 members. The band used to march for the local churches at Whit Sunday etc. and play in the Bigart Hole Clough band stand on Sunday evenings. A junior band was formed in 1950. J. Bevan conducted the band in the Senior Trophy contests in the early 1950s. The band finally disbanded in the late 1950's. Bevan playing members were - sons: Harold, Jack, Jim, Bill, Eric, and grandsons: Eric jnr. Clifford, Arthur, ?. Clifford went onto be a member of the Temperance Seven and a Doctor of Music, Eric Jr. was a member of the East Lancashire Regimental Band serving in Germany.

Harrogate Band - Yorkshire (West Riding)

[current band] - Founded in 1970. Conductors: Neil Richmond (1970-1977), John Kendrew 1977, John Higginson (1977-1982), Peter Littlewood (1982-1987), Peter Wells (1987-1994), David Lancaster (1994-2008), Steve Morland (2008-2009), Roy Waite (2009-2010), Craig Ratcliffe (2010-2014), Craig Buchan 2015, Dean Jones (2016-2017). The Band was formed in April 1970 from a nucleus of former Harrogate Granby High School Concert Band pupils who wanted to continue their playing after leaving the school. It was the first brass band in Harrogate since the original Harrogate Silver Prize Band folded in 1956. The Band's first conductor, Neil Richmond, led it to success at its first contest in November 1970 at York. By September 1971 there was a full Band of over 25 players, and it had started to purchase its own instruments. Concerts that first year included the first of a regular series of concerts in the Valley Gardens in Harrogate. Each successive musical director stamped his character on the band and continued its musical development in his own manner. Under their tutelage the band rose up the sections to the Championship Section in the North of England. It currently competes in the 1st Section nationally. A strong administration underpins the band's musical endeavours - an essential adjunct for any aspiring or successful organisation. The Band has established itself as the premier brass band in the local area. It performs over 30 concert engagements each year and enters around 5 contests. The Band has been involved in a wide range of engagements over the years, including joint concerts with choirs, commercial functions, garden parties, fetes, weddings, church services, carol concerts and carol playing in the town, small groups of players, fanfare trumpets, sporting events, agricultural shows, radio and television broadcasts, marches and processions, charity concerts, massed band concerts and many others. The Band has undertaken seven overseas concert tours. It has travelled to Bergen in Norway as the guests of Sandvikens Ungdomskorps in 1977 and 1984, hosting their trip to Harrogate in 1975. It has also been to Bad Hersfeld in Germany as the guests of the Stadt Musikverein Band (SMV) in 1981, 1986 and 1990, and hosted SMV's trips to Harrogate in 1982, 1987 and 1993. Then followed a tour to Prague in the Czech Republic in 1996. It also hosted a visit of the Gerwens Muziekkorps (GMK) Band, from Nuenen in The Netherlands, in October 1998 and visited GMK in Holland in May/June 2000. A tour to the Rhineland in Germany in 2003 was followed by a concert tour in Belgium and Holland in 2007. Our latest overseas tour was to Luchon in the Pyrenees in 2014 for their Flower Festival. The Band loves contesting and is successful in many of the contests it enters. It has qualified for and competed in the National Brass Band Championship Finals three years running 2002, 2001, 2000, and also achieved that honour in 1985, 1990, 1991, 1992, 1996, 2011 and 2013. The Band became North of England Region Champions (1st Section) in 2001, 2011 and 2013. Note: Other related bands: Harrogate Silver Band, Harrogate Borough Band.

The Victoria Institute, at Hartshead Moor near Scholes, was established in 1868. This was largely on the initiative of Robert Firth Crosland (of the long-established local Quaker family). One of the Institute's first activities was to form a brass band. It promoted a contest in 1876. Secretary A. Bentley in 1876. Still active in 1877. The band rehearsed at the Grey Ox Inn. All the band's instruments, uniforms, music and stands, were sold by auction in February 1878 - so it is assumed that it had disbanded. The institute folded around 1922.

Hastings and St Leonards Gospel Temperance Band - Sussex

Founded in August 1889, President H.A. Jepson, Vice Presidents E. Kemp, D. Smith, R. Wood, E. Tapner and W.H. Duly, Treasurer G.E. Grimes, Secretary J. Phillips. Still active in 1905. In 1903 the Bandmaster was C. Overington, Treasurer D. Russell, Secretary H. Fellows, Corresponding Secretary G. Facer. It had attended 47 engagements in 1902, and consisted of 19 members. Gordon Waters reports: There is mention in the local papers of them playing at churches and events, but I have yet to trace anything listing the membership, or the coming or going of the band. The local museum has nothing on them. They had certainly ceased to exist well before WW2, long before Sussex Brass came into existence. Among the tenor horn players is my wife's great-grandfather George Jeffery, who also played in the Hastings 1 (later Hastings Citadel) Salvation Army band. Caleb, one of his sons and my wife's great-uncle, was the bandmaster and went to prison when the Salvation Army were persecuted for holding open air services on the beach. If you've seen "Brassed Off" when Pete Postlethwaite is in hospital and the band play outside wearing their miners helmets, Brighton Congress Hall SA band actually cycled out to Lewes and played hymn tunes by the light of carbide cycle lamps outside the prison to keep Caleb's spirits up. He wore his Bandmaster's uniform to prison before he had to change into prison clothing. One of George Jeffery's other sons Tom (my wife's grandfather) was the bandmaster of Hastings 2 (Silverhill) band. I have quite a collection of Hastings SA band photos spanning the years.

[current band] - Founded in 1860 - Former names: Merrall's Spring Head Band, Spring Head Brass Band, Haworth Public Prize Band. Balance sheet at the 1898 annual meeting showed income of £72 4s 5d, expenditure of £56 0s 6d, and a balance of £16 3s 10d. Note: Other related bands: Ponden Band. On Mr Merralls retirement from business at Spring Head Mill the people of Haworth bought the band for £200 having raised the money by public subscription and the band then became known as the Haworth Public Subscription Band. In the 1960s the Haworth bandroom was a large room above the Fleece pub in Haworth Main Street, where players sat on long wooden forms without backs, John Moor, their conductor, standing in the middle. The heating was provided by a cast iron coke stove. With all the weight it had to carry, the room above the Fleece became unsafe. The band became something of a wandering band, rehearsing for periods at such places as the Co-Op Hall in the main street Haworth, the Primary School Haworth, a wooden hut in a disused quarry (now the main car and coach park for Haworth), Hillworth Lodge in Keighley. In 1970 they were given a roll in the film 'The Railway Children', still being shown almost annually on TV. Gordon Langford composed for them 'Three Haworth Impressions'. Conductor Michael Norcross in 1983. From 2005 to 2009 conductors were: Del Tiller, Fiona Bishop, Wilbur Paley, Donna Towes and Charles Hindmarsh.

Hawthornden Brass Band - Otley, Yorkshire (West Riding)

Formed around 1889 by Mr Henry Dacre. He interested himself in a group of Otley choir boys and took them to his home, Hawthornden, and there gave them an undoubtedly good musical training. Soon he procured for the lads a set of brass instruments and the Hawthornden Band was born. The band folded in 1904. This was the start of his social activities in the town, which included building the Otley Recreation Hall and gardens. Sadly, when he died in 1913, his estate was insolvent, his generosity being based on significant debts to many creditors in the town.

Hayle Town Band (1) - Cornwall

Founded in the early 1900s. In 1908 there was a Mr Head, a band cornet player, who took part in a solo contest at Newquay, and it would seem that the band was in business under a Mr M.A.C.Trebilcock, attending to the usual run of Sunday school and Band of Hope tea treats. During the 1914/18 Great War, Hayle Band continued to function despite a "Hayle Military Band" being formed by one Harry Robins, a man who was conducting St Agnes and Perranporth bands before and after his sojourn at Hayle. After WW1 they took on the title Hayle Comrades of the War Band, then Hayle Town Band on then on to Hayle Silver Band. In 1925, John Tanner, who had been conducting the St Ives Band, took over. There was, later, a C Williams conducting and in 1938 the Welshman Beth H David came along. Apart from an appearance in 1912, contests were mainly carried out from 1925 to 1938. During this period one 1st is recorded, their results being mainly placings. WW2 saw the demise of the band. A successor band was formed in 1973

Ridgway in 1903, W. Smith in 1905. Known as Aylesbury Victoria (Printing Works) Brass Band in the early years. Active in 1890s through WW1 to the 1960s. Performed a broadcast on the National Programme from 6.45 to 7.30, Saturday evening, January 28th 1939. Some notes from Jan Unsworth - "My great grandfather, William Smith, was involved with Hazell's Printing Works Band for 40 years, 16 of those years he was Bandmaster, until his retirement in 1934, he was also an employee of Hazell's for 49 years. During his leadership the Band won many cups and trophies and gained success at leading band competitions. The outstanding achievement was in 1932 when, at Hanwell, they were placed second in the Championship section, and my great grandfather was awarded a gold medal as the best amateur conductor. Music was always the outstanding interest in his life. He had been the bandmaster of the Volunteers' Company Band, and the Bucks Territorials Band and, in the days of the Comrades' Orchestra, he acted as its conductor. His son, Aubrey Smith, my grandfather, was also a very talented man and played many instruments, trumpet, piano, accordian, drums, bugle, cornet, My grandfather also had his own band, Aubrey Smith's Dance Band, and continued playing with Hazell's Printing Works band after my great grandfathers death."

Heage Brass Band (2) - Derbyshire

[current band] - Founded in 1916 - Former names: Heage Silver Band, Heage United Band. The band began when a group of men from the village purchased their own instruments in order to make music. Fund raising efforts, mainly concerts and parades, eventually made possible the purchase of a complete set of instruments and uniforms. Through the years the band had to rehearse in various public houses and the church hall but in 1974 they bought their own head quarters at Nether Heage. After completing of the alterations to the Nether

Heage head quarters the band then set themselves the task of replacing all of the original instruments – this cost £6,500 in the 1970s, a mammoth task indeed

Formed in 1879 by William Reid, conductor Mr Maddison, as the "New Brass Band". Conductor Mr Pearson in 1889. The band won the Crystal Palace National Championships in 1904, conducted by Angus Holden. The band's victory tour however displeased the colliery management to the extent that some men were dismissed from the pit on their return. Folded in 1907. A newspaper report in December 1907 states: "The Hebburn Colliery Band did much by its fine playing to brighten the colliery village on Tyneside. But it had the misfortune to win the £1,000 challenge trophy at the Crystal Palace two years ago. Outside engagements poured in, and proprietors felt that they were not justified in supporting the band when it so seldom played in the village. So they withdrew their support and the band has been given up. This is not a pleasant story." The band's instruments were subsequently acquired by the Benwell and District Band.

Helsby Family Brass Band (2) - Bolton, Lancashire

Formed around 1895. On a Sunday afternoon there was a large family gathering at one of the family's houses, when someone said 'Well. There are enough of us, why not form a band of our own again!' They sent a hat round and the collection amount to 4 shillings and 6 pence. They went to see an instrument firm, where they struck a deal and 13 Helsby's and a drummer started a band. Another tale told is one day while carrying out a Church procession in Farnworth one wit called out in excited tones, 'Hello Helsby there, I say Helsby!' Every member looked round on hearing his name called, causing a temporary breakdown in the performance. In about 1912 the family became scattered across the country and this was the end of the band. Many of the family members went on to play in other local bands, notably one, Mr Thomas Helsby, became conductor of Eagley Brass Band.

The only reference to this band is of them leading a large and impressive procession celebrating the end of the war with Russia in 1856. By this date they were almost certainly a "brass band". The event took place in Marazion but they were almost certainly an ad hoc band (all established bands would have already been booked in their own towns for an event such as this), so there is no mention a leader.

Hetton Silver Band - Durham

Founded on April 1st 1887 by three members of a public house band. They invited local musicians to a meeting in Hetton Union Street Methodist Church School. Their first conductor was Mr W Straughan - a violinist and trombone player. Land in South Market Street, in Hetton-le-Hole, was bought from Hetton Coal Company for £25 and a tin practice hut was built. The hut was replaced by a brick building in about 1912 and remained in use until 2009. The band briefly disbanded in 1900, and was reformed in 1901. Between then and 1907 the band won numerous local contests but their real success began in 1908 when they won both the Durham and Northumberland Brass Band championship and the English and Scottish International Contest. In 1912 they won the Grand Shield at the Crystal Palace contest. The band had strong links with the Mining Industry and played for the Eppleton Miners Lodge in the Durham Miners Gala. In 1914 the band won the 2nd section at Belle Vue in Manchester, and in 1926 made a radio broadcast in 1926 from Newcastle Radio Station. It again won the 2nd Section at Belle Vue in 1947. In the 1970s and 1980s it moved up from the 4th section to play in the Championship section. In 2009 the remaining members of the band amalgamated with Broughtons Brass Band to form the Durham Miners Association Brass Band. The Hetton Band Hall, now redundant, was offered to Beamish Museum. It was moved, brick by brick, and rebuilt and restored at Beamish Museum, opening in May 2013. Member in 1947 were: E. Lawrence, J. Garside, R. Thompson, N. Lord, J. Bruce, R. Maddison, J. Highgate Silver Band - Middlesex

Founded in 1879 as Highgate and Barnsbury Brass Band. Conductor G.S. Page in 1879-1881, Mr Leed in 1889, J.W. Seed in 1896. Probably merged with the Holloway Crusaders Band to form Highgate and Holloway United Band around 1912. The band made a trip to Guernsey in 1919 which was reported in the local press and of which some postcards exist. An article in the "Star" of 1919 mentions that the band had taken over as the band of the Middlesex RAMVC 'two years ago'. Articles in the Press and the Star mention a bandsman Wreford Devoto. He was born in Yeovil, and in 1901 his father, Louis, was described as a salvation army officer. Three Devotos were players in the staff band of the New York Salvation Army, who are believed to be William Devoto, son of Louis and brother of Wreford, and his sons. The visit to Guernsey started on 6th June 1919, under the guise of the band of the Middlesex Royal Army Medical Corps, under the direction of Lt. J. H. Kichenside, and they were engaged for five two-hour performances in Candie Gardens over the Whitsuntide Holiday of 7-9 June, 1919. Admission was sixpence on Saturday, fivepence on Sunday and Monday, and chairs could be had for a shilling. They received an excellent review in the paper of Monday 9th, although on Saturday afternoon they had played "we regret to write, before a comparatively small attendance of the public". Back home, the Woodman Inn, at the junction of Archway Road and Muswell Hill Road, was owned by landlord Charles Ramsay who took over in the 1840s and didn't retire until the 1890s. In 1884 it was still surrounded by trees and fields, and was little changed from when it was a coaching inn. It was refurbished c.1920, and at that time was still a waiting point for carters who waited for a carter coming in the opposite direction so that each in turn could take advantage of the extra horse when surmounting Muswell Hill. The Highgate Silver Band used to play outside of Saunders the florist, opposite the Woodman Inn every Sunday morning. Subsequently became the Arsenal Football Club Band, which was active in the 1930s.

Highley Brass Band - Shropshire

Active from the early 1890s. Conductor James B. Jones in 1893. Later known as Highley Colliery Band, and sometimes as Alveley Colliery Band. It was disbanded in 1967 when the mine closed. It is believed its first conductor was a head pit surveyor called Horace Lloyd, who also owned Lloyds shop in High Street. The Highley Mining Company began trading in 1877 and soon became a profitable enterprise. It was taken over by the National Coal Board in 1947 and employed over 1,000 men at its peak. A new band of the same name was formed in 1993.

Hillsborough Conservative Brass Band - County Down

Hillsborough Silver Band - County Down

Founded in 1850 and was the official band at the opening of the Banbridge Railway Station in 1859. The band was founded by Lord William Hills who, whilst visiting his estates in England, observed bands at work and decided to bring instruments back to Hillsborough for its own band. The band like all bands in that period started off as a flute band due to the low startup costs of instruments but progressed over the years to Brass and then Silver providing a service to the local community disrupted only by the first world war as was the case throughout the country at that time. The band held its rehearsals in the upstairs rooms of the old Market House (which later became the Courthouse) where it remained until the "troubles" in the Province and the close proximity to the Hillsborough Castle (where the Secretary of State for NI resided) forced the band to seek other accommodation in the village. The band carried out a great number of engagements locally and successfully contested in the BBL, NIBA and further afield over the years. Sadly due to a combination of lack of financial support and a decline in members, the band finally had to call it a day in 1990 and amalgamated with the Reid Memorial Silver Band to form Downshire Brass. Hinchliffe Mill Brass Band - Holmfirth, Yorkshire (West Riding)

Formed in 1872, with family ties being an important feature of this band. Five brothers joined following their resignation from nearby Holme Silver band. Secretary A. Carter in 1900. It folded in 2000. In 1925 Noel Thorpe was appointed the band's new professional conductor and a highly successful period followed. However, by the end of the twentieth century with so many players leaving the band it was unable to recover and ceased to function. Legend has it that in the early days a pig used to be borrowed from a farmer and placed on a wall to listen during rehearsals. If the pig remained quiet and contented the bandsmen took it they would do well at their forthcoming concert. Grunting was a sign that the chances of winning a prize were not good at all. Harry Haigh, who joined in 1918 and was bandmaster from 1938 until 1970, followed in his father's footsteps. At different times he had two uncles, a brother and three cousins playing alongside him in the band. His grandfather was a founder member of the band. At one time, according to tradition, all the more important practices were carried out in the open air in front of a pig, which was regarded as a practically infallible critic. If the pig looked contented, all was well; but if it grunted disapprovingly - like many another music critic - they knew they would have to do very much better to win the prize. But on one occasion the pig let them down, and they fared so badly at the band contest that they were all afraid to return to the village by the main road. Instead, they crept in along the bed of the river which, fortunately, had almost dried up. There was a hiatus during the Second World War, when the exodus of players into the armed forces led to a temporary merger with Holme Silver Band. Following the band's demise in 2000 a charity was founded, with money raised by selling the band's assets, to help music-makers living and working in the Holme Valley. It is the Hincliffe Mill Brass Band Music Charity.

Founded after WW1. The second band in the town and was probably, for a time, the more successful of the two. Being a mining area several players graduated to more successful colliery bands including several to Bickershaw Colliery in the 1940's. Hindley Public disbanded in the late 1950's. (It is believed that Teddy Gray and Harry Mather both graduated from Hindley Public) Only 2.5 miles from Wingates in one direction and a similar distance to Bickershaw in another, both Hindley bands found it very difficult to retain their better players.

Honley Brass Band - Huddersfield, Yorkshire (West Riding)

Formed in March 1866 in connection with the Honley Working Men's Club, instruments costing £70 from Higham's of Manchester. During the early years the band secured the services of professional conductor John Gladney. He went on to lead the band to many contest successes which included the Belle Vue September contest (now known as the British Open) in 1884. Like all bands Honley had its share of personalities, which included Jack Micklethwaite, who held the position of secretary for twenty years. His embarrassing but amusing experience on a Whit Friday Walk is a wonderful story. It merged with Yorkshire Traction Band in 1997 to form Yorkshire Traction Honley Band. At one time its members were six members of the Simmons family, five Poynters, three Mathias, three Peck, two Beech and two from the Lee family. Tylden Reed recalls his time in the band: "I played in the band in the late 1950s to the early 1960s when the band was disbanded. The band contested for many years at the Areas in London and at Tunbridge Wells, Bell Vue, Reading and others with much success. The band was lucky to first have the renowned Eric Ball and later Prof. Walter Hargreaves from the Royal Marines School of Music Deal as its professional conductors. The band regularly played in the London parks and band stands in the south east of England. Annually we spent a weekend at Lingfield in Surrey at the invitation of Lingfield Band. We gave several concerts including at the racecourse and outside the old 'lock-up'. In the early sixties we accompanied 'The old Contemptables' (1st WW veterans) from Kent to the Mennin Gate and toured the cemeterys. The tour was filmed, with Allan Wicker, by BBC 'Tonight' programme and was shown on 11/11 that year. We were also members of the 4th Btn. The Buffs and played the last post under the Mennin Gate, the first time anyone other than the local fire brigade had ever done so. We took two uniforms with us!" . The band folded in the late 1960s, or early 1970s.

Horncastle Brass Band - Lincolnshire

Active in 1858. Still active in 1899. It was contesting around 1860 and won a prize drum in Boston, supposedly worth 20 guineas. The band didn't consider the drum to be worth the full 20 guineas and successfully sued the promoters of the contest in the County Court! The following year the Horncastle Band were again placed first in the same competition and received another drum, which allegedly may still survive and the plaque attached to the side lists the names of the 11 members of the band who won it. There was another brass plaque attached when the drum was lovingly restored by George Jobson and Frank Bell, relatives of two of the original bandsmen. Legend has it that Shaw, the drummer in the conquering band of 1861 was so elated that he strapped himself to his own drum and banged it throughout the town without waiting for the rest of the band to accompany him! The Parish Clark of 1865 was also drummer in the band for a short time, but was seemingly deposed of this high ranking position by a rigged voting system whereby the lucky winner of the position of drummer actually had the casting vote. I couldn't say for sure, but one might suggest that the subsequent "washing" of the drum in "Sot's Hole" may well have been revenge under the cover of sabotage! Certainly the drum became strangely heavy and on April 17th 1867, Mr John Coates Osborne, the Parish Clark, wrote the resignation letter of the Drum! Conductor T. Shaw in 1860, Martin W. Shaw in 1887-1893, John Smith in 1899. Known as Horncastle Excelsior Brass Band in the 1880s and 1890s. Report from August 1888: "Horncastle Horse Fair - On Monday evening Shaw's Excelsior Brass Band played in the Bull Ring, and the Rifle Corps Band under Robert Nicholson gave a promenade concert; there was dancing in Major Armstrong's grounds in South Street (later Hamerton Gardens).

Horncastle Rifle Volunteers Brass Band - Lincolnshire

Active in the 1860s. Conductor Mr Shaw in 1877. The band appears to have led the celebrations for the end of the Boer War in 1902, but this seems to have been the turning point for the collaboration of the bandsmen and the military. In 1903 the band was disbanded due to the lack of a bandmaster. The band of the 9th Lincolnshire Rifle Volunteers (1st Lincolnshire Rifle Volunteers - G Company, from 1880)

Horncastle Town and Volunteer Brass Band - Lincolnshire

Founded in 1904 (probably largely constituting the members of the old Rifles "G" Company) under the baton of Frank Blyth, called the Town and Volunteer Band. Although it was stipulated at this time that the band should play for the company when required, there is no easily obtainable documentary evidence that they ever did so! By 1911 the band was playing in the Coronation Parade Service in Woodhall Spa under the name of Horncastle Town Band. Disbanded in 1914

Hornchurch Cottage Homes Band - Essex

Founded in 1890. A report in September 1890 noted it was "not yet sufficiently matured to play in public". Active through to at least 1944. The Shoreditch Guardians of the Poor opened Hornchurch Cottage Homes in 1889. They continued in use as children's homes until 1984 - a full 95 years of residential childcare. The cottage homes had 13 houses which could each accommodate around 30 children. Many boys found places in military bands due to the training they received in the Homes' thriving band. At any time up to forty boys were in training under the eye of Matthew Larter, bandmaster until 1910, or his successor Henry Allden. However the practice which this involved was not always viewed positively by the school inspector who in 1922 urged that "if possible, the boys should not be taken for band practice during school hours". The London County Council took over the homes in 1930.

Horwich Brass Band - Lancashire

Formed in summer 1874, first public appearance on Saturday 17th October 1874 at the Co-operative Society annual gathering, with a procession through the village. The band had only learnt one tune by this time and repeated this tune over and over during the two mile course of the procession. Its rehearsal room was above the Co-operative Hall. Conductor James Hulme in 1880. Later known as Horwich Old Brass Band. The band enjoyed its most successful period from 1900 to 1914, winning third prize at the Crystal Palace in 1906 and winning the September Belle Vue Contest in 1910. With the formation of the Horwich RMI Band they lost several key players in 1912 and then sadly lost 12 bandsmen during the Great War. The band was never to regain its height and had disbanded by 1950.

Horwich L and Y Brass Band - Lancashire

Formed in 1889 by the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Company, three years after the opening of the new Locomotive Works in Horwich. Although a 'crack' team of players was put together in 1912, they never seem to have reached the same heights as the RMI Band. The band had been disbanded by 1930. Horwich RMI Band (1) - Lancashire

Directors of the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Company were dismayed by the lack of success by their band, The Horwich L and Y Band. So in 1912 the Chief Mechanical Engineer George Hughes suggested holding auditions for new players. Only one member of the original band was successful in retaining his place, the rest of the band was obviously slightly upset by this outcome and decided to form their own band under the umbrella of the RMI. Therefore the Horwich RMI came into being in late 1912. Success was to come quickly; in 1915 the band came second to Foden's Works Band in the Spring Belle Vue contest. In the same year, after a strike at Elworth (Foden's Factory), a dozen players who had been prominent in the picket lines were fired. They promptly moved to Horwich and took great pleasure in beating their old firm at Belle Vue in 1916 and 1917. Their height came in 1922, winning the Crystal Palace 1000 guinea trophy making them champions of Great Britain. Something that the L and Y Band would never achieve. Mr Riley, the band secretary, put together an ingenious method of raising funds in the early days of the band. A membership scheme was started whereby 360 employees of the L and Y Company would have a small deduction made from their wages; in return they received two tickets to three summer concerts, this scheme continued right into the 1930's. Thereafter, the band played many summer engagements at various holiday resorts on the south coast. Unfortunately, due to the recession and subsequent lay-off of its' members, Horwich R.M.I. Band collapsed as a contest band in 1931. In the intervening years, they were something of a legend. In 1953 the Bolton Evening News ran a series of articles again on the Brass Bands of Bolton. RMI featuring in one of them, the then band secretary a Mr Hill, stated that times had been hard but they were on the up. The band had disbanded by the late 1950's. The Bandstand at Horwich Works recreation ground was built in 1907 and was used by the works' brass band for concerts.

Hucknall Temperance Prize Band - Nottinghamshire

Formed in 1885 as the Hucknall Gospel Temperance Brass Band, at the Butlers Hill, Cavendish Street, Primitive Methodist Church. [Newspaper report - June 29, 1898] - "The annual festival of the children's Sunday School Union took place on Thursday and proved a single success. The weather was fine, and from many windows and standards flags floated and bunting was displayed. The sides of the market were lined with vehicles full of folk who were anxious to view the annual spectacle, and pedestrians made a deep fringe round the market square. While the schools assembled, the Newark Borough Band and the Hucknall Temperance Prize Band entertained the crowd with melodies. Over 2,000 children sang a selection of hymns before they moved off in procession with their teachers for a parade through the town." (Newark - March 2 1898) - "The town was considerably enlivened on Saturday by a visit from the Hucknall Excelsior Temperance Prize Band which accompanied the Hucknall football team. The band played from the GN station to the Market-place and afterwards down to the Muskham Road Ground. In the Market-place at night the band gave an admirable concert the music being listened to and enjoyed by several hundreds of people. The band is a noted prize-taking combination and there were about 30 performers. They pitched in the corner of the Market-place nearly opposite Chain-lane and played a selection of pieces with the feeling and expression that has made them the winners of many contests." In 1904 Sam Taylor was the conductor, as he was also in 1915 by which time the band had changed its name to the Hucknall Silver Prize Band.

Hull Orphan Sailors Childrens Brass Band (1) - Yorkshire (East Riding)

Active from the mid-1870s to around 1910. In the late 1870s the band went on tour around the country raising money for the home and awareness of the plight of similar orphanages. Conductor J. Mason in 1884, Joseph/James Arnott in 1889-1896, Mr Greig in 1900. The home was established in 1867, at Thanet House, a large property on Park Street, Hull. Its purchase was largely funded by a £5,000 donation from Sir Titus Salt, the Bradford manufacturer and philanthropist. By 1893, however, the space was proving increasingly inadequate, and new cottage homes were built on Cottingham Road, opening in 1895, known as Newland Cottage Homes. The boys' band performed at local social events. For a number of years, the band also went on fund-raising tours but in 1907 it was decided that the absence of the boys from the homes, and the attention they received, were not good for them, and the tours were then severely curtailed. The band was composed of children from the Port of Hull Society's Sailors' Orphans' Homes, a forerunner of the Newland Orphan Homes which was in existence in the 1920s. Today the Sailors Families Society seems to be the descendant of those earlier Orphans societies.

Hull St Andrew's Junior Brass Band - Yorkshire (East Riding)

Formed in November 1914 and active into the late 1930s. It was founded by eight working men who obtained £380 worth of clothing and instruments on credit, their object being to train boys as musicians and aid local charitable institutions. In 1915 the conductor was Thomas E. Dearmer, joint secretaries Edward J. Dalton and Samuel Brown (who was a coal teemer at St Andrew's Dock). R.W. Taylor conductor in 1917 (who composed a "Trombone March" in 1919 that particularly please Arthur Pearce and Black Dyke Mills Band when they played it that December). The band did much to raise money for charities through their concerts and consisted of up to 40 boys ranging from 9 to 16 years old. A postcard was published with the following rhyme on it: "Hail to St Andrews Junior Band! Which side by older players take a stand; 'Tis wonderful that boys so young as these should play so well, as e'en to critics please. Diligence and good tuition tell the reason why they do succeed so well; for each lad tries to do what he is told - the Band thus helps the character to mould. 'Twas in November, nineteen-fourteen, in West Hull that its humble birth was seen, but, like the acorn in the wayside sown, it now has to a health sapling grown. Large sums for charities their help has raised, For which they have been well and duly praised; the widows and the orphans' hearts are full of thanks to these little boys of Hull. No sect or section has the slightest claim, except the good of mankind be the aim - for each and all the Band has freely played; no charge, except expenses, has been made. If of assistance you should be in need, at times when you're engaged in noble deed, and helpfully you find the band could use; invite them. They're not likely to refuse." The band won first prize in the Boys Sections, with the Wood Challenge Cup, at the National Brass Band Festival at the Crystal Palace in September 1920 (Malcolm T. Lamb secretary that year). H. Wildbore secretary in 1936. Also known as St Andrew's Silver Prize Band in the late 1920s and 1930s

Illogan Reed and Brass Band - Cornwall

When the Rev Harry Oxland was appointed to the village in 1891 he promptly formed a band finding musicians from Bridge, Illogan Highway and the village itself. Despite calling the band the Illogan Reed and Brass Band, they were allowed, for a couple of years, to take part in the local brass band contests, but their real local fame was enhanced in 1909 when they travelled to London for the Crystal Palace Military Bands contest and came seventh. They changed their title just after this to the Illogan Military Brass Band which strikes me as unexplainable as they had always, from day one, been a "military band", meaning a full complement of woodwind instruments (including a bassoon) and eventually french horns instead of tenor horns. The band was taken over in 1926 by Con Oxland, son of the founder, but they were forced to disband in 1939. From all the newspaper accounts of this band, they were well on a par with the Camborne Town Band, so therefore deserve a mention in these archives.

It became free of debt in 1922, had its first AGM in 1923. Secretary, Mr A Ross, a railway worker, retired in May 1924. William Grant, bandmaster, resigned in August 1924. Bandmaster in April 1925 was Mr G Scotland, followed in June by a crisis when "Numbers of the committee take little personal interest. No effort to recruit young musicians. A good band is sorely needed in Inverness. The first consideration is a good bandmaster. Those who know about the Silver Band will not tell us what is wrong. There is something far wrong with the band which cannot keep its own engagements." At the 1927 AGM, George Smith Laing was in the chair. "Last year was the most successful since the band's inauguration. 40 appearances. In 4 cases the band was paid. 10 members under tuition. Compliments to Bandmaster MacConnachie." Folded in 1936, and the instruments were loaned to the Inverness District Asylum.

Irlam Brass Band - Lancashire

Founded in 1882 as Irlam Blue Ribbon Army Brass Band. Later known also as Irlam Public Band (1920s-1999) and Irlam Silver Band until its demise in 2009. In the 1880s there was a great Temperance Movement, attached mostly to a religious organisation, which spread throughout the North of England. It was known as the Blue Ribbon Army. There was an establishment at Patricroft. On Saturday, 13th May, 1882, Irlam Brass Band led this Army from Patricroft, along Liverpool Road and Worsley Road, Winton, to Eccles Market Cross and from there they went to the Co-op. Hall, where a Meeting was held. Afterwards a concert was given to a packed audience. On the following Wednesday, the members of the Patricroft Blue Ribbon Army opened a Mission in Irlam Parish School room. To give you an idea of the size and popularity of this event, about four hundred and fifty people were conveyed from Patricroft and assembled at the Irlam Toll Bar (near the present-day Co-op. Margarine Works). There they walked in procession to the school headed by Irlam Brass Band with their Blue Ribbon banner. By the 12th of June, 1882, a branch of the Blue Ribbon Army had been formed in Irlam. On this day, the Irlam Brass Band, who were all members of the Blue Ribbon Army, led the procession displaying a splendid new silk banner. In 1883, Irlam Brass Band needed funds and so a grand concert was held in the school room on March 3rd. The Band took a prominent part in the programme. It is reasonable to say that the first Band Contest to be held locally took place on the 17th July, 1886. It was staged by Irlam Brass Band on a field near Irlam Railway Station. Prizes amounting to £36.00 were given. Eight bands competed. Mr. Gagg of Manchester was the Judge. Rawtenstall came first. Stretford second, Audenshaw third and Hollinwood was fourth. Even in those far off days the weather was unfavourable, but nevertheless the Irlam Brass Band played for dancing in the evening. Throughout the 1890 period the Temperance Bands were very active. They competed with the Public Houses in their offerings of musical entertainment. One of the most noteworthy musical events in the history of Irlam and Cadishead happened in 1909., when King Edward VII. and Queen Alexandra paid a brief visit to the district. Before the arrival of the Royal motor procession, St. John's Band, Irlam Village Brass Band and Cadishend Brass Band all provided a musical interlude. In the 1920's Irlam Brass Band practiced in the old Fustian Cutting Shop at the side of the Ship Hotel. In the 1980s they had a Band Room on Liverpool Road, Irlam, situated between the children's playground and the local Police Station. The Band moved to this location in February, 1926. Building materials for the erection of this Band Room were donated by Mr. George Thomas, J.P., of Irlam Hall. Irlam Brass Band gained first place in Dawson's Musical Festival in 1925. This was held in Warrington. [Further information - see: Wheaton, Cyril - Heritage of Local Music (Irlam & Cadishead Bands) - Irlam, Cadishead and District Local History Society, 1981]

Irwell Bank Brass Band - Stoneclough, Lancashire

Formed in 1875 by the Irwell Bank Congregational Church, originally associated with the Sunday Schools. The band was very successful throughout its lifetime. Mr E Gittins was bandmaster from the formation of the band to 1906. Conductor Benjamin Howard in 1881, H.L. Holding in 1884. Players in 1902 included: J.W. Jarvis, George Gillins, James Riley, F. Wright, J.W. Hughes, W. Gillespie. In 1906 a newspaper article in the Farnworth Journal showed the band was thinking of setting up its own headquarters in Farnworth. As that was where the majority of the players came from. Whether they managed to purchase a bandroom in 1906 I don't know, but in 1926 they moved to new premises in Peel Street, Farnworth. In 1929 a notice appeared in the local newspaper announcing that the effects of the band and the appointments of their band club were to be sold by auction. The band had been in financial difficulties for some time and the pressure of a creditor led them to go into voluntary liquidation. 19 instruments, drum, 21 uniforms and a large library were sold to Bedford Sunday School for £62 and 10 shillings. Other lots included a pianoforte, stools, whist tables, floor coverings, glasses and a full-sized billiards table with all accessories. It seems they had been living the high life! The band gave their last concert on Bradford Street recreation ground in April of 1929.

Formed in 1903. Conductor W.H. Curtis. A news report from July 1904: "Isleham band furnishes a striking example of what can be accomplished by steady and determined work. It was only formed a year ago but has become an important and appreciated institution. Its members have had to work hard and faced their first public performance on the occasion of the Harvest Festival last October with trepidation. Recently they have given short open-air sacred concerts on the green on Sunday evenings after the services at the various places of worship. It is to be hoped that their success will stir up the inhabitants of other villages," Probably folded during WW1.

John Dickinson (Apsley) Band - Hemel Hempstead, Hertfordshire

Formed in 1888 as Dickinson Brass Band, renaming as Dickinson Silver Band at the start of 1899, consisting of employees of the paper makers John Dickinson and Co of Apsley. Conductor S.H. Baughen in 1897-1899. Also known as Apsley Mills Silver Prize Band. The Company eventually withdrew their support, and the band changed its name to the Hemel Hempstead Band, in recognition of the support extended to them by the Borough Council. This continued until sponsorship was gained from Atlas Copco Compressors Ltd in 1983, becoming the Atlas Copco (Dacorum) Band. In August 1986 the band amalgamated with the Berkhamsted and Boxmoor Band to form the Atlas Copco Band (the current Hemel Hempstead Band). 1932 - Chipperfield, Hertfordshire. The RAOB had chosen to come to St Paul's Church for their annual Sunday Festival. The assembled brethren represented a large number of lodges from quite a wide area and, in spite of the threatening weather, the group numbered just one short of a hundred. The group assembled in the Church Institute (now the Village Hall) at 3 p.m. and paraded through the village led by Dickinson's Silver Band. At 4 p.m. a service was held in the church. Following this, they processed to the war memorial, led by the cross-bearer, vicar and choir and a wreath was laid there. The finale was most impressive. A senior brother ordered the circle of men to link arms and on the command 'Count', each member in succession called out his number in the chain up to 99. The band played Handel's 'Largo' and the line broke up and dispersed. See also Apsley Mills Brass Band (2) for a different formation date and early history.

Kearsley St Stephens Band - Lancashire

Formed in 1869. In December 1867 the Parish Notes of St Stephen's Church record that "On December 17th a miscellaneous entertainment, in aid of the School Fund was given by gentlemen amateurs, who most kindly and spontaneously offered their services. The managers of the School tender them their hearty thanks". The next mention is the following Whitsun. "On the 5th June 1868 the Whitsuntide procession was headed by the Royal Hulme Brass Band and 'our own drum and fife band". In May 1869 it was minuted, "A brass band is also being formed, which has met with such liberal support already from the above Schools as renders it certain that success will attend all of its promoters. The following are the subscriptions already received: Mr Blair Esq - £10; Clifton and Kearsley Coal Company - £7; Wm Tonge - £4 and 4 shillings; Wm Welsby - £3 and 15 shillings; Wm Jones - £3 and 15 shillings; Mr Steward - £1; Mr Johnson - £1; Mrs Baker - 11 shillings and 6 pence; Mr Joseph Grundy - 10 shillings; Mr D Taylor - 10 shillings; Mr Charles Hollows - 5 shillings; Mr Dennis Lever - 5 shillings; Mr James Grundy - 5 shillings; Mr Richard Edwardes - 5 shillings; Mr Barnet Fyles - 5 shillings." Further subscriptions were made in July and a Tea Party was held on the 16th August. Were an audience spent an 'unusually pleasant evening'. In September of 1869 it was noted that the brass band contributed very largely to the entertainment of the Wakes Tea Party. Soon after the band was founded they appointed an aptly named Mr Blower as their first musical instructor. The band changed to Kearsley Silver Band sometime during the 1940's. In 1951 they competed in the 4th section North West regional championships at the Victoria Hall, Bolton. In 1961 disaster struck the band, there was a blaze at the bandroom destroying the entire music library of the band and several instruments. The band was already in debt and the band treasurer said that they were facing a total bill of £900 for repairs and replacement of instruments, there was 'no hope' for the future existence of the band. Band President Robert Smith was more upbeat however, saying 'we have a lot of young members. With their enthusiasm I am sure we shall overcome this setback'. The bands saviour took the shape of Eaton Truck Components on Worsley Road North. Eaton agreed a sponsorship deal with the band and with a lot of hard work and the help of other local bands, chiefly Walkden Band who lent them the use of several instruments and a big street drum, the band managed to pull through. They changed the bands name to Eaton Works Band and moved into the works canteen for rehearsals. Also known as Eaton (Truck Components) Band and Eaton Transmission Gear Group Band. Due to falling numbers of players they merged with Farnworth Old Band in 1991 under the new name of Eaton Farnworth Brass Band.

Kelty Brass Band - Fife

Active from the early 1860s. Conductor Mr Forrester in 1880, James Beveridge in 1886. Also known as Kelty and Blairadam Band. In 1895, they won the Second Section in the first Scottish Championships, conducted by John Gladney. Over 8,000 followers of the 22 competing bands attended this event which was held in Edinburgh's Waverley Market. Facilities in the market were primitive. There was no seating. Bands performed standing in the ring used by the cattle auctioneers with spectators on stepped terraces. The major advantage of the venue was its proximity to Edinburgh's main line railway station. Most bands and their supporters made their way to the Championships by train, the railway specials to the Championships being the first organised railway excursions to any event in Scotland. Solo cornet was Charles Terris in 1904. The band in 1955 consisted of: Soprano: R. Hodge; Solo Cornet: J.J. Greer, W. Lawson, W. Greer, J. Paris; Repiano Cornet: T. Beveridge; 2nd Cornet: G. Lyall, H. Hood; 3rd Cornet: H. Hynd, B. Tierney; Flugel: W. Dewar; Solo Horn: T. Mollison; 1st Horn: R. Mollison; 2nd Horn: Margaret Jackson; 1st Baritone: A. McCurley; 2nd Baritone: R.
