

Hambleton Brass Band (Hampshire) – a tale of three bands, cricket origins, and Peter Warlock

Gavin Holman, 6 June 2020

Some years ago, I received the Attendance Book for the Hambleton Brass Band, which covers the period from the beginning of 1920 through to September 1925. A mark is made against each member's name for each rehearsal together with the occasional annotation or additional information. As a historical record, if one were to analyse the attendance records, I am sure you could make reach interesting conclusions, but (at least at the present) life is too short for that!

However, the book has been digitised and is appended to this paper, if you are interested.

This band was the second brass band in Hambleton, the first being active in the 1840's to the 1880's. A third band existed in the village in the 1980's, but very little is known about it.

Hambleton is a small village in Hampshire, about 10 miles north of Portsmouth. Its main claim to fame is being the "cradle of cricket" – more on that topic later – and also the home of a vineyard, producing excellent English wines.

Hambleton Brass Band (1) - Active from 1842 to 1882.

- Led the procession of the Bishops Waltham Union Friendly Society's 30th anniversary celebrations on 16 May 1842
- Led the parade of the Bishops Waltham Benefit Society's anniversary celebrations on 13 May 1845
- Led the parade of the Upham Benefit Society's anniversary celebrations on 28 June 1847
- Led the parade of the Hambleton Loyal Britons Friendly Society's 42nd anniversary parade on 6 July 1849
- Took part in the Hambleton Friendly Society's 49th anniversary parade in July 1856
- Helped to celebrate the return of Mr Caley, of Caley & Boardman the enterprising builders of Hambleton, with his bride after their marriage tour, on 1 May 1858
- They accompanied the Hand in Hand Club of Bishops Waltham at their annual fete on 25 May 1858. A report noted that "the band was not quite up to the mark on this occasion. They selected some old tunes, with which they did not appear familiar, and the result was that harmony was not the order of the day."
- Led the parade of the Hambleton Loyal Victoria Friendly Society's 29th anniversary parade on 1 July 1867
- The band helped the village celebrations at the wedding of Alice Higgens, of Fairfield to John Alexander Wilson, of Whitedale, when all the children of the parish, numbering some 500, marched to the residence of the bride's father, on 11 September 1873
- It paraded round the village with the schoolchildren in their holiday treat in August 1882.
- No further mention found, assumed to have disbanded some time in the 1880's

Hambleton Brass Band (2) - Active in the 1920's and 1930's. It was probably founded shortly after the end of WW1.

- The band's members from 1920 were: V. Baker (Eb Saxhorn) - Resigned April 1920; W. Baker (Eb Saxhorn); E. Barrin (Saxhorn); F. Briggs (Non-playing member - Treasurer); J. Cannon (Bb Trombone); G. - Exton fete on 25 July 1923
- Denmead Flower Show – 8 August 1923 – played selections during the afternoon, and for dancing in the evening
- Performed at Bury Lodge on 5 September 1923
- Performed at the football match between Bishops Waltham and Hambledon on 8 September 1923, which Hambledon lost, despite being musically cheered on by the band
- Performed sacred selections at the laying of the foundation stone for the New Mission Church of St Wilfrids in Padnell Lane, Cowplain, on 14 October 1923
- Played Christmas Carols round the village on 19 December 1923

Hambledon Brass Band, 1924

- Gave a concert in support of the Denmead School Outing Fund at the Denmead War Memorial Hall in February 1924. Solos included “I Shall Remember Your Kisses” – Norman Perkins (cornet); “The Death of Nelson” W. Baker (trombone); “The Village Blacksmith” C. Turner (euphonium); the band: “The Lady and the Rose”, and “Beethoven’s Works”
- Led the procession for the 4th annual Denmead Fete and Carnival on 16 July 1924
- Gave an hours concert in the Square at Wickham on 20 July 1924
- Performed at the tea and sports for village children and employees at Stoke Woods, Meonstoke on 26 July 1924

- In March 1937 the band held a dance in the Rookesbury Hall to raise funds, the platform in the Hall was decorated in black and white, the band colours
- Led the procession for the celebrations of the coronation of George VI on 12 May 1937, which was interrupted on the return journey by a large thunderstorm which forced all the revellers and the band to shelter in the Southdown Garage, playing selections while the storm raged
- No further mention found, I assume it did not survive WW2

The Band Committee in 1920 was E.E.W. Roe, B. Cooper, F. Briggs, A. Hartridge, H. Perkins, H. Taylor, H. Turner, W. Edney, and J. Cannon

During 1924 the band collected money from members each week, 6d or 1s at a time, to save for their “Outing Fund”. By the end of September 1924 they had collected £17 11s 6d. It is not known what or when the outing actually was.

Hambledon Brass Band (3) - Active in the 1980’s. No further details known.

So, what is the link between the Hambledon Brass Band, cricket, and Peter Warlock? Warlock being the composer of many songs and a few instrumental pieces (including the Capriol Suite, one of his more famous works, often played by brass bands).

As noted above, a cricket match took place in Hambledon on New Year’s Day, 1929. Founded in 1750, Hambledon Cricket Club was once the most powerful club in the country. It took on the responsibility for developing the laws of modern-day cricket – including such introductions as length bowling, the addition of a third stump, and the regulation of bat width – earning the club its reputation as “the cradle of cricket”. The Bat & Ball pub is where club meetings were once held and such laws were drafted.

A cricket match at Hambledon in the 18th century

The match was sponsored by the London Mercury as a protest against the encroaching popularity of football. Peter Warlock (who in his non-composing life was actually Philip Heseltine) having met members of the Hambledon Brass Band at local pubs, volunteered to write music for the occasion. Verse was provided by Bruce Blunt and, in December 1928, Warlock composed the tongue-in-cheek Cricketers of Hambledon for baritone, chorus, and brass band, together with a companion piece, Fill the Cup, (which was scored for cornet, two saxhorns, two baritones, and euphonium). The two compositions were duly performed after the game, by the Hambledon Band and assorted voices, and the historic pub opposite the playing field, The Bat and Ball, was drunk dry within two hours.

The Cricketers of Hambledon was later published as a song for voice(s) and piano, and its words, written by Bruce Blunt, are:

I'll make a song of Hambledon, and sing it at "The George",
Of balls that flew from Beldham's bat like sparks from Fennex' forge;
The centuries of Aylward, and a thousand guineas bet,
And Sueter keeping wicket to the thunderbolts of Brett.

*Then up with every glass and we'll sing a toast in chorus:
"The cricketers of Hambledon who played the game before us,
The stalwarts of the olden time who rolled a lonely down,
And made the king of games for men, with Hambledon the crown."*

Although they sang the nights away, their afternoons were spent
In beating men of Hertfordshire and flogging men of Kent,
And when the flow'r of England fell to Taylor and his peers,
The fame of Hambledonians went ringing down the years.

The sun has left Broadhalfpenny, and the moon rides overhead;
So pass the bottle round again for drinking to the dead
To Small and his companions all who gathered, lose or win,
To take their fill of Nyren's best when Nyren kept the inn.

The Bat and Ball Inn

The following report of the event was published widely on the days following the match:

“A romantic cricket match was played today at the birthplace of English cricket, the historic Broadhalfpenny Down, in South Hampshire, where the celebrated Hambledon Cricket Club (formed in 1750) played for some thirty years, beating all comers. including All England. Today’s match was romantic because of it being played on New Year’s Day and the conditions under which it took place. It had been organised by Mr. J.C. Squire, the well-known London journalist and sportsman, who had been induced to promote the fixture by the sight of footballers playing in August, and it was done, he said, as a sort of retaliation. Mr. Squire had got together a team styled “London Invalids” to oppose the “Hampshire Eskimos”, a team in charge of Mr. G. Plant, of Arlesford, Hampshire.

"The Bat and Ball", a roadside inn, is the old club house, and the match was played by permission of Winchester College who own the house and pitch. It had been announced that whatever the weather - fog, rain, or snow - the match would take place. A matting wicket was used. Mr. Squire's team included Mr. Ralph Straus (the author), Mr. B. O'Donnell (the well-known bandmaster of the B.B.C.). Mr. M.R.K. Burge (a relative of the Bishop of Oxford), and others. The Eskimos were mainly made up of members of the Hambledon Club, including Mr. Whalley Tooker (president and secretary for nearly forty years), who was captain. It was a bright, frosty morning, and a bleak wind blew across the ground, but a good crowd of spectators, also attracted by the meet of the Hambleton Hounds, assembled.

White flannels were compulsory for the players, and gloves were to be worn only if the temperature was below freezing point. The Hambleton Band attended, and after the match the old custom of holding a concert and indulging in social jollity will be held in the club house. The London

Invalids scored 89 and the Eskimos 78. Lunch was taken at the "Bat and Ball" consisting of bread and cheese and pickles."

As a postscript, there is another song about Hambledon cricket. In 1984, on the White Hart label (YET 3003), John Arlott, the cricket commentator, and The Yetties performed "The Cricketers of Hambledon on Windmill Down, 1789" on the album "The Sound of Cricket".
